September Prices Fatten Inflation By 1.2 Per Cent

Normal Declines Lacking; Climb Worst Since 1947

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rising prices in everything from food and clothing to haircuts and shoeshines boosted the cost of living in September to its highest annual rate since 1947, the Labor Department reported today.

At the same time, the monthly report said, the average wage-earner had 5.2 per cent less spendable income this September than he did a year ago because of the impact of inflation and higher payroll deductions.

The September figures showed that the consumer price index — the best pocketbook yardstick of inflation — rose 1.2 per cent for the month on a seasonally-adjusted basis and 12.1 per cent for the 12-month period, an annual rate unequalled in 27 years.

The report said retail prices defied economic norms by rising even where they normally decline at this time of year and, overall, price-increases effected nearly every corner of the consumer budget.

Food prices, for example, rose 1.4 per cent in September when they are supposed to show a seasonal dip. Prices were higher for beef, pork, poultry, eggs, cereal, bakery products, processed fruits and vegetables, sugar and sweets.

Dairy products increased for the first time in four months.

The cost of restaurant meals and snacks rose 0.7 per cent over August.

Automobile prices, which usually decline in September at the end of the model year, also increased.

Higher prices were also recorded in September for mortgage interest payments, houses and home furnishings, housekeeping supplies, clothing, toilet articles, reading materials, alcoholic beverages, auto repairs, dry cleaning, shoe repairs and haircuts.

College tuitions rose again on the average and the cost of medical services increased by 1 per cent over the month.

Gasoline prices dropped slightly but the prices for utilities such as gas, electricity and telephone service increased.

The report said the average price for a gallon of regular gasoline dropped 0.7 per cent to 55 cents a gallon in September and premium declined 0.6 per cent to 58.7 cents.

While retail prices were rising generally in September, the report showed, wholesale prices showed a slight decline that was not passed on to the consumer.

The consumer price index measures inflation as it actually effects the average consumer. The index stood at 151.9 at the end of September, meaning that goods and services that cost $100 in the base year of 1967 cost $151.90 last month.

In other recent surveys, the Gross National product showed an 11.5 per cent rise and the wholesale price index a 19.7 per cent increase.

In its report on wage trends, the Labor Department said real gross average weekly earninge had risen 0.2 per cent for the month of September because of rises in average hourly earnings and average hours worked per week.

But over the year since September, 1973, the report said real average weekly earnings had declined 4.5 per cent, allowing for inflation, and 5.2 per cent after social security and federal income tax deductions.

Nixon and top aides supposedly were held. Artist Freda Reiter did the sketch in court. (UPI Telephoto)

Dean Says Haldeman Tried To Curb His Aid To Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III testified today that H. R. Haldeman tried to stop him from going to federal prosecutors in the waning days of the Watergate cover-up by saying that "once the toothpaste is out of the tube, it's going to be very hard to get it back in."

Dean, formerly President Richard M. Nixon's counsel and now the Watergate prosecution's star witness, testified during his fifth day on the stand about events in the White House in late March and April, 1973, when the cover-up began to unravel.

Chief trial prosecutor James F. Neal was expected to complete his direct questioning of Dean early in the day, opening the way for Haldeman's lawyer, John J. Wilson, to cross-examine.

Haldeman, Nixon's former chief of staff, and four other former Nixon associates are on trial in the cover-up. William S. Frates, lawyer for former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman, told U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica that Dean's credibility "is the crucial thing in this case, as far as my client is concerned."

Much of Dean's testimony was word for word what he gave at the nationally televised Senate Watergate hearings in June, 1973.

Dean recalled that he talked to Haldeman in California on April 8, 1973, shortly before he met with the Watergate prosecutors.

"John," Dean quoted Haldeman as telling him, "I think you ought to think about that before you do it because once the toothpaste is out of the tube, it's going to be very hard to get it back in."

He said his five-hour conference with the prosecutors was interrupted by an inflight call from Air Force One in which an aide told Dean that he should meet with Ehrlichman and Haldeman once their flight set down in Washington.

Dean said he evaded the questions of Haldeman and Ehrlichman about his meeting with the prosecutors. He said Ehrlichman told him he could explain the handling of hush money by describing it as a "defense fund or humanitarianism."

"John, I couldn't look a jury in the eye and tell them that," Dean recalled he told Ehrlichman. But he said Ehrlichman replied, "I think it would sell."

Dean said he received a telephone call March 23 from Nixon, who said, "Well, John, you are right in your prediction that someone was going to break rank" — meaning that someone was going to destroy the cover-up.

He said Nixon was referring to a letter that Sirica had just received from one of the original Watergate defendants, James W. McCord Jr., saying that others were involved in Watergate.

There are growing indications that Nixon himself will be a witness. His lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, argued before another U.S. District Court judge yesterday that Nixon needed White House tapes to prepare his testimony.

Police Fly Shotgun Above Power Lines In Extortion Plot

Oregon Authorities Firm Against Bomber's Boast

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon state police officers began riding shotgun today with federal power inspection crews in helicopter patrols of high voltage power lines threatened in a $1 million bombing extortion plot.

An extortionist who signed his name J. Hawker has claimed responsibility for damaging or toppling 11 towers which support the power lines feeding this second largest city in the Northwest. He threatened to knock out the remaining lines, blacking out the city, unless Bonneville Power Administration pays him $1 million.

BPA said today all but one of the lines put out of service by the blasts, which occurred between late September and last Friday night, had been repaired. Because of alternate routes available on the power system there have been no power outages associated with the blasts. Repairs to lines restored capability of the system to serve the city from more than one direction, a BPA spokesman said.

Dan Schausten, assistant to the administrator of the BPA, said three helicopters along with fixed wing aircraft were being used to patrol transmission lines in a 40-mile radius of Portland. Ground crews were doubled from three to six.

He said armed troopers were needed aboard the sky craft because "there is nothing our pilots can do if they see a person planting a charge on a tower."

The BPA is the federal marketing agent for electrical power in the Pacific Northwest. It owns some 12,000 miles of high voltage lines strung throughout the hills and mountains, with each mile of power line having about five of the tall, steel towers.

The BPA refused to pay the extortion money, and countered it with a huge $100,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and prosecution of the extortionist.

BPA Administrator Don Hodel told a news conference in Seattle, Wash., yesterday: "If we ever pay even one penny of blackmail, there isn't one power system in the United States that's safe." He said security throughout the agency's system was increased, but believes the current threat applies only to the Portland area.

"As far as I know this is the first incident where an extortion demand has been connected to bombing power systems," Hodel said. "I think it indicates someone decided to go into business for himself and figured this was a quick way to make some money."

He said by holding fast and paying nothing, the extortionist should realize his effort is futile.

Emergency services, police and fire departments in Portland and surrounding communities have been put on alert in the event of a power blackout. Hospitals and other institutions have been warned to have emergency generators in good working order, even though a power outage might last only a few hours.

San Rafael Legal Post Is Expanded

San Rafael needs a full-time city attorney, the city council decided last night. (Other San Rafael Council stories on page 17.)

Councilmen declared the part-time, elected post now held by Fred C. Robbins should be expanded to a full-time position and said they will set a salary for the job before Dec. 5, the day filing opens for Robbins' seat.

Councilmen said attorneys seeking election to the post — which is expected to carry a salary of about $26,000 annually — may not retain a private practice.

Robbins, elected to the attorney post in 1971 when he ran unopposed, has private clients while working about 60 hours monthly on city business. His current pay is $1,225 monthly.

Robbins has said privately that he would not seek reelection as city attorney if the council made the position full-time. However, he made no public comment on his plans last night.

The council acted after rejecting two other proposals for ways to improve city legal services. The administratin had suggested hiring a full-time deputy city attorney or buying additional legal time from Robbins or another lawyer on an hourly basis.

Robbins noted that hiring a full-time deputy would in effect

Purloined Leary Tapes Vanish Again

By GEORGE NEVIN

The strange case of Dr. Timothy Leary's companion and a suitcase full of items stolen from her Marin home has taken another peculiar turn.

Several tape recordings thought to have been taken from the Homestead Valley house of Joanna Harcourt-Smith in a $20,000 extortion attempt seem to have vanished, Marin investigators said today.

The tapes, part of a larger haul taken from the house, were subpoenaed by George Chula, an Orange County lawyer who has been indicted on charges of furnishing drugs to Miss Harcourt-Smith.

The disappearance of the tapes, considered vital to Chula's defense is one more strange occurence in a cast that already has more twists than a dimestore novel.

The chain of events began in June, when Miss Harcourt-Smith, who calls herself Joanna Leary, though she never married the imprisoned LSD guru, and Dennis Martino returned to the Homestead Valley home they shared and found it had been burglarized during their outing.

Shortly afterward, according to court records, they got a telephone call from Charles Dewald, 36, saying he and Robin Denise Viertel, 21, a former housekeeper for Miss Harcourt-Smith, had a suitcase of tapes and documents which they were willing to return for $20,000 in extortion money.

Arrangements were made to return the stolen goods at a San Francisco hotel. Miss Viertel and Dewald were arrested there and the suitcase recovered, apparently lacking about 10 vital tape recordings.

Subsequently, Miss Harcourt-Smith told an Orange County grand jury that it was attorney Chula that furnished drugs to her. On the strength of her testimony, Chula was indicted.

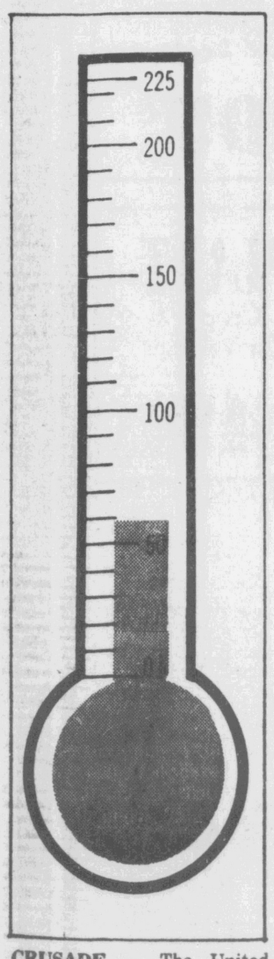
When an investigator hired by Chula went to the Marin Hall of Justice on Friday with a subpoena for tapes thought to have been recovered at the arrest, he discovered some were missing.

Court records show the Marin district attorney's office suspects the missing tapes are in the possession of Dewald's former attorney, Dennis Natali of San Francisco.

Miss Viertel and Dewald, charged with burglary and extortion, entered guilty pleas Friday in Marin Superior Court, she to a second degree burglary charge and he to attempted extortion. They are to be sentenced Nov. 21.

Probation reports on the two quote Miss Viertel as saying both Miss Harcourt-Smith and Martino are paid informers for federal drug authorities.

Other sources say Leary is attempting to secure his release from prison by providing evidence against former associates in the drug and radical movements, and that the tape recordings — both those recovered and those still missing — contain conversations between Miss Harcourt-Smith and these associates.



CRUSADE — The United Bay Area Crusade in Marin has reached the $59,038 mark toward its $225,000 goal in the county. In all five counties, it has raised $6,980,000 toward $21 million sought by Nov. 21.

Gas Rationing, Other Steps May Be Necessary-Official

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John R. Quarles Jr., deputy administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said today additional gasoline taxes or some form of rationing may still be necessary to cope with energy problems.

Quarles said Americans are already going back to buying bigger cars and driving at 70 miles an hour on the highway, an indication that reliance on voluntary cooperation by the consuming public is not enough.

If Detroit does not voluntarily start turning out more fuel efficient cars, Quarles said, "we should adopt a flat regulatory requirement that all cars produced after 1978 achieve at least a minimum standard for fuel economy, and this bottom floor requirement should be coupled with a further incentive to shift toward smaller cars in the form of a surtax on all cars weighing more than 3,000 pounds, escalated upward to as high as a $1,000 tax on big luxury cars weighing over 5,500 pounds."

"We should also continue to consider the need for additional gasoline taxes or some form of rationing to cut down on excessive automobile use," he added. "We should abolish the Highway Trust Fund, so that federal money for highway construction would go through the normal appropriations scrutiny."

Quarles made the comments in a speech prepared for delivery in Louisville, but released in advance in Washington.

Quarles said the automobile is not the only energy problem but it is "a big part of the problem in and of itself. And it is a symbol for all the rest.

"If we are unwilling to face up to the problem of the automobile and do something about it, we might as well forget about the goal of energy conservation. We are kidding ourselves if we think the job can be done without attacking the problem at its core," he said.

Bomb Explodes In Man's Hands In North Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A bomb exploded in the hands of a man rushing it from a Belfast betting shop where it was planted today, police said. The blast blew him to pieces and tore an arm off an 18-year-old youth passing by.

The man, identified as Dominic Donnelly, a Catholic in his mid-40s, had spotted a bomb concealed in a transistor radio left in the shop in Belfast's Catholic Falls Road area, police said.

Earlier, masked gunmen burst into Belfast's Catholic St. Peter's secondary school and kidnaped 28-year-old teacher Daniel Burke from a staff room. But he was released unharmed a few hours later.

Burke said he was blindfolded and questioned. He refused to say what he was questioned about.

Mozambique Race Rioting Quashed After 48 Killed

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — Loyal troops arrested dissident Portuguese Commandos today and restored order after at least 48 persons were killed in the bloodiest racial clashes since a black-majority government took power in this East African country.

Hospital authorities said 33 whites were among those who died in last night's street battles between black and white troops which set off mob violence in the capital's African shantytowns. An estimated 160 persons were injured.

Portuguese High Commissioner Rear Adm. Victor Crespo, appealing for calm on radio, said mixed black and white army patrols had restored control and arrested units of Portuguese commandos who face punishment. But most of the 240 soldiers involved were flown home to Portugal today, military sources said.

Frelimo (Mozambique Liberation Front) Premier Joaquim Chissano, installed in office last month after the front's 13-year guerrilla war against Portugal, said over national radio, "Loyal troops have neutralized dissident groups."

The Frelimo administration asked Portugal to maintain its 65,000-man army in the former colony during the transition to formal independence next June.

The renewed racial bloodshed endangered the fragile peace between Mozambique's eight million Africans and 250,000 non-blacks and could shatter Portuguese Army and Frelimo cooperation in the eight months before Portugal's complete withdrawal, military sources said.

Yesterday's clashes began in downtown areas when an off-duty Portuguese commando roughed up an African in Frelimo colors who appealed to black troops for protection. Civilians scrambled for cover as troops opened fire from opposite sides of the streets.

By late today life in the capital returned to normal. Shops and banks opened and streets filled with civilians. Small crowds gathered to discuss the rioting near blood stained pavements in the main street, Avenida da Republica.

A Roman Catholic priest, Father Joao Romano Alves, was killed by an African mob which battered him with sticks, his nephew said at Lourenco Marques hospital.

Minor Temblor Awakens South

INGLEWOOD (UPI) — A mild earthquake jolted a small part of Southern California today awakening many residents and prompting telephone calls to police but apparently causing no damage.

The Seismological Laboratory at CalTech in Pasadena said the tremor at 5:13 a.m. PDT had a preliminary intensity of 2.8 on the open end Richter Scale.

A laboratory spokesman said the quake appeared to be centered in the Inglewood area 10 miles southwest of downtown Los Angeles.

It was also felt in nearby Santa Monica.

Firefighters Quell Blazes; Danger Remains

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Although gaining control of three brush and timber blazes, the state Division of Forestry warned today that the fire hazard remained high in Northern California because of high winds.

Gusty northerly winds of up to 30 miles an hour were reported.

Contained were a 300-acre brushfire near Redding in Shasta County, a 150-acre blaze in redwoods in Big Basin State Park in Santa Cruz County and a 125-acre fire near Mount Diablo in Contra Costa County.

Still blazing is a 30-acre brush fire in steep terrain in Humboldt County.

No Concession On Oil From Mexico Field

TUBAC, Ariz. (UPI) — Mexican President Luis Echeverria told President Ford yesterday the United States will get no special benefit from the big, new oil strikes in his country, and Ford told Echeverria the U.S. attitude toward Cuba remains unchanged.

Both Presidents had to take domestic audiences and international considerations into account in their public joint appearance, and they could have been staking out positions subject to quiet negotiation later.

Echeverria told Ford that Mexico's newly discovered oil reserves will not be used to force down the international price of oil, but will be sold to all comers — for cash, at the high prices decreed by the Arab-dominated oil cartel.

"Mexico is selling oil to anyone who wants to buy at the world price," Echeverria said.

The new finds have permitted Mexico — for decades barely self-sufficient in oil — to begin exporting petroleum.

"This is very important for Mexico when we consider the prices prevailing in the world market," the Mexican president said, adding with a grin, "prices which we will respect."

On Cuba, Ford said he told Echeverria "we had not seen any change in the attitude of Mr. Castro and the people in his government. Inasmuch as there has been no change, it is not expected that our attitude would change toward Cuba."

Mexico is a leader in the growing movement to restore Cuba to the hemisphere community.

The expropriation of American-owned and other foreign oil firms by Mexico in 1938 has been treated in Mexican history books ever since as a milestone in the nation's progress.

A government that appeared to be reversing it would risk a serious political crisis.

The two presidents also set up yet another commission to study the problem of illegal immigrants who have flocked to the United States by the hundreds of thousands in search of jobs, particularly farm workers.

TACO DIPLOMACY — Rose petals flutter down as President Gerald Ford walks along the streets of Magdalena de Kino, just across the Mexican border from Arizona. Ford and Mexico's President Luis Echeverria yesterday met and conferred on both sides of the border.

Ford's Border Visit Cheered; Little Done

By GENE CARLSON

MAGDALENA DE KINO, Mexico (UPI) — If Mexicans voted Republican, President Ford's political worries would be over.

Venturing south of the border yesterday for a five-hour excercise in "taco diplomacy," Ford received a welcome that verged on pandemonium from the residents of two northern Mexican towns.

It contrasted sharply with the luke-warm reception that has dogged Ford in recent weeks as he criss-crossed the country drumming up votes for embattled Republican candidates in the Nov. 5 election.

In Lincoln,, Neb., and Louisville, Ky., last week, the crowds stayed away in droves.

In Nogales and Magdalena de Kino, however, the whole towns turned out with a reckless enthusiasm that clearly enchanted the Yankee visitor.

Young Mexican girls waved American flags under a brilliant desert sun and threw flower petals in Ford's path. The square face of the man from Grand Rapids, Mich., stared from thousands of posters hung across the narrow streets.

In a moment of glee, Ford strode down a cobblestone street in shirtsleeves, waving a pink carnation and grinning from ear to ear as a sea of Latin faces strained to get close.

"If only they could register GOP," Ford must have thought.

Ostensibly, the trip was a get-acquainted session between Ford and Luis Echeverria, the popular and increasingly independent Mexican president.

The two leaders met twice behind closed doors, first on the Mexican side of the frontier and then in the United States, but a wind-up news conference at the small Arizona resort of Tubac showed that little of substance was accomplished in the talks.

The public reception was a different story. Schools were let out and busineses closed in the two Sonora towns, insuring a maximum citizen turnout along the parade route.

Ford and Echeverria took advantage of the crowds, walking for more than a mile, at times virtually inundated by the spectators.

Mariachi bands tootled at intervals and hundreds of vaqueros — Mexican cowboys — lined their ponies up along the road in a mounted guard.

It was unclear whether the people came to see the visitor Ford or their own president, Echeverria. Perhaps it was the only game in town.

Transatlantic Fares May Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board has set up guidelines that could force charter airlines to raise transatlantic airfares by 35 per cent.

Fares for charter flights have always been competitive, but the suggested guidelines approved yesterday would raise seats on transatlantic flights to a minimum rate —about 35 per cent higher than charter seats last year.

The CAB actually has no authority to set fares —but it approves prices requested by the airlines. The agency said it would approve lower increases if the airlines could show economic justification.

Neighbors Discover Beggar Is Wealthy

UDINE, ITALY (UPI) — When Ermenegilda Urgano, 78, a beggar, was hospitalized, her neighbors found between $9,000 and $15,000 in her apartment.

Police said the neighbors went into her place to bring her some clothes and found bags of cash.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Inez Garcia Gets Five To Life

MONTEREY (UPI) — Inez Garcia, the 30-year-old woman who killed the companion of a man she claimed had raped her, was sentenced to five years to life in prison yesterday for second-degree murder.

Garcia

The prosecution argued that no rape had taken place and that she shot Miguel Jimenez on March 19 at nearby Soledad in a quarrel over narcotics.

But the case drew the attention of a large number of members of women's groups, and loud hissing was heard in the courtroom when the sentence was handed down.

Shouts of "Free Inez" went up from about 100 more supporters outside as the courtroom emptied.

Superior Court Judge Stanley Lawson repeatedly declared that the proceeding was "a murder trial, not a rape trial."

Jewish Emigration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., say the Soviet Union has set no exact number of Jews and other dissidents who will be allowed to emigrate.

Their statements, issued yesterday, clarified last week's agreement in which the Russians promised to liberalize emigration in return for favorable trade terms from the United States.

Fugitive Kangaroo

CHICAGO (UPI) — Officers patroled the city's northwest side yesterday in hopes of capturing a fugitive kangaroo which has eluded them for five days.

"He was hopping along Mango Avenue," Patrolman Edward Brensberger said of his Sunday night glimpse of the mysterious marsupial. "He was headed south." The animal has not been sighted since.

Moscow Murders

MOSCOW (UPI) — A growing number of Muscovites are troubled by persistent rumors in the capital about a psychopathic killer stalking women in Moscow.

The murder scare is growing by word of mouth in the absence of hard news in the official media. The Soviet press virtually ignores crime news unless used to point up a moral.

Burn Legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Over strenuous administration objections, Congress has passed a measure to expand treatment for burn victims.

The burn program is part of a $45.5 million fire control bill which will become law if President Ford signs it by midnight Oct. 29.

In the bill's preamble, Congress declared that the United States has the highest per capita rate of death and property loss from fire of any major industrial nation.

Dollar Rallies

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The U.S. dollar opened higher today on all major European foreign exchanges, continuing its recovery from a week's slide. It advanced against the Swiss franc for the first time in seven trading days.

The price of gold jumped from $157.25 to $158.50 an ounce in Zurich. At the London bullion market, it opened unchanged at $157.50.

Cyprus Fighting

NICOSIA (UPI) — Greek Cypriot and Turkish forces exchanged fire across the demarcation line separating their forces in Nicosia early today, Greek Cypriot government officials said.

A Greek Cypriot radio broadcast said Turkish troops had fired first in the incident. It said one Greek Cypriot national guardsman was wounded.

Immigration Fight

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — Randy Gellerman brought her adopted Vietnamese son to the United States without the required immigration visa. But she says she will fight to keep him.

Miss Gellerman, of Merrick, N.Y., and the child, 18-month-old Gabriel, arrived in Montreal Sunday on a flight from Tel Aviv. She said she was interviewed in Montreal by U.S. immigration officials and then allowed to fly to New York.

At a news conference here yesterday, Miss Gellerman said an immigration inspector did not specifically question her regarding Gabriel's place of birth.

Tribal Warfare

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (UPI) — Hundreds of warring tribesmen armed with bows and arrows, spears and axes fought a weeklong battle for disputed lands in the Chimbu Valley of this South Pacific island, police said today.

Police said the fighting ended today but could break out again at any moment.

Police riot squads armed with clubs, shotguns and tear gas were hopelessly outnumbered and appeared somewhat reluctant to become involved.

Contaminated Tuna

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (UPI) — Rodent hairs, moth wings and parts of insects and maggots were found in samples of canned tuna fish from 13 of 16 major distributors or canners tested, according to the Consumers Union.

The Consumers Union, a nonpartisan consumer organization and publisher of Consumer Reports, said yesterday it tested 52 brands of canned tuna for color, condition, aroma, flavor, texture, filth and bacteria.

Military Charged

ATHENS (UPI) — Greece's three-month-old civilian government has decided to move against the military men who ruled the country with an iron fist for seven years.

Prosecutor Constantine Fafoutis charged former dictator George Papadopoulos and four top junta leaders yesterday with "moral responsibility for premeditated multiple murder" in last November's student riots.

Kissinger's Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger leaves tonight for Moscow, where he will talk with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev on guidelines for the next round of U.S.-Soviet strategic arms talks.

His trip will include stops in India, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Romania, Yugoslavia, the World Food Conference in Rome, Turkey, and quite possibly major capitals in the Mddle East.

Europeans Eye Loans From Arabs

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — A year after the Middle East war ushered in the global oil crisis, the European Common Market has decided to do something about it.

Finance ministers of the nine Common Market nations voted yesterday to borrow $3 billion from the Arabs to help Western Europe pay soaring fuel bills.

The ministers decided in a five-hour meeting to guarantee payment of the loan collectively. Italy has said it wants to be the first receipient.

The loan, which would recycle some of the $20 billion which Europe will spend on oil this year, is the first joint effort by the nine nations to meet the oil crisis or its financial effects.

Despite talk about "European unity," the nine have failed in several attempts to frame a detailed oil or energy policy.

Instead, eight of them have worked out a crisis oil-sharing plan with the United States, Canada, Japan and Norway, outside the Common Market framework.

France has boycotted the plan for transatlantic cooperation, although it has indicated it may join it later.

Campaign Gifts Reported Down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Common Cause reported yesterday that overall campaign giving is suffering a post-Watergate recession, but special interest groups are still contributing heavily and incumbent members of Congress are getting most of the benefits.

"It would appear at this stage that contributions to 1974 congressional candidates are substantially lower than they were in 1972," Fred Wertheimer, legislative director of the citizens action group told a news conference.

The organization, which extensively monitors federal and state campaign finance reports, said $40 million had been raised by all congressional candidates through Sept. 1 this year. When compared to $70 million for the period April 7-Dec. 31, 1972, it appeared congressional campaign spending this year was going to be a good deal lower, Wertheimer said.

"The major exceptions to this are the special interest groups which apparently will play a much larger financial role in 1974 than they did in 1972."

Wertheimer also reported that Senate and House incumbents of both parties again were getting the lion's share of contributions: incumbents got $24 million of the total contributions reported as of Sept. 1. Candidates trying to unseat incumbents got $8 million, as did candidates in contests where no incumbent was running, according to the Common Cause figures.

Another major change in campaign finance this year was dominance of Democrats. Of the total, Democrats received 58 per cent and Republicans 42 per cent. Two years ago it was Republicans 54 per cent; Democrats 46 per cent.

Even so, Common Cause said, Republican as well as Democratic opponents did far better raising funds than challengers of either party.

In the Senate, 15 Democratic incumbents raised $6 million compared to $1.2 million raised by 10 challengers in the same races. Ten Republican incumbents raised $3.5 million compared to $1.3 million raised by 12 challengers. In the House, 220 Democratic incumbents raised $6.7 million compared to $3.9 million by 162 challengers; 163 Republican incumbents raised $7.7 million compared to $1.3 million by 163 challengers.

The Common Cause breakdown of business, professional, labor and "ideological" special interest group campaign contributions showed a total of $5.5 million in contributions by Sept. 1 and $14 million on hand for campaign giving in the final two months.

Of the money actually donated, business groups had given $1 million, agriculture groups $129,000 and health groups $963,000. Labor groups had contributed $2.8 million, the ideological share was $276,000 and a miscellaneous category had donated $281,000.

Wertheimer said he expected special interest organizations to take a much larger role in congressional campaign financing in 1976, when a new system of public and private financing for presidential campaigns will start.

Times Being Assigned For Sit-In Concert

Children who make reservations for the Marin Symphony Association sit-in concert Saturday will be assigned various times to arrive for the event at Adaline E. Kent School, Kentfield.

"Sit-in concert" appointments will be from 9:30 a.m. to about noon, according to the symphony association. An I-J story yesterday incorrectly stated that children would sit-in with orchestra members at 10 a.m.

Sunday Time Change For Garden Show

The Garden Society of Marin has changed starting time of its 28th annual fall flower show from noon to 10 a.m. this Sunday.

Sunday's show will end at 4 p.m. Saturday's times remain the same, noon to 6 p.m. Plants will be received all day Friday. The show will be held at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Money Proves Bitter Ashes

LEEDS, England (UPI) — Keith Sharp burned $38,000 in cash and buried the ashes in a rose garden because he was afraid tax men were about to discover the money.

Sharp told a court yesterday his father had taken the cash from the family's chicken farming business and kept it at home in a safe.

The father died and Sharp junior failed to report the money, even after tax authorities began looking into the company's accounts.

"It gives a new dimension to the expression money to burn," prosecutor Gerald Coles said before the judge fined Sharp $12,000.

San Rafael Teachers Granted Six-Month, 1 Per Cent Raise

The San Rafael Board of Education last night extended district teachers a carrot — in the form of an additional 1 per cent six-month salary increase — in hopes of settling a long wage dispute.

The 1 per cent across-the-board raise for teachers in both the elementary and high school districts would be effective Jan. 1, 1975, and would be in addition to the 6 per increase already offered by the board. The 6 per cent would be retroactive to last July 1. (Teachers also received 2 per cent raises last January.)

Teachers, who have threatened to strike, had asked 14 per cent pay hikes.

The whole matter was turned over to a three-member fact-finding committee, whose report was accepted last night by the board of trustees. The report reflected the opinions of two of the members, with the teacher representative Han-il Lee dissenting. Lee held out for an 8.2 per cent wage hike.

The majority of the panel, attorney Arthur B. Jacobs, of San Francisco, the arbitrator, and John Liebert of Palos Verdes Estates, the board's representative, concurred on the 6 per cent retroactive raise with the additional 1 per cent hike next January.

The proffered pay raises and other protions of a package accepted by the board now must be ratified by the teachers, who will meet Thursday.

There was no talk last night of a strike threatened earlier by teachers nor of the large number of volunteers which the district has enlisted to fill in for teachers should a strike occur.

In a sometimes heated meeting attended by some 225 persons (most of them teachers), the board agreed to accept the majority recommendations of the committee despite some reservations.

"I'm not totally satisfied about everything in this report — I don't think any board member is," trustee Francis X. Kelly told the Independent-Journal. "But the main thing I want is to get the schools moving again."

While teachers at the meeting, which ran almost three hours in the San Rafael High School auditorium, expressed dissatisfaction with the salary proposal, board members said they were not sold on other segments of the fact-finding group's recommendations.

The proposal to give elementary teachers free time to prepare for classes and the details of a grievance procedure to be used in disputes over unfavorable evaluations of teachers came under fire by trustees.

The fact-finding committee recommended that elementary school teachers have one unassigned period per week for class preparation, if this can be achieved at no cost to the district.

The report also recommended a four-step grievance procedure for teachers, including outside advisory arbitration as a last resort.

The committee also suggested adopting a goal of having no more than 25 students per teacher for junior and senior high schools and 27 pupils to each instructor in the elementary schools. (Supt. Donald E. Leisey said the overall ratios in the district are now slightly lower than these figures.)

Teachers, however, represented on the fact-finding panel by Lee, a negotiations specialist for the California Teachers Association, called for fixed maximums of class size which could not be exceeded.

Approved without dissent by the board were a myraid of other proposals by the committee, including health, dental and insurance coverage, duty-free lunch periods, selection of department chairmen, summer school contract procedures, disability leave, travel reimbursement and others.

Debate on the main issues in contention, through, drew angry responses from teachers.

Board President Herman L. Childress drew boos, hisses and a few muttered obscenities when he said, "When we granted a 2 per cent raise in January it was with the clear understanding that it was to applied against this year's salary agreement."

But Barry A. Hoglund drew thunderous applause when he said, "You increase the superintendent's salary 14.8 per cent; you increase the books and materials budget 61 per cent; you increase the building and grounds budget 175 per cent; and then you turn around and say, 'Sorry teachers, there's no more money left.' "

Board members told Hoglund, a representative of the Certificated Employees Council and others in the audience, money for larger raises just isn't available because of state limits on school spending per pupil.

Report Predicts Pollution From Offshore Drilling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department says opening 10 million offshore acres to oil and gas production could release as much as 8,500 barrels of pollutants a year into U.S. coastal waters.

The projection was made yesterday in an environmental impact statement prepared by the Bureau of Land Management in connection with the department's plan to lease the 10 million acres on the outer continental shelf.

The projection was based on experience with oil spills in the Gulf of Mexico from 1964 to 1974, according to the 1,300-page report.

In that 10-year period there were 44 oil polluting incidents of greater than 50 barrels which resulted in 320,000 barrels of spillage, the report said. Over half of the total came in 1967 when a dragging anchor broke a pipeline.

The bureau estimated that out of a 2.9 billion barrels of production in the Gulf of Mexico the spillage rate was .0017 per cent.

Projected on the 10 million acre leasing plans for the Atlantic and Pacific, an estimated 8,500 barrels per year would be spilled, the report added.

The statement said "the most severe impacts that can affect organisms in communities of marine and coastal eco systems are those that result from spilled oil."

The bureau said it expected that, because Atlantic and Pacific coastal operations would be less intensive than drilling in the Gulf of Mexico, the "effcts would be generally less than those observed in the Gulf of Mexico aside from catastrophic localized spills."

Besides accidental spillage, environmental damage results from lost debris, discharge of cuttings, sand, drilling fluids, and burial of pipelines.

The bureau noted that, because operations would be in new frontiers, there would likely be "more negative responses."

The statement will be subjected to public hearings beginning Nov. 18. The hearings will be in Los Angeles, Anchorage, and Trenton, N.J.

In addition to the environmental statement for the entire Interior Department proposal, separate statements will be prepared for each sale area in the leasing program.

The first oil and gas lease sale was 20 years ago off the Louisiana coast. In the 1954-70 period, 7.2 million areas were leased and during the last three years 1.9 million acres were leased. By 1973 production on the outer coastal shelf reached 1,081,000 barrels daily.

Plot To Kill King Hussein Said Foiled

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Moroccan police have foiled a Palestinian guerrilla plot to assassinate King Hussein of Jordan while he is attending the Arab summit conference scheduled to open Saturday in Rabat, Arab diplomatic sources said today.

Police arrested 14 guerrillas who came to Rabat to carry out the plot, the sources said.

All of the plotters were said to belong to the Fatah organization, the largest guerrilla group, led by Yasser Arafat, who doubles as chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, parent body of major guerrilla factions, the sources added.

The plot was uncovered about three weeks ago, the sources said, and all those arrested carried Latin American passports. The informants did not specify nationalities.

Neither was there any word on how the alleged plotters planned to kill Hussein.

Discovery of the plot led the Moroccan government to tighten up security measures originally planned for the summit, they said.

These measures included moving all 53 Palestinians residing in Rabat to Casablanca for the duration of the summit, they said, and putting them under strict surveillance.

After the plot was cracked, the sources said, Morocco's King Hassan informed Hussein, Arafat and Egypt's President Anwar Sadat.

The reported plot has not deflected Hussein from his intention to attend the summit where his longstanding feud with the PLO will be uppermost on the agenda, they said.

But Hussein will be coming to Rabat with a large security detail of about 120 men. Hussein, at the age of 38, already has survived at least half a dozen assassination attempts over the years.

The summit is being preceded by a meeting of Arab foreign ministers. They met today to lay the groundwork for the summit, which will endeavor to work out a joint policy toward peace talks with Israel.

Tam Trustees Postpone Fiscal Plan

The Tamalpais High School District board last night postponed action on an administration recommendation that a "planning board" be appointed to come up with a plan for easing the district's financial crunch. The board said it first wants to find out what teachers think of the plan proposed by Supt. Robert D. Torrey, according to Marion Higgins, administrative assistant to Torrey. The proposal again will be considered at a special meeting set for 8 p.m. Monday, she said.

At issue, she said, is how the district will cope with limited finances — including what staffing and programs are needed, and which can be cut.

Torrey has proposed a 12-member committee composed of teachers and administrators, a citizen and a student be created to look at the situation and "develop a method for allocating district resources based on educational priorities," she said.

"It's a big issue because it's going to determine whose programs get cut," she added.

She said that the committee "might or might not" make recommendations based on its study, and noted that teachers on the panel might be uneasy about recommending the posts of colleagues be cut.

Tamalpais High School District Board Also:

TORREY — Boosted Torrey's salary by 7 per cent to a total of $37,019 annually.

TITLE CHANGE — Referred to the affirmative action committee a proposal by Torrey that Director of Business Frank Cassou be named Asst. Supt. for Business, and that Administrative Assistant Marion Higgins be given the additional title of deputy superintendent.

SEXIST — Again said girls should be allowed to play on all sport teams. Torrey and superintendents of the Novato and San Rafael school systems will meet with the Marin County Athletic League at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow at Marin Catholic High School to discuss sport participation policy.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Oct. 28.

Computers Helping With Career Choice

By KENNETH J. RABBEN
Copley News Service

Choosing a career that matches your abilities and values from more than 22,000 U.S. occupations can be frustrating, time-consuming and costly in many ways.

At Mercer County (N.J.) Community College, computer technology is being used to help students and guidance counselors sift the mass of job descriptions, relate them to students' abilities and values and suggest careers at which students are likely to succeed.

Within 12 months, the System of Interactive Guidance and Information, SIGI, also is scheduled for use at Illinois State University and at community colleges in Pasadena, Calif.; Gainesville, Fla.; Dallas, and St. Louis.

SIGI is controlled completely by the student who works through a three-hour program at his own speed during one or more sessions, according to its developer, Educational Testing Service. ETS emphasizes that the system is the only one of its kind that is value oriented. "It gives students an appreciation of their values and their relationship to career choices," ETS says.

ETS defined 10 major values placed on occupations by students: high income, prestige, independence, helping others, security, variety, leadership, the importance of working on one's primary field, leisure and early job entry.

Students sit at a computer terminal that looks like a television screen with a typewriter keyboard. The program begins with a game requiring choices between hypothetical jobs with competing values. This leads to listing the 10 values in order of importance. New jobs and difficulties with the one selected are presented, requiring the student to revise the list.

Sixty jobs are typified by the man-made program.

When the student is satisfied that he has sifted enough possibilities and listed the best job, he reorganizes the priorities. Then he picks five values that are most important to him. Using this information, the computer lists jobs meeting those specifications.

The list may be long or short, depending on those values and a new list can be obtained by being more or less particular. Males and females with the same values get the same job list since occupations are not classified by sex.

Once occupations are selected, the computer describes their activities, working conditions and employment opportunities. This is a facet of career selection that the computer can accomplish more quickly, accurately and with more up-to-date information than guidance counselors.

The student's values and career knowledge are combined by showing him the opportunities offered by the occupations in the system to fulfill the 10 value categories. This gives the student specific information about the desirability of each job.

Another vital element in career counseling is determining chances of success in various occupations. With the college and student's help, a key course showing how well students taking it have succeeded in the entire program in a field is provided the computer. Up to 18 variables about the student, such as age and academic record, are entered.

Analyzing this information, the computer predicts the probable grade the student will get in the course based on past performance of similar students.

Then the computer helps determine the best educational program to reach the career goal depending upon the time the student wants to spend to do it. The student sees the courses required, a prediction of his ability to get through the curriculum and at what degree of success.

If he is satisfied that he has the ability, the student is shown the steps required to prepare for the field, including a community college course of study, classes available at his college, programs at higher-level institutions in his area if the career he seeks requires more than two years of college, and sources of financial aid.

Students can return to the computer to revise choices and for additional information. ETS stresses that the SIGI is open-ended.

As its use increases, providing more data and information from follow-up studies, SIGI's accuracy and value should increase.

The system costs $60,000 to $70,000 for the computer terminal and $2 to $5 an hour, depending on the number of students using it.

It could be well worth the time and cost in financial and personal terms to keep students from floundering in the sea of uncertainty surrounding career choices today.

Publicist Asks Relief From District Task

Edward J. Neumeier, publicist for the Tamalpais High School District for more than a decade, today asked to be relieved of "all public information responsibilities" aside from his adult education publicity duties.

"I feel I can no longer be public spokesman or interpreter for the Tam District," Neumeier said in a memo to Supt. Robert D. Torrey. Neumeier declined comment on the request.

Torrey said he was baffled by the request. 'Ed hasn't discussed this with me. . .I don't know fully what Ed means."

Torrey said Neumeier earns $24,975 annually and he considers Neumeier's adult education duties to be a "half-time" job.

Commuters May Support North Bay Crusade

Southern Sonomans who commute to work elsewhere still may contribute to the North Bay Unit Campaign by giving at work.

Campaign officials said yesterday that employees contributing through payroll deductions need merely to notify their employers of their desire to send the money to Sonoma.

For the past two years, the North Bay campaign had a contract with the United Bay Area Crusade under which a specified amount was given each year to the Northern group to account for northbay residents who commute to Marin or San Francisco. This year the contract expired and individual donors are to decide where their money goes, according to Arthur Lafranchi of Petaluma, president of the North Bay campaign.

"I don't have to be hit in the head more than once," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini, noting voters have rejected proposals to make the attorney an appointive position at least five times in the past.

Robbins last night drew praise from Karl E. Hoppe of 335 Hyacinth Way, a former clerk for Marin Superior Court. He called the attorney "extremely well-informed and able, and immensely fair."

The study of the city's legal needs was ordered by the council last July following a flurry of legal blunders by Robbins.

Robbins now commands a budget of $22,425. The move for a full-time elected attorney will cost about $50,000 annually, according to City Mgr. William J. Bielser's figures.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

8 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1974 EDITORIAL PAGE

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Bagley Is Qualified Controller Candidate

In the campaign for state controller, one major party candidate has raised a serious question about the financing of the other's campaign. And the other, in turn, has attempted to show his opponent guilty of conflict of interest.

The campaign spending question has been raised by Republican William T. Bagley, Marin-Sonoma assemblyman. Campaign contribution filings by his Democratic opponent, Orange County Assemblyman Kenneth Cory, show a total of $508,000 in contributions and interest-free loans from a pair of Orange County investors: Louis Cella and Richard O'Neill.

BAGLEY CLAIMS Cory already has done a favor for Cella and O'Neill by killing a bill by Assemblyman John V. Briggs, R-Fullerton, calling for a special election to fill a vacancy on the Orange County Board of Supervisors. Cella and O'Neill are hoping a Democratic governor — Edmund G. Brown Jr. — will appoint a supervisor favorable to them, Bagley charges.

As O'Neill owns 53,000 acres of developable land in Orange County, this might be worth $508,000. On the other hand, it might not. At any rate, it stretches credibility that any two men would give a half-million dollars to a candidate's campaign without expecting some return.

Cory charged Bagley with conflict of interest because the law firm of Bagley, Bianchi, Hoskins and Rosenberg had as a client Waldo Giacomini, who sold a large parcel of West Marin acreage to the state. Bagley's retort was that he had nothing to do with the matter.

ALL OF THIS serves to liven up the campaign, but it also serves to obscure the real issue: which of the two candidates, Bagley and Cory, is better qualified for the job of state controller?

The answer to that one is easy: Bagley has the qualifications.

In fact, if the controller were appointive and a search were made for the best qualified man in California to fill the job, it would probably wind up with Bill Bagley.

During his years in the legislature, Bagley has become recognized as expert on state financing and taxation. No major tax-finance bill in recent years has been put together without Bagley's assistance. He has been depended on for expertise in this field both by the Republican Reagan administration and the Democratic leadership of the legislature.

Cory, on the other hand, can point to no expertise in matters financial. His record in the Assembly includes no legislation in that line. His own party leadership does not go to Cory for advice on financing bills.

FOR THAT MATTER, it is Bagley — not Cory — who introduced a bill which reduced the oil depletion allowance in California below that allowed by the federal government, although Cory made his primary campaign as "the man the oil companies fear most."

Campaign contributions aside, Bagley has the qualifications to be state controller. Cory does not. It's as simple as that.

The Mercedes Raccoon

Raccoons are fond of shiny objcts. Tales have been told of their stealing bits of jewelry. On the night of the last full moon, the emblem that perched atop the radiator of a friend's '59 Mercedes disappeared. It must have been a lovely sight: That slender three-cornered star enclosed in a circle and literally glowing in the moonlight. Muddy raccoon tracks across the hood led up to and away from the empty emblem socket.

Somewhere in Marin today there lives a raccoon that would tell you, if raccoons could talk, that it is part owner-of a Mercedes.

Is Burton Plugging Nixon? His Mailer Makes It Appear So

It's kind of curious, but Rep. John L. Burton, D-Sixth District, plugged Richard M. Nixon in a recent mailer to his Marin and San Franciso constituents.

The mailer was a 16-page pamphlet listing consumer publications. Burton's photograph and a "dear friend" message were on the cover, including his promise that "you may be assured of my continued efforts to work for meaningful consumer legislation at the federal level."

Turn the page and there is another message, this one from the consumer's champion, former President Nixon. His inspiring thought was that such government information "should be made available to the public and to other government agencies."

WHILE WE'RE CLEANING our file of political items, we might as well add that Burton's humor ran a trifle short when his GOP challenger, Thomas O. Caylor, calimed in an Independent advertisement that Burton had refused "all opportunities to debate the issues in public view."

The ad ran on a Tuesday, one day after Burton got a letter in Washington from Caylor proposing that they debate. Burton tried that very Monday to telephone Caylor to set a date, but was unable to reach him. Burton's office, however, reached Caylor that same evening, informing him that Burton would be delighted to debate.

The ad nevertheless was run by Caylor.

A final Burton item: his San Rafael office in the Post Office's Mission Rafael Station has been remodeled again. His predecessor, William S. Mailliard, also had the former FBI quarters fixed up not long ago, but Burton found them cramped, so expanded into an adjacent office as well. Postal officials claimed they had no estimate of the cost of the work, since it is being done by Postal Service employees. It seems their work is free to the taxpayers.

ONE OF THE LEAST startling announcements of the political seadon came our way recently from John F. Musser Jr., candidate for Marin County clerk. He boldly announced he would erect "no posters or signs of any type — with the exception of headquarters or on the private property of volunteer supporters."

In other words, he set out to put signs wherever legally permissible — just like most other candidates including his opponent, Peter C. Meyer.

More startling was a press release from Evelle J. Younger, GOP nominee for reelection as attorney general. It was headlined "Massive Law Enforcement Officers Support Younger." While it's true lots of law officers are pretty massive, it still left us wondering how all the smaller cops felt about Younger.

Another View

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

An expert says presidential nominees are less likely to come from the left or the right than from the center. No, he didn't say Rockefeller Center.

A candidate for governor in Oklahoma has lost 58 pounds in his campaign. Weight-watchers hail a new miracle exercise — handshaking.

American consumers expect the government to hold down prices on things they need so they can buy more of what they don't.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Supervisors 'More Equal' Than Employees

I note from an article in your paper on Oct. 18 that county employees must rightly fly coach or tourist class on county business. However, county supervisors have no such restrictions and may fly first class if they so choose. Obviously, according to County Administrator Barrows, they choose that way most all of the time. Another case of some people being "more equal than others."

Retort In Tamalpais Fire District Fracas

You recently printed a letter, "Reports on Tamalpais Fire District Disputed." The letter, from the four members of the Tamalpais Fire Protection District board being recalled, stated "errors in fact" printed in the October, 1974, Almonte Newsletter.

Since I am the source of information for this article I felt I must rebut their letter.

My information regarding the loss of volunteers because of their inability to get along with the new chief and the information that seven of our regular firemen have tested and passed exams for other fire departments came directly from the firemen and volunteer firemen in the Tamalpais district . . .

The next item the board took issue with was related to the chief's contract. They state their rules and regulations are "undergoing revisions" and that was the reason they granted Chief Bennett a contract. . .The committee to revise the rules and regulations was formed on Feb. 8, 1971, and the chairman was Art Crebassa, one of the directors being recalled. As of December, 1973, not one meeting had been held . . .

. . .At their (the board's) public meeting of Sept. 26. . .an attorney in the audience advised the board that at least one section of the chief's contract was ambiguous. The most disturbing of these sections stated "the chief will be accredited with 10 years service for retirement purposes and accumulation of benefits." If taken literally it could mean the district would have to plan an additional 10 years of retirement monies, and in the chief's case this could amount to $36,000 . . . Therefore the board was fully aware of the $36,000 issue.

Finds Annexation Best For Country Club

I was glad to see the Oct. 15 editorial spell out the facts about annexation versus CSA (County Service Area) 19, both of which will be on the Nov. 5 ballot, and how they will affect the residents of Country Club. There have been so many false rumors and so much false information it has been hard to separate truth from fiction or fantasy.

As a member of the committee studying county service areas, I feel CSA 19 is, as the editorial says, "at least a step toward better fire protection" for some of the areas involved, since they have no alternative and it is the best they can get for the money. For the Country Club area, it is totally inadequate, and that is why I could not endorse it.

I think it is imperative to understand what second response mutual aid is. Under CSA 19 (Measures A and B) a county pumper fire truck, from its location somewhere on Puerto Suello Hill, must arrive at a fire, and then ask the city for aid with adequate equipment. If annexed (Measure E), Country Club would be served by city fire stations a little over a mile on either side of us.

CSA 19 will cost 71 cents plus the 24.5 cents we pay for county library, a total of 95.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Annexation to San Rafael would cost 92 cents (city tax rate) and in addition to fire protection it would provide us with all the other city services such as police, instead of the county sheriff which we now must depend on.

CSA 19 ignores the need of the Country Club area to improve the fire fighting water system. We now have the worst water system of any of the areas involved. Experts acknowledge this is vital to proper fire protection. Annexation faces the problem squarely and provides for improvement at a reasonable cost . . .

Dam-Created Lakes Compared To Hamburger

Your editorial against Proposition 17 favors the current trend to turn California into a cement and "plastic" state. "Wild" river or not, the Stanislaus is one of very few rivers with natural beauty easily available (for recreational purposes) to the concentrated population of the Bay Area.

I, as an artist, and my husband as a fisherman, both of us nature lovers, can attest, with thousands of others, that "reservoir-type" lakes are not beautiful nor satisfying recreationally; their sterile clay banks and artificially "stocked" waters that cover deeply once beautiful trees and rock formations are like "hamburger" compared to "steak." Just as children choose hamburger because they don't know any better, residents of California will soon not even realize what was lost to them in this ever-increasing move to cover or cement over the once natural beauty of their state. I say let's call a halt to this utterly irreparable damage to nature. What brought many of us to California in the first place will soon be lost for all time if measures like Proposition 17 fail to pass. Find other solutions to flood and power problems, but save the river for us and future generationss!

Jews In Israel Know Preciousness Of Life

I was very pleased to read the article by David Einstein that appeared in a recent issue of the I-J. Too often, it seems to me, reference to the last year's war in the Middle East has focused on the plight of the Arab people — of course, including the Palestinians — and somehow give the impression that "again" it was Israel who had been the "aggressor" and the "imperialists".

Having been in Israel during the Yom Kippur war, I have some taste of the depth of the suffering in Israel when lives are threatened. In most countries of the world, a man might continue to pursue his daily tasks and, depending upon his age and circumstances, could be almost totally oblivious of a war in which his country was involved. In Israel that is not possible. Every person, whether an old jeweler (whose grandson immediately leaves to fight) or a middle-aged cab driver (who has already fought in five wars!) whose taxi and he are willingly mobilized. For just as David Einstein suffered far less anxiety and fear than his parents halfway around the world, each person in Israel, however old or young, is so deeply involved in the preciousness of life and the devout passion of his land, that he suffers far less anxiety when he is involved in it — right in it — than he would if he were to pursue his normal life . . .

Life is precious to all people. No more to one human being than to another. The Jews of Israel, having lived with tyranny for centuries and constant war since the recent rebirth of their nation, know that better than most.

Rockefeller's Gifts Pose Sticky Problem For Congress

The question of Nelson Rockefeller's money is very difficult.

It isn't a matter of the family endowment of worthy causes. This has massively benefited humanity. It is the political and personal largesse that is troublesome.

For one thing, the family money in immense amounts has largely financed Nelson Rockefeller's campaigns for the governorship of New York, and unsuccessful attempts to gain the Republican presidential nomination. Since the American political system has dictated that vast expenditures are required to run for office, it is perhaps ethically preferable that Governor Rockefeller should be indebted only to his kinfolk, rather to the other people who usually bankroll big campaigns.

And it can be argued that all that money wouldn't have brought the governorship for Mr. Rockefeller (as it didn't the presidential nomination) if he hadn't been a very able and politically attractive person.

OF COURSE, those members of Congress who may have to vote on his vice-presedential confirmation and who have received campaign contributions from him should disqualify themselves. That's simple.

The problem arises from his generosity to others. The gifts to Henry Kissinger, Judge Morehouse, and Dr. William J. Ronan have surfaces. I am privy to no secrets, but I'll guess that there were many more. For some time it has been commonly believed that the former governor would help compatible people stay in public life who found it financially impossible to do so without assistance.

It is a fact of public life, however undesirable, that some people need more money than their official jobs pay. Many have augumented their income — and I mean many — on or over the fringes of legality. A great many members of Congress who will vote on the Rockefeller confirmation have earned maney on the side.

It is quite possible that getting help from Nelson Rockefeller was more honorable than many other devices. But nobody can deny the bond of allegiance set up by the benevolence.

If Dr. Ronan's service for the Rockefeller's involved any special favors by the New York Port Authority for David Rockefeller and the Chase Manhattan Bank, this situation ought to be fully clarified and taken into account.

BUT THE REAL influence of the Rockefeller maney, and the almost feudal loyalties it created, is far more subtle. The power is very real. It cannot be denied. It may have been exercised, for the most part, in the public interest. But it was the Rockefellers who decided what was in the public interest.

Nelson Rockefeller has been a very notable governor. He has administered the second largest political entity in the nation longer than anybody else. He has employed and financed very able people. He has set up high significant studies of national and world policies.

Thus he has more administrative experience in high office and more substantive knowledge than most other men in public life. This makes him a very impressive candidate for the non-elected vice-president.

And yet . . . And yet . . . All that money has created all that power and it is difficult to measure. Difficult to evaluate, both in terms of power and of ethics.

A GENERATION AGO, no such man would have been a likely candidate for high public office in the United States. Wealth alone probalbly would have disbarred him — made him automatically suspect. But the Rockefeller maney, so to speak, has been laundered by three generations of charity, and of high public service by the Rockefeller sons. Other millionaires, and millionaires' sons, have become politically acceptable.

The Rockefeller motives may well have been entirely public spirited. The golden handshakes may have been as unsinister as Nelson's "Hiya, feller."

But the power is there. And the Senate's problem, as it ponders the ethics and the politics of confirmation, is very sticky.

Caramanlis Out To Lead Greece On The Road Back

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

On the last day of August, 1974, Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis called upon Greeks to demonstrate "maturity" in their search for the road back to democracy after seven years of military dictatorship.

For the volatile Greeks his words had special significance.

FIFTY YEARS AGO, at one of the many peaks in its history of political turbulence, Greece went through a relatively short period as a republic. The republican experiment began in 1924.

From 1936 to 1941, it lived under the dictatorship of Marshal John Metaxas. From 1944 through 1949, thousands died in a bloody civil war.

For eight years, until 1963 under the premiership of Caramanlis, it went through a golden age of great economic progress during which it joined West European institutions under the constitution of 1952.

After that came moanting political chaos, and military intervention on April 21, 1967.

ON JULY 15, 1974, the Greek military rulers made the mistake of participating in a coup against archbishop Makarios, president of Cyprus. Swift military intervention by Turkey followed, and the Greek regime, already faced with huge economic and political problems, collapsed.

The military called Caramanlis back from his self-imposed exile in Paris and on July 24, he took the oath of office as premier.

An almost legendary aura of success is associated with Caramanlis' early history as premier, and it is doubtful whether anyone else could have administered the dose of bitter medicine the Greeks had to swallow after the Cyprus affair and survived either street demonstration or new military intervention.

BEFORE HIS RESIGNATION in 1963, Caramanlis had crossed swords frequently with the Greek royal family, once telling King Paul — father of the deposed King Constantine — that it was his job to reign but not to rule. His resignation had followed another tiff with the king.

Upon his return he demonstrated again the toughness of his fiber.

This was his release of political prisoners and restoration of Greek political parties, including the Communists.

As a gesture to the political left, he withdrew Greece's military forces from NATO, but retained ties to NATO's political arm. The military withdrawal, he indicated, might not be permanent, depending upon ultimate settlement of the Cyprus problem.

American nuclear weapons, meanwhile, remain in Greece.

ALONG WITH CIVIL rights, the Caramanlis government restored the 1952 constitution which had been in effect before the 1967 coup.

The government also announced it would seek full membership in the European Common Market and closer ties with Western Europe.

On Oct. 8, the Caramanlis government resigned to clear the way for elections on Nov. 17. Forty-five days later, a plebiscite will determine the future of King Constantine, now living in exile in Britain.

Caramanlis and his new Democratic party, as might be supposed, are strong early favorites.

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .

"The idea that a tax on something keeps anybody from buying it, is a lot of 'hooey.' They put it on gasoline all over the country and it hasn't kept a soul at home a single night or day. You could put a dollar a gallon on it, and still a pedestrian couldn't cross the street in safety without armor.

"You can talk lack of confidence, but the biggest handicap to a return to prosperity, is that there is an election this fall." — March 17, 1932.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By THERON NEWELL

Half-Opened Freeway Is Already Affecting Novato

Opening of the northbound lanes of the freeway bypass in Novato had an effect on the community on the first day.

Someone inquired where the Ford garage was. The person thought it was right beside the highway and didn't see any sign of it. That would be right because it is on the old highway, and the driver was about half a mile to the east.

A northbound motorist now does not even know that he is going through a city. It is all open space on both sides of the freeway.

THE OLD HIGHWAY route is a strange sight. Heavy traffic, especially during the rush hours, still crowds the southbound lanes, but the northbound lanes are practically deserted.

The state and city should immediately do something about the traffic lights. For example, there is no use in holding up southbound traffic while the left turn green light northbound is on far longer than is necessary.

With the removal of through northbound traffic, some restaurants and gas stations will see how much of their business came off the highway. When the southbound lanes are open, they will have a positive picture of the amount of traffic which the freeway generated.

But the old highway is potentially one of the most prosperous business streets in this area.

It is wide and will be beautiful with the islands in the center. With the through traffic taken off it, local residents will find it easier to get to old town. Grant Avenue eventually may have to take a back seat to the wide commercial street that is still half a highway.

One employee at the Novato City Hall made a goof. She directed people coming from the south to come to the second traffic light and turn right to reach the city hall. That will now put them in Cloverdale.

LAST WEEK, residents presented the Novato City Council with petitions with 433 signatures, asking that the location of the proposed civic center be restudied and other sites examined.

It also asked that a choice of these should be submitted to the voters.

Something happened to the petitions. At least someone got his or her hands on them and copied the names of those signing them.

A woman, who refused to identify herself called several of the signers, asking why they had signed the petition. Peggy Lehigh, city clerk, vows that it was not her nor anyone else in city hall.

That brings up the question on who would have so much interest in keeping the proposed civic center east of Highway 101 that he or she would take the names from the petition and phone them to see why they had signed.

Gambling Ring Brings Sentence

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Reputed Mafia boss Peter J. Milano, 50, and sentenced yesterday to four years in federal prison for his part in a floating gambling ring in the San Fernando Valley.

Codefendants Martin C. Calaway, 47, and Luigi Gelfuso, 48, were also sentenced to four-year prison terms by U.S. District Court Judge Jesse W. Curtis for operating what he termed a "gambling enterprise."

The operation involved rigged machines installed in a number of San Fernando Valley homes.

ART BUCHWALD

Soon-To-Be-Unemployed Columnist Needs 'Win' Button

Dear Mr. President,

I'm having a helluva time. I watched you on television the other night while waiting to see the World Series, and your message really got to me. Ever since I heard you tell us that the best way to fight inflation was not to spend money and not to waste anything, I've been trying to follow your advice with very questionable results.

For example, the next morning I went down to the supermarket and bought some soup bones. I made the mistake of telling the butcher I wasn't going to buy any steak until the price came down.

That evening I received a visit from two members of the cattleman's association, who said they had heard about what I said in the supermarket, and they wanted me to know that they were having the worst year in their history and if I didn't give a damn about the food industry in this country, they wouldn't give a damn about me. I explained to them that you had said the only way to fight inflation was to live within my budget — and you know what they did? They shot two steers in the head on my front lawn. It cost me $89.50 to have the carcasses carted away.

THE NEXT DAY I had a call from an automobile dealer who told me the new models had just arrived at the showroom and advised me to come down right away. I told him that, because of your plea in Kansas City, I decided to forego the luxury of a 1975 car until the economy was straightened out.

An hour later three officers of the United Auto Workers Union broke into my office and asked me what I thought I was doing. I told them the car I owned was perfectly satisfactory, and I really didn't need a new car. Well, you should have heard what they said, Mr. President. They accused me of creating unemployment in the most important industry in America and shouted that if everyone thought the way I did we would have the greatest depression in the history of the country. I tried to calm them down by pointing out that everyone in this country had to bite the bullet — but they were so infuriated, they threw a chair through my window, which cost me $56 to replace.

Well, I got home that night and had a visit from Richard Kaltenborn, who works in a children's clothing store. Richard had just been laid off from the store because no one was buying clothing. Ever since your message, they haven't sold two pairs of jeans. The store told Richard if people started buying again, he would be rehired. The reason he came to see me is that he was strapped for cash and asked if I could loan him $400. I had no choice but to loan him the money since we hadn't bought children's clothing ourselves, and I felt responsible for Richard's unemployment.

Just as Richard left I received a call from Mr. Rumstead, who owns the local theater. He wanted to know if I was coming down to see "The Great Gatsby" that night. I said no, we weren't, because we were fighting inflation.

"That does it," he said. "I'm closing the theater for good."

BECAUSE THE KIDS have no movie theater to go to any more, they're now hanging around the house with their friends, and it has cost me $45 for beer and pretzels alone.

Of course, we're not going to go near a store for Christmas, as that is really throwing money down the drain. Somehow the newspaper I work for found out about it, and I got a call from the advertising department. The man said if we're not going to buy anything for Christmas, they're not going to get advertising and they won't be able to pay me for the column. I'll be very frank with you, Mr. President, this could put me in a class with my friend Kaltenborn.

But this is neither here nor there. What I'm really writing to you about is, could I please have my WIN flag to fly over my house, because I want everybody to know how easy it is to fight inflation? — Economically yours, A. B.

FORMER TEAMMATE — Silas McGee, retired longshoreman and member of the high school football team captained by now President Gerald Ford, sits in the sun on a San Francisco park bench and ponders whether to ride the rails to a White House reunion for the team, set for Thanksgiving. (UPI Telephoto)

Former Ford Teammate May Ride Rails To Fete

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A retired longshoreman who played high school football with President Ford says he may have to hop a freight train to get to his team's Thanksgiving reunion at the White House.

"If they don't send me a ticket, I'm gonna grab me an armful of freight train," Silas McGee said yesterday. "That's my thing. I used to be a hobo.

"I'll ride east by way of the southern route. It's warmer. And get off in Baltimore, so I can clean up at the bus station, change my clothes, make myself presentable."

McGee, 61, the same age as the President, was the only black on the football team of South High School in Grand Rapids, Mich., in 1930. He played halfback and left end.

He remembers Ford as the star center and captain of the football team. "We called him Junie, because he was Gerald Ford, Junior — his dad had a paint factory."

The last game McGee played with the future President was on Thanksgiving Day, 1930.

"It was freezing cold, with six to eight inches of snow on the deck — the gridiron. Jeez, it was cold! The game ended in a scoreless tie.

"Junie was a sight to behold. A big shock of blond hair, and when he hollered at us, 'Come on, fellas!' it was like a — how do you say it? — a clarion call to battle. Just like the cavalry in the movies."

Court Stalls Nixon Papers Takeover

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge has ordered the government to delay any final agreement on turning over to former President Richard M. Nixon any of his White House tapes and documents.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey yesterday heard testimony from a group of historians and reporters asking for a temporary restraining order on the turnover. Nixon's attorney, J. Herbert Miller, argued the former president needed access to the material.

Richey, admitting no one would be satisfied with his ruling, said Nixon, now recuperating from phlebitis at San Clemente, can use his documents — still in Washington — "for the sole purpose" to prepare any testimony which he might give in the Watergate cover-up trial.

"He (Nixon) shall be allowed to make copies," Richey ruled.

Judge John J. Sirica has asked for a medical report in three weeks on Nixon's condition and his ability to appear in court at the Watergate cover-up trial.

The executive director of the American Historical Society said today his group "in general" had no political reasons for seeking a delay in the agreement.

"Our interest really is in the preservation of those papers to make sure that historians, political scientists and others will have access to them in the course of discharging their responsibilities as historians," said Mack Thompson on the NBC Today show.

Richey's ruling Monday: Prevented the General Services Administration, the federal agency supervising the materials, from "disclosing, transferring, disposing or otherwise making known to any person, be he-she private citizen or public official."

Stopped the GSA from putting into effect its Sept. 6 agreement with Nixon on future custody.

Nixon asked in that suit that GSA be forced to stick to the agreement that the former President owns and controls his White House documents and may take custody of them, subject to certain government restrictions, over the next five years.

A group composed of several professional associations and a number of individuals in each field, contended the GSA agreement would deny them and the American people — perhaps irrevocably — access to important historical materials that by rights belong to the public.

Brown Woos Elderly; Flournoy Hits Charge

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

FRESNO (UPI) — Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr. last night promised old people he would help them in their need for better medical care and housing.

Brown, his party's nominee for governor at the Nov. 5 election, told about 150 elderly persons he would work for a state housing authority and financial assistance to build low and middle income housing.

"We have a chance to put a new team in Sacramento," the 36-year-old secretary of state told the receptive, applauding residents of Senior Citizens Village in Fresno.

"We can take a good, hard look at Medi-Cal and see some of the abuses that have gone on in that program ... and make it deliver health care services more effectively and efficiently," he told the old people, some in wheelchairs and others cupping their ears to hear.

Meanwhile in Los Angeles, Brown's opponent, Houston I. Flournoy, has labeled as "totally irresponsible" an accusation by his gubernatorial opponent that a Flournoy supporter was involved in a political shakedown.

The Republican nominee said last night the charge by Brown had "no substance" and was "a desperate effort to save what must be a floundering campaign ... there can't be any other reason to stoop to that kind of thing."

Flournoy was referring to an accusation by Brown during their debate last weekend that John Mayfield, chairman of the Northern Regional Coastline Commission, had obtained campaign donations from timber companies which must seek permits from the commission.

The assertion caught Flournoy by surprise and he asked Brown to offer proof. Brown later acknowledged he had no direct proof.

Since the debate, Flournoy aides have traced the contributions and found they were solicited by Jim Nealis, a Flournoy backer working with the Humboldt County Chamber of Commerce. The donations did not involve Mayfield or the Coastline commission, Flournoy said.

Today, Flournoy began what one aide described as a three-day "hornstop tour of the Los Angeles urban sprawl" which will take him from a health clinic in Watts to "the magnolia covered steps of Burbank."

During campaign stops in Sacramento and Fresno, Brown hammered away at President Ford's proposed 5 per cent surtax and said his opponent Houston I. Flournoy was not against it.

"He is not against the surcharge," Brown said. "He just wants it to start a little higher. He wants to start it between $10,000 and $15,000 if you are an individual and $20,000 to $25,000 if you are married."

After telling 100 persons attending a California Cosmetology Legislative and Education Committee luncheon that the surtax was a "misguided effort toward the American people" he toured the California Almond Growers Exchange in Sacramento.

"Hello," Brown said to women workers as they sifted through almonds passing on conveyor belts. "Hello my name is Jerry Brown."

Speedy Trip By Concorde

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The British-French Concorde supersonic jetliner flew from Mexico City to San Francisco in a record time of 2 hours and 19 minutes yesterday.

The needle-nosed aircraft, which can fly at speeds of up to 1,400 miles an hour, made the 1,881-mile trip 21 minutes faster than had been estimated.

The Concorde's flight was at subsonic speeds over land with supersonic speeds limited to its path over the Pacific Ocean in accordance with Mexican and U.S. regulations.

A group of conservationists handed out protest literature at the airport, asserting that supersonic planes use twice as much fuel and add to air pollution.

But the British and French designers and builders of the Concorde said the allegations had been proven untrue.

A. Alan Hill of San Rafael, Republican nominee in the Ninth Assembly District, has urged that the state's transportation budget be required to be approved by the Legislature.

The transportation spending plan now is set by the Department of Transprotation without legislative review.

The change is long overdue and would provide the people "with the opportunity to participate in the decision-making process," Hill said.

Baritone Byron Jones of San Rafael and his daughter, soprano Rebecca Jones, will perform in concert at 4 p.m. Nov. 3 at the Presbyterian Church of San Rafael.

The event, which will feature a variety of works, is being performed in memory of Jones' father, opera singer Oliver Jones, who died last June.

Proceeds will go to the church's music fund.

Other artists appearing will be Elisabeth Roberts, Patrick Loomis and Margaret Oakley, pianists; JoAnn Oakley, and Wendy Tomlinson, cellists; Ken Sugita and Kurt Giambastiani, violinists, and Judy Hobbs, violist.

Kent State Trial Warning Given

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Federal Judge Frank J. Battisti today warned attorneys and newsmen at the trial of eight former Ohio National Guardsmen charged in the killing of four Kent State University students and wounding of nine others that statements made outside the courtroom may be prejudicial.

Battisti told the two members of the jury that have been selected so far that they were not to concern themselves with a statement by former Guardsman James Pierce that he had lost his job on a construction project in Florida because of the amount of time the trial is expected to take.

"Statements outside the court do not concern us in the extent as they may be prejudicial in this case," Battisti said. "The reporters should know better and counsel should instruct its clients not to make statements of this kind to the news media."

The judge also had attorneys begin questioning jurors in succession to speed up the selection process.

Battisti predicted yesterday that the trial would take about six weeks.

"The entire Ohio National Guard is not on trial here, just certain members of it," said Battisti in recessing court yesterday. "The Kent State University student body is not on trial. The legality of the Vietnam war is not on trial."

The shootings occurred May 4, 1970 during a student protest of the war.

Earlier the judge had read the indictments returned last April by a federal grand jury to the panel of prospective jurors and then cautioned them "the indictment is not any evidence whatever against the defendants."

"The government has the burden of proof —that burden never shifts to the defense," Battisti said. "Each defendant is presumed innocent until the government proves its case beyond a reasonable doubt in the mind of each juror."

Five defendants —William E. Perkins, 28, Canton, Ohio; James E. Pierce, 29, Amelia Island, Fla.; Ralph W. Zoller, 27, Mantua, Ohio; and James D. McGee, 27, and Lawrence A. Shafer, 29, both of Ravenna, Ohio —face maximum sentences of life imprisonment if convicted in the deaths of four students demonstrating against the Southeast Asia war.

Leon H. Smith, 27, Beach City, Ohio; Mathew J. McManus, 29, West Salem, Ohio; and Barry W. Morris, 29, Kent, Ohio, could be sentenced to up to one year imprisonment and fined up to $1,000 if found guilty.

GAZER'S GUIDE

Jupiter Is The Brightest Star

By DR. THOMAS D. NICHOLSON
Director, The American Museum of Natural History, New York
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Nov. 2: Mercury, which passed between the earth and sun eight days ago, is now stationary and resumes its direct (eastward) motion in the morning sky.

Nov. 3: Since early July, Jupiter has been moving to the right (westerly) among the faint stars in Aquarius. Now, after passing through opposition (opposite the sun, from earth) in early September, it resumes its direct motion (to the left, or eastward), retracing the path it has traveled since July.

It has also become, of course, a very prominent evening star, dominating the sky at dusk.

Nov. 4: The weak and undistinguished Taurid meteor shower reaches maximum. The radiant is in the western sky after midnight.

Nov. 4-5: Saturn rises with the waning gibbous moon about three hours after sunset on the night of the 4th and remains near the moon until dawn of the fifth. The moon will be nearest to the planet about 4:00 a.m., eastern daylight time, when conjunction occurs.

Nov. 6: Venus is in superior conjunction with the sun, in line with but beyond it. The planet now swings to the left of the sun and becomes an evening star, but don't expect to see much of it until January.

Nov. 7: The moon is at perigee, nearest to earth this month.

Nov. 10: Mercury is now at its greatest distance to the right (west) of the sun. This means that it rises before the sun in the morning sky. Its position relative to the sun raises Mercury well above the horizon by sunrise, so this is called a favorable elongation.

Look for the planet in the east about an hour before sunrise, but don't confuse it with the bright star Spica, in Virgo, also rising nearby. The two will be about equal in brightness and appearance, but Spica will be higher.

Nov. 17: The Leonid Meteor shower, one of the most famous in history, reaches maximum this morning, with its radiant just rising in the east about midnight. This is the shower that produced bright meteors by the thousands in 1799, 1833, 1866, and again in 1966.

During most years, as with this, you might expect to see about 15 shower meteors per hour, but often very bright ones. There will be no moon in the sky from midnight on, when viewing conditions are best.

Nov. 21: The moon is at apogee, farthest from earth.

Nov. 22: At dush tonight, you will see the moon, just past quarter, well up in the south. The bright object beneath it brighter than any star visible, is Jupiter.

Nov. 24: Mercury and Mars are in conjunction today, but the event will be of interest only to technical planet followers. Both of them are morning stars, but the eastern sky, by the time they are rising, is so bright that they cannot be seen.

Nov. 29: A total eclipse of the moon occurs today, the third eclipse of the year and the first one to be visible in North America (but only in limited areas.)

The beginning of the eclipse, when the moon enters the earth's shadow, will be visible shortly before moonset along the Pacific Coast, in western Canada, and in Alaska, but in most places (except Alaska) the moon will set while the eclipse is in progress.

The fourth eclipse of the year, a partial eclipse of the sun, will be visible generally throughout North America next month.

All month: Jupiter is the only planet visible in the evening sky this month, but it is a good one, bright and easily visible, well up in the south at dusk, setting about midnight or later. Venus is also an evening star after the 6th, but it sets too early to be seen.

Of the planets in the morning sky, only Saturn will be seen easily, rising in the east about three hours after sundown, and still well up in the southwest at dawn. Mercury may be seen as a morning star, low in the east an hour or so before sunrise from the 7th to the 12th. But Mars rises too late in the morning to be seen before the rising sun brightens the eastern sky.

Banking System Remains Sound, Burns Asserts

HONOLULU (UPI) — Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, says that "despite all the strains recently experienced in credit markets, the banking system remains strong and sound."

Burns told the American Bankers Association in a keynote address yesterday that "There is no reason to doubt the ability of our banks to meet their commitments."

Burns said "in the past year, we have had the two largest bank failures in the nation's history."

But, he said it was equally important to recognize that these failures did not cause any loss to depositors. Nor did they have serious repercussions on other banks or businesses, he said.

Wife Limited In Self Defense

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (UPI) — A wife being beaten by her husband may fight back, but has no right to kill him, the West German Supreme Court ruled yesterday.

The court confirmed a sentence of 30 months imprisonment for a woman who stabbed her husband to death while defending herself against his attack.

The woman had taken action beyond that necessary to fend off the aggressive husband, the Court said.

Witch's Broom Due In Marin Thursday

The Grand Witch, the Great Pumpkin and a television personality will arrive by helicopter in the Northgate Mall parking lot at 3 p.m. Thursday afternoon to signal the opening of Marin's 11th annual Haunted House.

Michael Douglas, son of screen star Kirk Douglas and co-star of TV's "Streets of San Francisco," will speak briefly to the crowd and make the first official tour through the Haunted House. He will be the first of an expected 25,000 visitors during the seven days the house will be open to the public.

Also on hand for the opening ceremonies will be Winnie the Pooh, Mr. Bumbleberry and the Bayou Boogie Band.

Xavier and Morton, a magic act now appearing at San Francisco's Magic Cellar, will entertain.

One young person in the crowd will be given a ride in the helicopter by its pilot, Lu Hurley, KGO traffic reporter.

The Haunted House is an annual Hallowe'en presentation of members of the Jolly Rogers chapter of the Children's Home Society, California's largest non-profit volunteer supported child welfare agency. Proceeds from the Haunted House benefit the society.

The public is welcome — and comes in droves — to visit the spookily decorated rooms of the Haunted House. Admission is 50 cents per person, with witching hours set from 3 to 9 p.m. weekdays, noon to 9 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday through Oct. 30.

GENERATION RAP

Parents Can't Help Worrying About Teen-Agers In Autos

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I'm 15, and my folks won't let me in cars with guys. I know a 17-year-old boy, but when he asks me to go for a ride, it's "No!" They like him okay, and let him come to see me. But on dates, we walk!

How can I convince them cars aren't fatal to teen-age girls? — 15-YEAR-OLD BABY

P.S. He's a careful driver.

DEAR 15:

Maybe your parents would feel better if instead of "going for a ride," your boyfriend took you to a specific place — and not too far away.

"Riding around" is a scary phrase, but if they know you'll be on the road only a few minutes, they might change that "No" to "Yes." — SUE

DEAR PARENTS OF "15":

All teen-age boys don't drive like maniacs or park like sex fiends. If you like your daughter's boyfriend, trust him to get there and back. You'll have to lift that no-car rule SOMETIME, and it might as well be with a careful driver. — HELEN

RAP:

I'm going with a 19-year-old guy who is real neat and treats me fairly decent, except he has a bad temper. If he gets mad he either gives me the silent treatment or whacks me.

We were watching TV and I was cracking my gum. He told me to stop because I was acting like a little kid. I wasn't about to be bossed, so I cracked it one more time, and he spanked me, real hard.

He has spanked me for biting my nails, not being ready for a date, and on my 16th birthday he gave me 20 slaps in front of my friends. Did you ever hear of a birthday spanking, Sue? Boy, was I sore!

My friends say I should drop him as he'll become a wife-beater. Should I? —LIKES HIM BUT. . .

LHB:

Birthday spankings are traditional but not much fun. He must have been carried away, giving you the four extras.

Other whacks? If he insists on being your disciplinarian, I'd suggest: don't stay around for this type of unequal relationship. — SUE

DEAR L:

It appears your b.f. "gets carried away" often!

Tell him either his temper goes, or you do.

RAP:

My girlfriends all wear pants to school, but I like short skirts. The guys stand at the bottom of the stairs and make dumb remarks. Haven't they ever seen legs before? How can I stop them? — LEGGY

LEGGY:

If you really want to stop the stares, wear pants. — H AND S

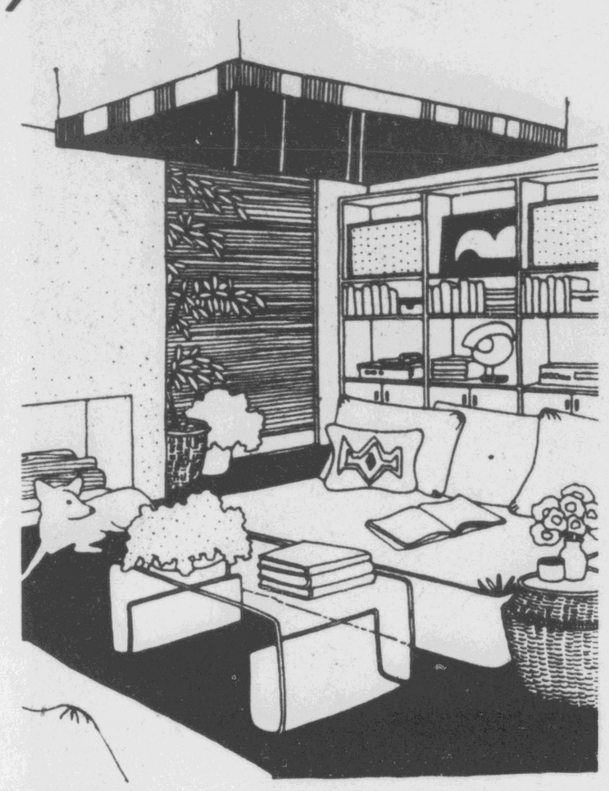
DESIGN FOR PEOPLE

The Anti-Furnishing Wall And Ways To Overcome It

By EMILY MALINO
(Distributed by United Features Syndicate)



In every home there is a room without a proper furniture wall — a room, perhaps, where windows or doors make the wall itself impossible to use for furniture.

You've seen the master bedroom where there's no place for beds or the family room where the bookshelves don't fit or the children's room where only one bed fits comfortably.

Most common of all, however, is the living room without a sofa wall. Maybe the wall has been exchanged for a picture window or a dining alcove. You may have gained a lot of light or a view, you may have acquired a place to eat, but you have definitely lost a wall.

If this happens to you, as it has to me and to many folks I know, cheer up. There is no rule that requires you to place your furniture against a wall. In fact, some pieces of furniture look better free-standing, and an island grouping often provides a better traffic pattern through the space.

The problem with floating furniture is providing an anchor to hold it down.

Of course you can do this with color — by using a strong or dominant color or upholstery against a neutral background — or the exact reverse of this idea. Or you can do it with a rug that defines the area of the furniture, almost like a raft or a float in a lake or pool.

YOU CAN also do it from above. In a contemporary house I worked on, the living room had no real wall for furnishing. The fireplace and a window on either side of it took up one whole wall; a much-needed storage wall held the music equipment, books and a bar so essential for day-to-day living. The third wall was the entry and there was no fourth wall, this space leading directly into a dining area and the kitchen.

Floating furniture was a basic requirement. A spacious platform was carpeted in an off-white linen, the same fabric covering the huge, squishy cushion and pillows on top of it. This inviting seat flanks the fireplace and becomes complete with a see-through coffee table and chairs.

Above the whole island is a generous canopy, suspended by chains about 12 inches from the ceiling. This is covered in silver mylar, a reflective coated mirror-like material glued to a plywood face and sides.

Essentially a shallow, upside-down box, the canopy also contains four fluorescent light bulbs which create a handsome flow on the ceiling above it, lighting the entire room from a single source; a dimmer for the wall switch makes the glow adjustable from bright to subtle.

More than just a big light fixture, however, the canopy provides a sense of place for the furniture grouping. A pearl-grey carpet has the same mirror-like color, uniting ceiling with floor to make a three-dimensional background for a pale cluster geared for reading or socializing on its own island.

Teen Death Try Often Repetitive

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A significant majority of adolescents hospitalized for attempted suicide have tried to kill themselves before, according to a recent medical study.

Dr. Melvin Stern of Montefiore Hospital, Bronx, N.Y., said the survey showed 69 per cent of adolescent suicide attempt cases had a record of more than two prior incidents.

Stern addressed the report to the Society of Adolescent Medicine, meeting in San Francisco in conjunction with the American Academy of Pediatrics' 43rd annual convention. The five-day meeting ends tomorrow.

Suicide is one of the leading causes of adolescent death, second only to accidental death.

According to Stern, who conducted the study with Drs. I. F. Litt and M. I. Cohen of Montefiore Hospital, 71 per cent of the youths who tried to commit suicide had undergone previous psychiatric care.

"An adolescent hospitalized for a suicide attempt is clearly a risk for future attempts," he said, "but we're missing the boat."

The doctor said such cases should be an opportunity for ongoing psychiatric intervention — something of a more aggressive nature than had apparently been tried in the past.

Stern said the profile of a typical adolescent who attempted suicide was a 16-year-old female dropout who was unemployed and was living with a minimum of only one parent. Sixty-five per cent of those who tried to take their own lives used sleeping pills or other internal drugs or poisons, he said.

The Montefiore Hospital report also included a study on the possibility that adolescent accident cases showed latent self destructive behavior, but he said this proved not to be the case.

ART REVIEW

Watercolors Offer Wide Scope

By ADA GARFINKEL

"On location" painting is a favorite activity for many artists.

For one thing, landscapes, seascapes, historical sites or other scenic vistas have a special appeal. For another, variations which can be found in terrain, seasons and weather offer a wide scope for mood and tempo.

The Marin County Watercolor Society, four years old this year, has been holding a number of semi-monthly, informal "paint outs" around the Bay Area for the group's more than 100 artists.

With its quick-drying properties, watercolor is a particularly suitable medium for outdoor work.

It is both a demanding and a flexible medium. It can be crisply and electrically sparkling with white highlights on heavy, dry paper.or seductively fluid — "juicy" — on a wet surface. The artist must work quickly and spontaneously to record the essense of form, light, space, and color.

Charlotte Britton's "Mendocino Coastline" is a fine example of dynamic flux at its best. Alternating opaque wedges of buff and ochre tones slightly tinted with apricot create a sunlit, dipping coastline. Overlay washes of violet blue and cool green define the water area and its reflections, while shorthand strokes of red and brown create outlines of houses, leaving the sparkling white of the paper to serve as sun-lit stucco or siding.

A. B. Echols' "American Flat" divides the format into swinging arcs with dark, thin lines. An overall neutral tint within each segment, and the addition of a greenish tone and texture in the lower left area defines sky, distant and near planes and in-and-out movement with great economy.

Blanc's "Legion of Honor," exhibits precision in architectural detail while at the same time retaining a whimsical poetry in recording children at play. An aura of delightful enchantment surrounds this artist's "Haunted House," seen as if in a dream sequence.

Washes of red and orange bleeding into each other, and a reflective pool of deep green add up to a romantic atmosphere for Barbara Polach's "Old Quarry." And Frances Barker's "Sand and Sea Grasses," in deep purple and green, is a study in curvilinear rhythms and mood.

Old St. Hilary's Church appears twice, first painted at close range by Glenna Boland with emphasis on the effect of sunlight on its exterior and surrounding wild grasses.

Gwen Sondheimer, on the other hand, portrays it looking up from a lower elevation with emphasis on its Gothic architecture.

"Old Brick" by Lisa Guthrie and "Laines' Grocery" by Russ Ralsten are two views of ghost towns. Miss Guthrie handles her subject expressionistically; Ralsten, objectively.

Margaret Slusher's "Hidden Valley," Mary McKinnon's "Richardson's Bay," and Leola Dixon's "LaPlaya," are other works of special interest.

This exhibit will continue to Nov. 12, and may be seen weekdays from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Saturdays. The Ross Valley Medical Clinic is located at 1350 South Eliseo Drive.

Drake Senior Wins In Writing Contest

By LAURE McCOURT
Drake High News Bureau

Sir Francis Drake High School senior Anne Rzepiela, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Rzepiela of San Anselmo, has been named winner of a 1974 Achievement Award in Writing by the National Council of Teachers of English.

The award is the result of a nationwide writing contest held each January.

Last spring, Miss Rzepiela was nominated by the English department to represent Drake in the competition.

After nomination, the student submitted samples of her best writing, including an autobiographical sketch, and wrote a one-hour impromptu essay. These materials were evaluated by state judging teams of college and high school English teachers directed by state coordinators.

The nation's schools participating in the program this year nominated over 6,200 juniors for the NCTE citations. Of that number only about 850 winners were chosen. They represent schools from the 50 states, the District of Columbia, and American schools abroad.

The council recommends these students, now seniors, for college scholarships in 1975, should they need such assistance. The names of these students are sent to admissions officers and English department chairmen at U.S. two-year colleges, four-year colleges, and universities.

The NCTE sends certificates of commendation to all winners and to their high school English departments, reports Jack Hayes, principal.

Mexican Dancing To Feature Contrast

The contrasting cultures of Mexico's history — from the 27,000 year old Yaqui Indian "Deer Dance" to polkas of the late 1800s — will be demonstrated by Ballet Folklorico Mexicano in a dance program Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Marin Veterans Building.

Seven colorfully-costumed dance productions, under the direction of Graciela Tapia of Los Angeles, are planned.

New York's Integration Needs Told

NEW YORK (UPI) — The City's Human Rights Commission, in a move aimed at heading off possible racial clashes at the city's public schools, yesterday released a list of recommendations to prevent confrontations and ease neighborhood fears.

The commission report detailed the case history of violence at one Brooklyn high school and urged the board of education to take action now to avoid future clashes similar to the recent racial violence in Boston.

The 57-page report, based on a study of racial disorders that led to five arrests last December at Madison High School in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn, recommended:

Establish a "technical assistance unit" in the board of education to develop guidelines to help schools improve race relations.

Stronger efforts to involve minority students in extracurricular activities.

Establishment of ethnic studies programs that focus on white ethnic groups as well as blacks and Puerto Ricans.

Faculty seminars on integration.

The report disputed the contention that the incidents at Madison were caused by "a few bad apples" or the lack of adequate security measures.

The report said "the commission finds that the unusually widespread failure to recognize the existence of problems whose content was in part racial was itself a contributory factor to these problems."

Despite its specific recommendations, the report also said: "The fact is, we know how to integrate — through redistricting, reassignment of students, busing. What we do not know is how to make integration work on a permanent basis."

Rights Group Split Over Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — The Congress on Racial Equality yesterday came out against court-ordered busing to desegregate city schools, saying it prefers black control in the black neighborhoods.

The CORE statement put the group in direct conflict with the NAACP, which filed the class action suit leading to the federal court order to bus 18,235 students. The NAACP has consistently supported the order.

Mary Dennison, acting national director of CORE, said "we feel that busing became the issue because no alternative to achieve quality education was available."

"CORE calls for desegregation through community control because the most obnoxious feature of segregation is not the fact that black and white children are not sitting next to each other," she said.

"The fact that whites control schools in the black community as well as in their own is the feature of segregation which is intolerable."

Ms. Dennison said she will request an immediate end to the busing ordered by U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity June 21. The judge now is drafting a long-range school desegregation order for next fall.

Cardinal Humberto Medeiros, Roman Catholic bishop of the Boston archdiocese, yesterday said he "appreciates the feelings of those who do not want their children bused."

However, he said, "No other means to achieve integration has been discovered and I am for integration of schools."

Metal detectors were used today to search students entering four high schools.

School officials said three knives were confiscated at Hyde Park High School as a result of the searches using a walk-through type detector, much like those used at airports for security checks.

Officials did not identify the other three schools where searches were made but said hand-held detectors were used at those locations.

Three observers from the Detroit Police Department joined Boston Police Commissioner Robert J. diGrazia, former Novato police chief, at Hyde Park to observe the use of the detector.

Racial incidents were reported in and around a number of schools yesterday, including two robbery attempts.

One robbery victim, a 14-year-old white student at Grover Cleveland School, was treated and released for a knife wound on the hand. The second victim, who was threatened with a carving fork at the Curley School, was not injured.

Officials also reported that a white girl was injured when attacked by a black boy at an annex to South Boston High School and a white girl was threatened by a black male with a knife at English High School.

Attendance citywide increased to 77.8 per cent, the highest figure since Oct. 3, when it was 80.3 per cent.

Openings Available On Tahoe Bus Outing

Some spaces are still available on the Corte Madera Recreation Department's bus trip to the Lake Tahoe area, scheduled Oct. 26-27, according to recreation director Jacqueline A. Branch.

The bus will visit Ormsby House in Carson City, Nev., then continue to the Wayside Inn at South Tahoe Saturday night. The trip costs $21.95, with a refund of $6 and four drinks at the destination.

Hayakawa To Give Speech In Petaluma

S.I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley, former president of San Francisco State University, will discuss "The Businessman As Revolutionary" at 8 p.m. today at the Veterans Memorial Building in Petaluma.

The talk is sponsored by Sonoma Republican women seeking the election of John Harmer as Lieutenant Governor and Houston I. Flournoy as Governor.

Reagan Names Novato Woman To State Board

Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday appointed Mildred Jane Yorke of Novato to a four-year term on the state Bord of Cosmetology.

She will be one of two nonprofessional members of the board which regulates health and safety standards in the beauty business.

Mrs. Yorke, a Republican, is the wife of Harvey F. Yorke, state chief of information services and a member of the governor's staff.

The couple has three children.

A nine-year resident of Novato, Mrs. Yorke has been a volunteer for fund drive campaigns in Marin.

U.S. Reduces Civilian Employees Working For Saigon Air Force

SAIGON (UPI) — The United States has cut out jobs for more than three out of four American civilian technicians assisting and training the South Vietnamese air force in a money-saving move, American sources said today.

The sources estimated the elimination of jobs for 1,272 Americans and 879 Vietnamese civilians by the end of this month will save $19 million in U.S. military aid funds during the next year.

Elimination of the jobs came at a time when South Vietnam is beset with inflation and unemployment.

Spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Saigon confirmed the cuts and said they were made reluctantly following Congressional cutbacks in American aid to South Vietnam.

Two weeks ago President Ford signed a military aid bill for $700 million a year for South Vietnam, less than half the amount requested by administration officials.

"There was considerable reluctance to cut out these jobs," said the spokesman. "They were made only because funds were unavailable."

Most of those affected have been working at major air bases, maintaining South Vietnamese aircraft and teaching Vietnamese airmen how to service the planes and helicopters.

At present 2,186 American civilians assist the South Vietnamese armed forces. All of them are paid out of military aid funds.

Officials said by the end of the month, the pool of American military technicians helping the Vietnamese will be down to only 506.

In addition, 305 civilians are paid out of economic aid funds.

U.S. sources said all jobs are currently being looked at, and that further cuts in the contracting force could come soon.

"The essential people will remain," said the spokesman. "This cutback shouldn't affect the combat capabilities of the Vietnamese air force, but it will make things more difficult."

The Viet Cong has continually protested the presence of the American contracting force since the Jan. 28, 1973, cease-fire agreement. The Communists have claimed that 25,000 military men disguised as civilians have been advising the South Vietnamese forces.

U.S. sources said it cost $45 million to maintain the force of contractors last year. The cuts made public today should cut expenditures to $26 million.

Reagan May Try To Win Presidency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan says he might run as a third party presidential candidate in 1976 if the two major parties fail to represent "the will of the American people."

Reagan also said President Ford could be challenged for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination "if things have grown worse instead of better" for his administration.

The conservative Republican made his remarks in a taped television interview last night on the Public Broadcasting Service.

Reagan has repeatedly urged Ford to chart his programs and policies in line with what he terms the "conservative mandate" won by President Nixon in his 1972 landslide re-election victory.

Asked if that mandate "is violated in your eyes, would you then lead a third party movement in 1976?" Reagan replied:

"Well, whether I would lead the movement or whether I would join in support of such a movement I think would have to depend on whether it became evident that both parties had so far failed that they no longer could represent the will of the American people."

"In other words, you're not closing the door to the possibility?" he was asked.

"I am saying," Reagan added, "that such a possibility would exist under those circumstances. I am hoping it won't be necessary."

Antifreeze Sale A Traffic Jam

FALL RIVER, Mass. (UPI) — The Zayre Department Store yesterday advertised a sale on antifreeze at $3.99 per gallon. When the store opened its doors at 9 a.m., more than 1,000 persons poured in.

In less than an hour the entire stock of more than 1,400 gallons had been sold out, the general manager of the automotive section was struck in the head with a box, and several persons were knocked to the floor and trampled by the crowd.

Traffic was backed up for several miles around the store. The going price in the area is $4.50 a gallon.

Starting October 29, we're going to change our tune.

EXCLUSIVE BUS LANES FOR MID-MARIN?

Morning commute traffic (left lanes) pours south on Highway 101 in Corte Madera in a view which shows two new traffic lanes and center barrier soon to be completed. It has been proposed that the inside southbound lane be set aside for bus use during morning commute hours and the inside northbound lane reserved for buses in the evenings. That suggestion and a recommendation to allow car pools to use the lanes is under consideration by the state Department of Transportation. A decision is expected by mid-November.

Council Favors Parking Site Buy

Mill Valley probably will buy an abandoned Miller Avenue service station for a parking lot, the city council decided last night.

But before completing the deal, the city attorney should look over the title report on the property, councilmen also agreed.

The council will hold a special meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the city manager's office to vote on the purchase if the city attorney reports all is in order.

Earlier this year, the city bought a $2,500 option on the property from owner Gary R. Shapiro of Oakland. The option expires at the end of the month.

If the council decides to buy the lot to replace some parking lost in the Miller Avenue improvement project, they will owe Shapiro another $65,000.

However, councilmen said last night that an appraisal of the property in the 300 block of Miller put its market value at $100,000.

The Miller Avenue improvement project has eliminated about two blocks of the city's middle-of-the-street parking.

Originally, Mill Valley officials had hoped to persuade property owners in the area to form an assessment district to buy the lot and provide parking meters. But the businessmen declined.

"This sort of approach bothers me philosophically," said Councilman Jean S. Barnard. "Having attempted an assessment district which failed, now we decide to have the city go ahead with it anyway."

But Mayor Robert E. Burton said that the purchase also could be justified because it will provide a new access to the Park Terrace subdivision and a creekside park lying behind it.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

OFFICES — Noted that city approval of an office-restaurant complex on Redwood Highway, proposed by Sidney Hendricks of Strawberry, does not include approval of a boat dock in the project. A planning commissioner had complained that previous city actions made it unclear as to whether the dock could be built.

PARKING ZONE — Continued to Nov. 4 a request from several merchants to remove a no parking zone along the curb between 294 and 326 Miller Avenue.

SUBDIVISION — Decided to write to the county planning department saying there are inadequacies in an environmental impact report prepared for a subdivision of six acres belonging to Ellis Lando and lying in the Fern Canyon Road area just outside the city limits.

TAXIS — Granted licenses for the Bel Aire Cab Co. to run two more taxis in the city. The company already operates eight cabs in Mill Valley.

CARNIVALS — Agreed to impose a $100 per day limit on license fees for carnivals sponsored by charitable organizations. Under a previous law, the groups could be charged more than ten times that amount.

GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE — Asked the bridge district to open the bridge to pedestrians and bikers for 24 hours a day.

RICHMOND BRIDGE — Asked state toll Bridge Authority to reserve one lane of the bridge on weekends for bicycle traffic.

PROPANE — Voted to spend $6,300 to convert 10 city vehicles to propane gas. The city engineer estimated that conversion could cut fuel costs from 5.4 cents to 3 cents per gallon.

CABLE TV — Formed a new cable television committee to prepare a series of television programs on Mill Valley themes. The city recently agreed to spend $6,000 on the programs.

OLD MILL — Held a closed session with the city attorney to discuss possible litigation against the Old Mill Bar. The tavern Saturday night violated a city law requiring use permits for playing live music at nightspots.

Mill Valley Principals Win 8 Per Cent Pay Hikes

Eleven principals and other administrators in the Mill Valley school district have won cost-of-living raises averaging about 8 per cent, according to Supt. Peter Palches.

Palches said the administrators yesterday agreed to the settlement which will cost the district $18,500 annually.

The principals and administrators received increases ranging from 8 to 8.2 per cent each. Teachers and clerical employees received an 8.2 per cent increase earlier this year.

Palches said the school board will ratify the agreement formally at its Oct. 28 meeting.

The increase does not apply to Palches' salary which will be considered separately by the board.

City Bristles At Probing By Human Rights Agency

The Marin County Human Rights Commission is "overzealous" and should keep out of municipal affairs, San Rafael City Councilmen said last night. (Another San Rafael Council story on page 1.)

The council objected to the county commission's probe into two charges of misconduct on the part of San Rafael police.

The group has investigated a Terra Linda mother's contention that her son was questioned improperly during a murder investigation and charges by Terra Linda teenagers that police used excessive force to break up a beer party.

The commission has held public hearings on a complaint by Jeannette Pomeroy that the civil rights of her 12-year-old son were violated by San Rafael police inspectors during an investigation of the slaying of Lucy Ann Gilbride and on charges by Terra Linda teens that police used unnecessary force during a raid on a party on Skyview Drive in August. (The commission on Thursday will consider a report by Police Chief Lawrence R. Kelly that the teen brutality allegations are unfounded.)

City Mgr. William J. Bielser last night reported, however, that the commission is "overstepping the bounds on which it operates" by considering municipal matters since it has no jurisdiction within city limits.

He produced a copy of a county ordinance creating the commission, which sets the agency's scope as "applying throughout the unincorporated areas of Marin County. Nothing herein shall create any rights, powers or duties in conflict with any state, federal or municipal law," the regulation adds.

City Atty. Fred C. Robbins agreed, saying the commission has no authority over any action that takes place in the city.

City councilmen criticized the rights agency for being too zealous and went on to say that the council can handle any investigations of city departments which are deemed necessary.

Chief Kelly did not attend the commission's Thursday session.

Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan expressed concern at what he called "the recurring publicity with respect to the police department" and said the council should review a report of police conduct at the teen beer party.

The San Rafael City Council Also:

CLAIMS — Denied a $90 claim by Kenneth Brewer for damage to his car resulting from a collision with a city police vehicle, and a claim for $100,000 by Robert K. Goldman, injured in a motorcycle accident in the city.

FREITAS — Denied a $492,953 claim by Carlos R. Freitas, who believes a city building ban and other actions have diminished the value of land he owns in Terra Linda.

TRIM — Approved a $14,500 contract for trimming 23 trees on Grand Avenue.

PATHS — Told the Public Works Department that development of a bicycle path plan for the city is a top priority.

ROBERT DOLLAR — Said Mission Avenue between C and E streets will be temporarily closed from 11 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Nov. 3 due to a band concert planned at the Robert Dollar Estate. The event is in support of a city tax measure to buy the estate.

BOARD — Said the City Board of Review has denied the appeal of policeman Richard C. Michaelsen, who balked at being transferred from traffic to patrol divisions.

Share Buying Spurs Ethics Code Study

The San Rafael city administration was directed to explore the possibility of developing a "code of ethics" for city employees last night by the city council.

The action was spurred by Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan, who said he was particularly concerned with acquisition of stocks by employees.

"We ought to have some policy guidelines ... as far as acquisition of stocks," said Mulryan. The move is needed "so we don't have staff in a position of embarrassment because of poor judgement ..."

At issue is a disclosure by Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner that he is a stockholder in Larwin Mortgate Investors, a Los Angeles-based financing firm that owns a 133-acre parcel within city limits. Hotchner made the disclosure in a statement of economic interest he filed with the county.

(As previously reported, Hotchner owns 150 shares of the firm, and said he bought the shares at about "$15 or $20" apiece last year. The stock is worth about $2.50 per share today. The firm in 1972 approached city staff with a proposal to build 1,400 apartment, townhouse and condominium units on its land, but never applied for formal review.

Hotchner has denied any conflict of interest in the situation, saying his interest in the firm is miniscule and that he has done nothing illegal.)

Mulryan's call for "guidelines" governing such situations was met with a warning by City Mgr. William J. Bielser that the issue is legally sensitive. "It's a touchy legal area when we start restricting rights of employees," Bielser said.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini also urged a cautious approach to the situation.

Hotchner, absent last night to attend a League of California Cities conference in Los Angeles, on Saturday mailed a form letter to city officials and local newspapers attacking press reports of his stockholding.

"Success in a business or profession and investments that are building blocks towards one's retirement are not signs of dishonesty," according to the Hotchner letter.

Hotchner contends report of his stockholding was made out of context and has created misimpressions that have defamed him.

Ross Board Denies Sick Leave Plan

Ross schoolteachers won't be able to share their unused sick leave with other teachers, the district board decided last night.

Trustees rejected a teachers' plan to establish a sick leave bank from which teachers with long illnesses could draw. Under the proposal, each teacher would donate one day of his sick leave to the bank, and the pool of paid days off could have been used by teachers needing more than the allotted number, according to Dist. Supt. Thomas A. Anderson.

In a related matter, the board decided that leave could be used for paid absences during maternity leave.

Ross School District trustees also:

TEACHERS — Agreed to recognize the Ross School District Teachers Association as the official organization representing teachers.

GIFTS — Accepted a variety of gifts, from a guinea pig and a planter box to library books, on behalf of the school.

COMMITTEES — Named George Schorhe to fill a vacancy on the early childhood education committee and appointed Ramona Zulch, Lori Norby and Bill Nicholson to fill three open spots on the district's citizens advisory committee.

Smith Quits Post In Fire District

Sherman R. Smith last night resigned as secretary of the Bolinas Fire Protection district.

Smith cited "personal reasons" for his decision to step down. Directors hired as his replacement Jean Ridella of Bolinas who will be paid $60 a month.

Pathway Action Postponed By Corte Madera

The Corte Madera Town Council last night postponed any action on proposed bicycle and pedestrian paths until budget time next year.

Clifford E. Temps, director of public works, described a $5,000 paving project for the High Canal easement, which has been used for years as an informal bicycle path. The council postponed the paving plan until next summer.

The council also decided not to spend any money at this time for improving the bicycle path on San Clemente Drive or on a request from the Hidden Valley Homeowners Association for a foot path in the hilly area.

In other action, the council agreed to plant a "liberty tree" in honor of the American Revolution Bicentennial in the town park.

Informational Books Available On Alcoholics

Informational books on alcohol are now available for circulation at city and county public libraries, the Alcohol Information Committee has announced.

Claude Steiner's "Games Alcoholics Play" and the cooperative committee on alcoholism's "Report to the Nation" are available.

The books are the latest of those purchased by the committee with funds from several Marin County Rotary clubs, according to a committee spokesman.

General Plan Adopted; No Debate

By NELS JOHNSON

San Rafael's new general plan — the result of more than two years of work by city leaders, citizens and consultants — was adopted by the city council last night.

The council, moving swiftly and without debate, approved the plan on a 4-0 vote. Councilman John A. Miskimen was absent.

The action followed six public hearings in which the council polished the plan forged in 27 hearings held by the city planning commission.

"I think it is the most outstanding job any commission has done," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini of the planning agency's work. Colleagues agreed the commission had logged an extraordinary performance.

The planning agency, which trimmed an inch-thick proposal submitted by Berkeley consultants Duncan and Jones last January into a 22-page plan, "made our work easy," councilmen said.

Last night's adoption of the plan came without any of the debate or controversy that marked early evolution of the document. The council last November fired Jorgen V. Lunding, former chairman of the planning commission, for attempting to influence the course of the plan, and later docked consultants Duncan and Jones $3,500 of a $79,100 fee for attempting to manipulate the plan's policies.

The emerging plan also generated controversy over proposals to place a massive transportation hub in the city's commercial core and to boost the proportion of moderate income housing in the city, among other matters. Debate died, however, as city agencies pared the document of many controversial measures.

The plan adopted by the council last night is essentially the same proposal recommended for adoption by the planning commission, although councilmen had cut several proposals, among them plans to expand the city redevelopment agency to generate funds for subsidized housing and to pave four miles of fire roads through undeveloped lands.

The new general plan rejects notions of growth quotas and proposes instead to control residential expansion by linking it with environmental "holding capacity" and availabliity of city services. Under a "residential review procedure," development proposals will be gathered and submitted to city agencies for review on a qquarterly basis.

Other major features of the 1974 San Rafael General Plan include:

1. A policy whereby the city will "attempt to maintain as a minimum" the current proportion of low and moderate income housing in the city.

2. A neighborhood planning district zone calling for precise neighborhood plans to replace existing zoning in older sections of the city. Neighborhood plans would link local growth to desires of residents, environmental factors, services, and other matters.

3. A proposal that urban development be intensified in the downtown San Rafael and Northgate shopping center areas.

4. A recommendation that the San Rafael Canal and the bayshore east of Highway 17 be converted into a water-oriented open space and recreational areas.

5. A plan for a new road to run along a railway spur from A and Second streets through East San Rafael to Bellam and Andersen drives.

The San Rafael plan also calls for greenbelt areas and citizen participation in local planning.

Sonoma Voter Registration Reaches Record

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Voter registration in Sonoma has reached a record high of 130,117, according to County Clerk Eugene D. Williams.

He said the total is an increase of 14,955 over the 123,028 who were registered to vote in the June primary. The total at the time of the 1972 general election was 108,073, William said.

Of the new total, 72,524 are Democrats; 47,392 Republicans; 1,798 Peace and Freedom; 615 American Independent; 66 classified as "miscellaneous" and 7,122 declined to state.

Architects Selected

The Novato Fire Protection District board last night selected Sausalito architects Politzer and Sontheimer to design the Ignacio fire station.

Commissioner William L. Boyle said board members will meet with the architects this week to work out a time schedule for the project.

The board also learned three ambulances which the district is buying, will be delivered Dec. 15 and be in operation by the first of the year.

Defense Chief Decries Cuts In Arms Fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said today that for seven years the nation's military forces have been suffering financially from a "wasting disease" that could result in the country becoming a second class military power.

"The appetities to further reduce the Department of Defense continue to grow as the department dwindles," Schlesinger said.

Schlesinger, who was interviewed on the CBS Morning News, said the department's total resources has dropped, in constant dollars, by about 40 per cent during that period.

"We have dropped in terms of military manpower by a million and a half men and compared to pre-war we are down by about 600,000 men," he said. "We have the lowest share of the GNP (Gross National Product) since before the Korean War. And in terms of public spending we're at the lowest point since before Pearl Harbor."

The department requested a budget of $92.6 billion for fiscal 1975, but the spending figure was slashed by more than $4 billion in Congress.

"The question is does the United States wish to maintain a military balance or does it not," Schlesinger said. "If we are going to disarm as a nation and accept second class status as a military power we should do so consciously, rather than allowing the erosion of purchasing power for the Department of Defense to drive us into that second class status."

He said the Soviet Union's military budget has been growing at the rate of 4 to 5 per cent annually in terms of real resources.

"We have been shrinking," he said. "This year we submitted a budget that prevented further shrinkage. But between the cuts that were imposed by the Congress and very substantial erosion of purchasing power because of the inflation, we will be going down still further."

PLAN YOUR PLAY

West's opening lead is the ten of diamonds. Plan your play for at least a trick or so before you read on.

When you put up dummy's jack of diamonds, East covers with the queen. You can join the goats in that crowded room on the left, for you have already lost your contract.

East is sure to win two diamond tricks. This gives him time to lead clubs and get a club trick for West. The defenders are sure to get two diamonds, one club and the ace of spades.

TWO NOBLE SHEEP

When this hand was played in a Los Angeles tournament some years ago, veteran expert Meyer Schleifer made the game contract by allowing West to win the first trick with the ten of diamonds.

West couldn't afford to lead a club, since dummy would win a trick with the queen. When West switched to trumps, South drew three trumps, cashed the ace of diamonds and gave up a diamond.

East naturally led a club, but it was too late. South won with the ace of clubs, led a diamond to dummy and discarded a club on the fifth diamond. This eliminated the club loser and assured the contract.

The correct play is chiefly a matter of resisting temptation, which has been known to separate sheep from goats in more activities than one.

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - A J 10 6 2
♥ - 6 4
♦ - 10
♣ - K 8 6 3 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades.

Your eight points and fine distribution should add up to a game in the combined hands. If partner's rebid is three NT, you will bid four clubs, looking for a game in one black suit or the other.

Ray Opens Fight For New Trial

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — James Earl Ray's bid for a new trial began today with his attorney arguing in federal court that Ray's previous lawyer, Percy Foreman, had put pressure on Ray to plead guilty to the murder of civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Ray, 46, sat staring straight ahead as Bernard Fensterwald told the court that Ray should be given a new trial because he was deprived of his constitutional right to effective counsel.

Fensterwald said Foreman, a famous Houston lawyer, pressured Ray until he finally pleaded guilty to the 1968 slaying. He said Foreman had told Ray he would be "barbecued" (put to death in the electric chair) if he risked a trial, rather than entering a guilty plea.

W. Henry Haile, the assistant Tennessee attorney general, made a brief opening statement for the state.

"As far as we are concerned," Haile said, "the things they have alleged are not true."

Ray was moved early today two blocks from the Shelby County jail to the Federal Building where he was held in a detention area to await start of the hearing which could lead to a new trial.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Myopic Baby Sees Its Mother Only When She Is Close By

A youngster who is nearsighted (myopic) clearly sees objects close at hand, but he can't see distant objects. Myopia generally begins after the child starts school, but I often wonder what babyhood would be like if it began shortly after birth.

A myopic baby sees his mother only when she is close to him. I once had a secretary with myopia who never knew what a billboard or tree looked like until she was fitted with glasses.

Children and teen-agers with visual impairments exhibit personality traits traceable to what they can and cannot see.

The shortsighted boy or girl, for example, does well academically because he is not distracted by things going on around him. Walks in the country are not for him because the landscape is too blurred to be enjoyed. Since he can't see the playing field, he isn't interested in baseball, basketball or football. Getting him a ticket to a movie or stage play is a waste of money unless you get front row seats.

Television viewing is made to order because he can sit as close as he likes. Since most of his activities are a solo proposition, he tends to be introverted and rather stiff and self-righteous.

Tests show that academically, the myope scores 5 per cent higher in reading, math and verbal skills.

Farsighted (hyperopic) children are not interested in books. In fact, they often are accused of being lazy and inattentive. A boy with this problem usually quits school and goes to work. He usually grows up to be the masculine, aggressive type who is a devil with the ladies. Farsighted girls tend to be tomboys.

Although both far- and nearsighted children can read, the latter do it better. With proper glasses, none of these problems need arise. Those with undetected myopia often learn to compensate for the visual defect by contracting the pupils when in a brightly lit room. By restricting the size of their pupiles, they lengthen their depth of perception.

Makeshift adjustment never replaces the improvement that follows proper eyeglasses or contact lenses.

IN TRACTION

Mrs. O. writes: My husband, John, is hospitalized. He's suffering from severe muscle spasms in the lower back. The nurses put him in traction every other hour. How can this possibly help his condition?

REPLY

Traction of the spine pulls the joints apart, eases pressure on the spinal nerves and relaxes the muscles. The enforced bed rest promotes healing.

HAMMER-TOES

D. R. writes: The hammertoes on both my feet are so painful I can hardly wear shoes. In fact, I can hardly stand. Do you think surgery might help?

REPLY

Yes it can.

Chavez Activity Curtailed By Back Ailment

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Cesar Chavez' personal physician says the farm labor leader will have to give up his union activity and stay in the hospital for an indefinite period because of a back problem.

Dr. Jerome Lauckner said yesterday that Chavez is suffering from "chronic overuse" of his back and that his condition is "disturbing but not critical."

Chavez also issued a statement saying that the current grape boycott by his union is costing table grape growers in California nearly $25 million.

Chavez cited U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics which he said showed there were 4,150,280 boxes of unsold grapes in cold storage as of Sept. 30.

Thaw Hinted By Castro In TV Interview

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro says he would be willing to begin talks on resuming U.S.-Cuban diplomatic relations if the United States first agrees to lift the economic embargo.

In an interview taped with CBS television to be broadcast tonight on Channels 5 and 10 at 10 o'clock, Castro declared:

"I would say that number one is the lifting of the economic blockade. When the economic blockade is ended, we shall be in a condition to speak under conditions of equality: the United States and ourselves."

In a talk with CBS correspondent Dan Rather, Castro, at 47 still sporting his famous beard, criticized President Ford for warning petroleum producers against high prices and for his public admission that the Central Intelligence Agency supported Chilean newspapers opposed to the late President Salvador Allende.

But, he said, he hoped for a change in U.S. policy toward Cuba.

President Ford "is not involved with the Cuban counter-revolutionary elements," Castro said, as opposed to former President Richard Nixon, who "was personally very much involved with them."

Castro said Cubans regard Ford "with a certain hope in the sense that he may after all adopt a different policy towards Cuba."

The premier praised Secretary of State Henry Kissinger as a "realistic politician" and also praised the late President John F. Kennedy for resisting advice to send in American troops after the failure of the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion.

Castro said the U.S. base of Guantanamo on Cuban soil would be brought up in any negotiations to resume diplomatic relations.

Development Is Focus Of Town Panel

Development in the entire Lower Ross Valley will be the focus of the fifth annual Larkspur Town Meeting, scheduled Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon at the Redwood High School Little Theater.

Three Marin County leaders and the mayor and city manager of neighboring Corte Madera will join Larkspur officials at the meeting, and residents from outside Larkspur are invited, according to Sallyanne Wilson, co-chairman.

"You can't plan in a vacuum," said Mrs. Wilson. "You must take into account other developments in other areas."

The meeting will open with speeches by Larkspur City Mgr. Harlan Barry and Corte Madera Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels, explaining development in their communities. Douglas J. Maloney, county counsel, will explain the proposed county growth control ordinance.

After a coffee break, Larkspur Mayor Joan L. Sestak, Corte Madera Mayor Robert J. Flahive, and Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Gary T. Giacomini will form a panel to answer citizen questions.

Likely to be discussed are proposals for the Larkspur ferry terminal, the Larkspur Landing development planned by Lincoln Properties for the San Quentin Peninsula, the Rouse and Company Bon Air development, and the Ernest W. Hahn shopping center in Corte Madera.

Last year's format of small discussion groups has been dropped.

Richardson Bay Nature Walk Set

A two-hour nature walk will be held at 9 a.m. Sunday at the Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary in Tiburon.

A lecture on migration and orientation of birds by sanctuary mgr. Philip Schaeffer will be presented Sunday at 3 p.m. in the sanctuary education center.

'The Law': Well-Done, Taut Television Movie

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Clarence Darrow, a fair defense attorney, once claimed that "the law is a bum profession. It is utterly devoid of idealism and almost poverty-stricken as to any real ideas."

"The Law," a made-for-TV movie on NBC tonight, explores that thesis with a tautly written, well-acted and very sour study of the nuts-and-bolts workings of the criminal justice system in an unnamed big city.

Filmed in Los Angeles, the 2½-hour show stars Judd Hirsch, a New York actor in his mid-30s. He plays an aggressive, overworked deputy public defender who is idealistic by nature and cynical by experience.

His world, naturally, isn't a happy one. It's a world of hard-nosed or jocular plea-bargaining, venal private barristers, prosecution-favoring, pistol-packing lady judges and low-life defendants he must counsel en masse before their arraignments because the legal staff is small, its time limited.

The over-all impression you might get from this show is that it has but two staff idealists — the public defender and one member of the opposition, a young deputy district attorney played by John Beck.

The others are neither absolute saints nor sinners. They work both sides of the fence, drifting with the winds of expediency.

At the heart of the show is Hirsch's attempt to defend a young, heroin-wasted rock musician brilliantly played by Gary Busey — who's charged with three other men in a Manson family kind of murder case.

All political advertisements are payable in advance. Charges are figured at the prevailing flat rate.

Advertising deadlines are 4 p.m., two working days preceding publication. Tuesday advertisements must be in Friday by 4 p.m., Monday advertisements must be in the preceding Friday morning by 11:00 a.m. Any intervening holiday advances the deadline by a day.

No responsibility to show printer's proof is assumed under the above schedule.

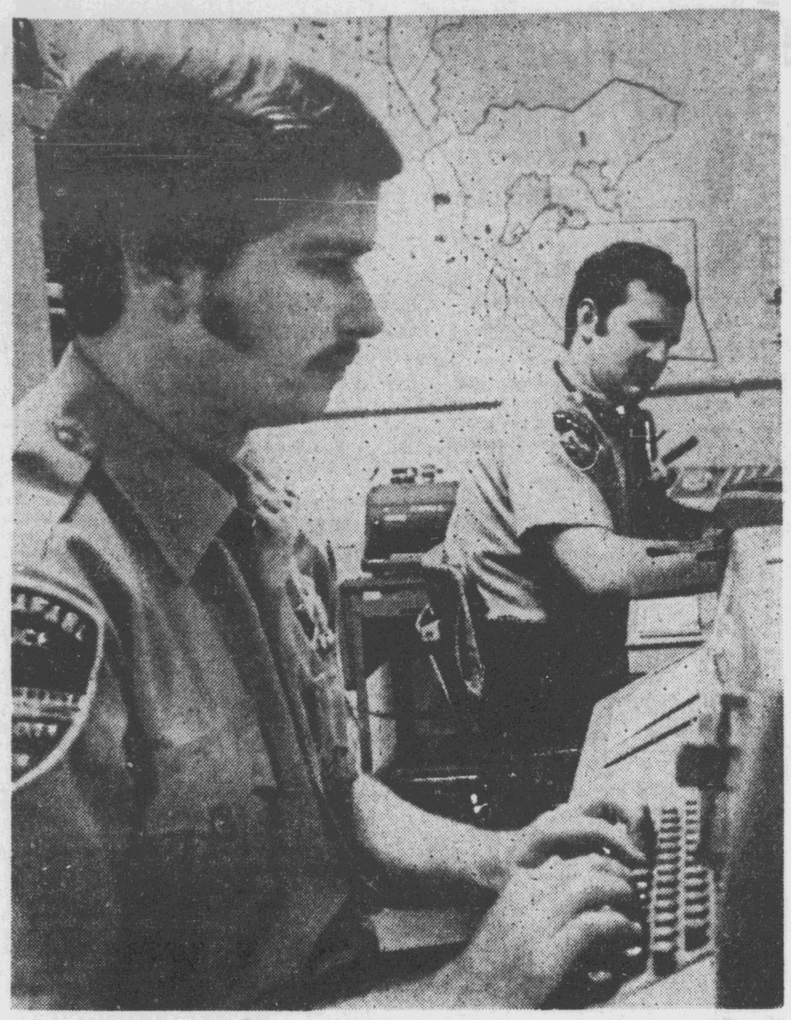
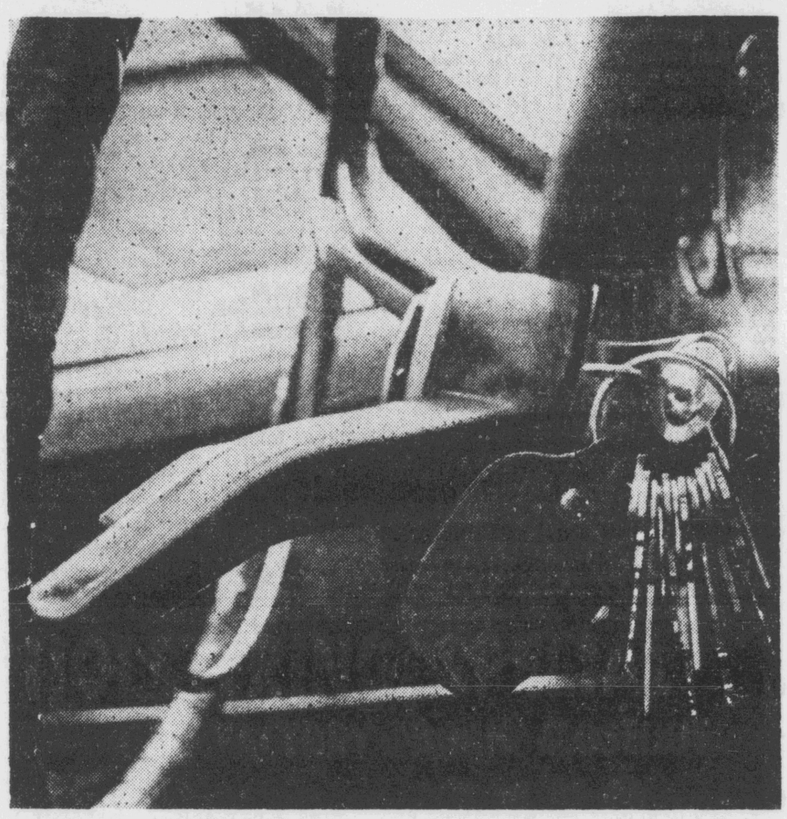
TARGETS — About one in every 100 cars will be stolen in the coming year, and, according to statistics, most will be taken from a place like this: A large, unattended parking lot. Recent statistics on car theft are alarming — more than 107,000 were stolen in California last year, and in just the first eight months of this year, more than 150 in San Rafael alone. More reassuring is the fact that more than 80 per cent of stolen cars will be recovered thanks to police efforts. (Photos by Alfred M. Arn)



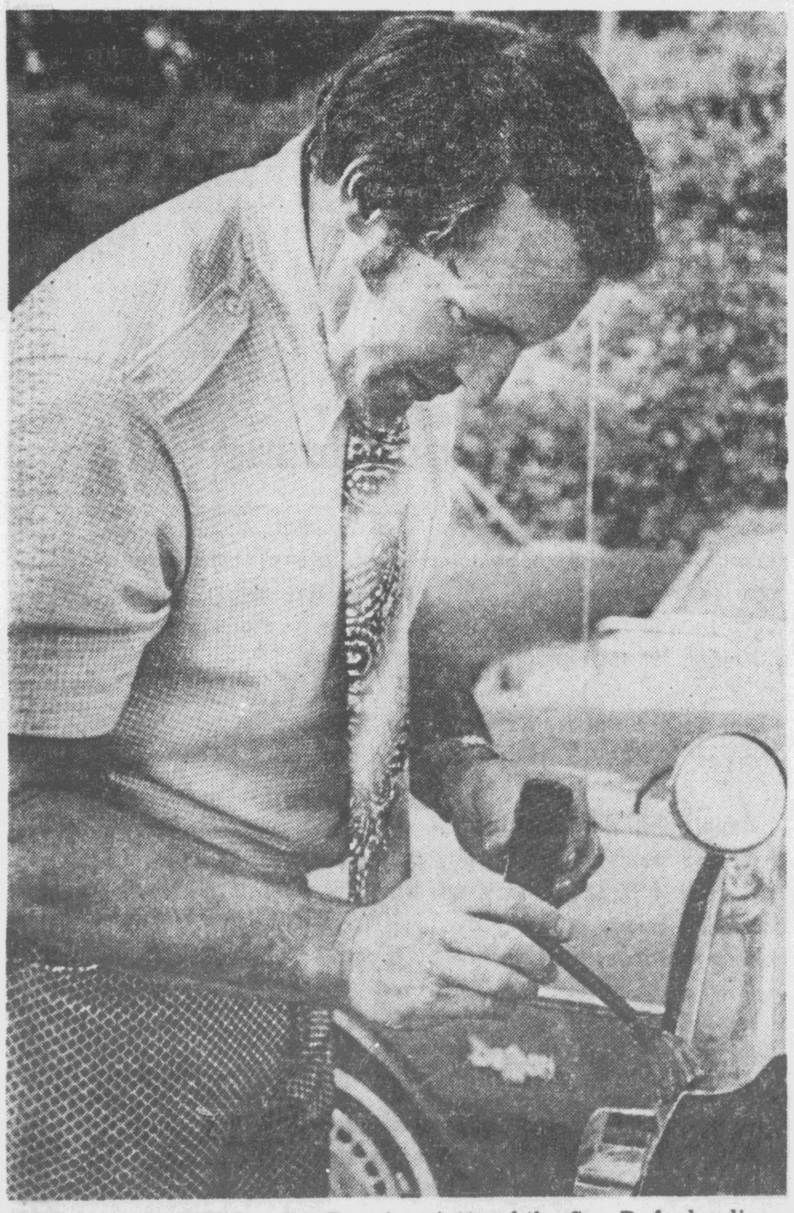
COMPUTER CHASE — Upon receiving a report of a stolen car, police run the registration and license numbers through the computer to provide officers in other departments with bulletins to check. Here, San Rafael Police Cadet Gilbert MacQuarrie enters car theft information from his terminal, while cadet Gene Fahy takes information from officers on patrol.

TOWED AND STORED — Upon finding a stolen car, the vehicle is towed to a nearby garage and stored there until the owner comes to claim it. The car owner, usually delighted that his car was found, often is disappointed to find that the car isn't in the same condition as it was when stolen — more than half of the stolen cars are found dented or stripped of parts.

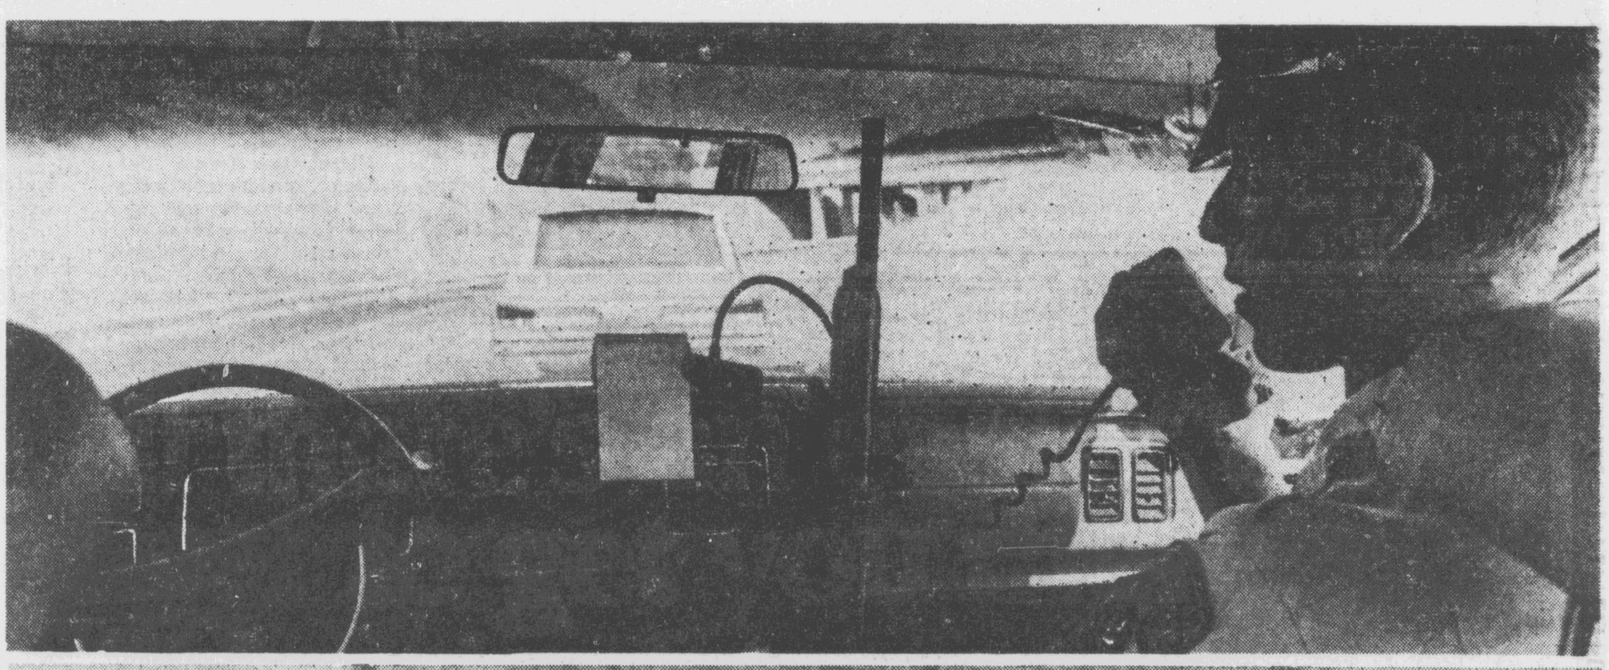


EASY THEFT — Although a car thief needs only a minute to wire a car's ignition without a key, the majority of stolen cars are those left with keys in the ignition. Most popular marks for car thieves, according to police, are Volkswagens, because they are said to be easy to break into, and easy to strip parts for resale.

The Ins And Outs Of Auto Theft



INVESTIGATION — Dt. Ron Averiette of the San Rafael police dusts a stolen car for fingerprints that might lead to apprehending the thief, but this search is usually fruitless, police said. However, when they do manage to nab a thief, they can usually link him to others that were previously unsolved.



ABANDONED — Encountering a car left abandoned on the freeway shoulder, Officer James Baker of the California Highway Patrol calls in to his dispatcher to run a check on the car's license number (above) and then examines the car at close range (below) looking for an indication that it might have been stolen — a broken window, wired ignition, or other markings. This particular car wasn't stolen, so Baker merely left a warning note for the owner to remove it.

Great Fishing On S.F. Bay

Ah, the salt air and the waves of the open sea.

Well, not really the open sea. It was actually in San Francisco Bay, about as close to Alcatraz as I ever wanted to be. It was close enough to see the broken windows and decaying outer walls. I never really wanted to see the inner walls.

It was a fishing trip with the Lord of the Sea. The Lord is Keith Fraser who got his nickname because of his success in bringing back limits of Striped Bass. Keith is part owner of the Loch Lomond Live Bait and Tackle shop and the resident bass expert.

HE REPORTED the other day that striper fishing around Alcatraz Island was red-hot, "everybody catching limits." When I appeared to be somewhat skeptical, he invited me to come out on a trip with him and see for myself.

It was the day after the final game of the World Series and a perfect time to test the fishing . . . and talk baseball. Fraser is also a junior high school teacher and is head baseball coach at Terra Linda High. It was a fivesome on Fraser's boat. We were joined by I-J baseball columnist Gary Hughes, San Marin baseball coach Ron Butori, and Roy Partee of Terra Linda, a scout for the New York Mets who played for Boston and St. Louis of the American League in the 40s.

It was a beautiful day, shirtsleeve weather on the bay. We rigged up for trolling, using a spreader to allow for the use of two lures, a spoon and a jet-tailed jig. If one of those lures didn't work, the other would, we were promised.

ONLY SECONDS after we let out our lines, Hughes was excitedly calling that he had a fish on. After reeling in his line we found that he had what the veteran anglers call a "double header," a fish on each of his two lures.

We kept the biggest of the two, about a four-pounder, and tossed the smaller one back, although it was of legal size. What the heck, we said, if fishing is going to be this good we'll just keep them one at a time.

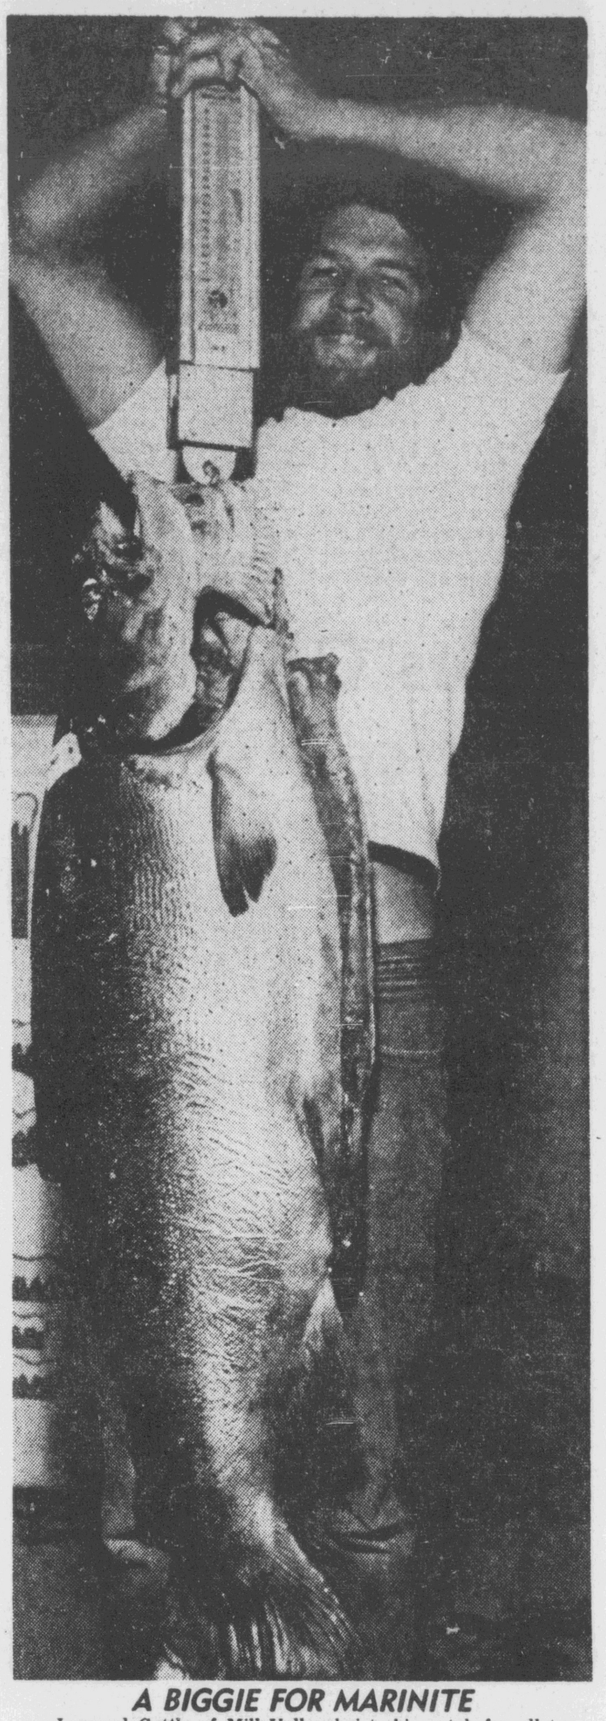
Well, Fraser was right. The fishing last Friday, as he reported it had been all week, was red-hot. We caught about 30 stripers, throwing the smaller ones back unharmed, and kept our limit of 15 (three each). They were good-sized fish, the largest one weighing out at 16½ pounds.

THAT 16½-POUNDER was the first fish I caught that day, after Hughes had given me such a bad time because he was catching fish and I wasn't. Actually, I was just waiting for the bigger ones.

That was the biggest striper I have ever caught and it put up a good fight before being decked. I felt very proud of that fish until I was humbled by the sight of that salmon whose picture is next door to this space. That's quite a beauty, that 54-pounder caught by Leonard Gettle of Mill Valley.

IT WAS a great time Friday. We all caught fish and had a very relaxful time aboard Fraser's boat. After that World Series week, relaxing was just what this tired body needed.

And when Fraser reports the fishing is "red-hot," I won't doubt his word. He proved his point.



A BIGGIE FOR MARINITE

Leonard Gettle of Mill Valley hoists his catch for all to see. Gettle, a body and fender repairman, caught this 54-pound (51 pounds when cleaned) salmon Saturday outside the Golden Gate during a party fishing trip. He was aboard the Blue Fin out of Sausalito Boat and Tackle and spent 35 minutes battling the fish before landing it. It's the biggest this year and puts Gettle in the lead in the Bay Area salmon derby.

Murcer To Giants For Bobby Bonds

NEW YORK (UPI) — Outfielder Bobby Bonds, acclaimed "the best player in baseball "by at least two managers only a year ago, was traded to the New York Yankees today by the San Francisco Giants for outfielder Bobby Murcer in a straight player deal.

Bonds had a subpar year with the Giants this past season, finishing with a .256 batting average, 71 runs batted in and 21 homers.

Likewise, Murcer, who originally had been groomed to take Mickey Mantle's place in centerfield for the Yankees, but never really did, also tailed off from the year before when he batted .304, drove in 95 runs and hit 22 homers. This year, he was moved from centerfield to rightfield by Manager Bill Virdon to make room for Elliott Maddox, and wound up with a .274 average, 10 homers and 88 rbi's.

Only two of Murcer's homers were hit at home in Shea Stadium, both coming in September in a series against Celeveland.

The Giants went for the 28-year-old Murcer specifically because they needed a lefthanded hitter badly.

Murcer, a native of Oklahoma City, Okla., broke in with the Yankees as a shortstop in 1965, but did not win a regular berth with them until he came back from military service in 1969.

His best year for the Yankees was 1971 when he batted .331 and had 94 rbi's and 24 homers.

The deal was the first interleague swap following the World Series. The interleague trading period officially opened today.

Bonds was off someplace fishing when the deal was finalized between the two clubs.

Gene Mauch, the blunt speaking manager of the Montreal Expos said at one point in 1973: "Bonds is the best player in baseball today."

Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson, who guided the National League All-Stars that year, agreed after Bonds sparked the National Leaguers to victory over the American League.

Bonds did it all for the Giants in 1973 with 96 rbi's, 39 homers, 130 runs scored, 34 doubles, four triples, 43 stolen bases and a .283 batting average.

In so doing, he became only the second player in major league history to repeat the accomplishment of hitting 30 homers and stealing 30 bases in the same season.

Willie Mays, Bonds' idol, managed the same feat in both 1956 and 1957. Only three other players ever have achieved that 30-30 distinction even once.

TOUCHDOWN — Bears' wide receiver Charley Wade sprinted between Green Bay Packers' defensive backs Jim Hill (39) and Al Matthews en route to a 57-yard touchdown. Quarterback Gary Huff threw a first-quarter pass over the middle to Wade who then outran the Packers' secondary to the goal line. The National Football League game last night took place in Chicago. Defense Makes Big Plays For Chicago

Packers' Devine Can Only Second-Guess

CHICAGO (UPI) — The defense made the big plays for the Chicago Bears on national television last night and left Green Bay Packer Coach Dan Devine second guessing himself after a 10-9 defeat.

The win for the Bears left both teams with a 3-3 record, tied for second place in the National Football League's Central Division, two games behind the front-running Minnesota Vikings.

The Bears started out like gangbusters. Mirro Roder kicked a 23-yard field goal to wind up a march from the Bears' 47 the first time Chicago had the ball.

Then less than five minutes later, Gary Huff hit wide receiver Charley Wade in the middle of the Packer secondary and Wade outran the defense for a 57-yard touchdown play and a 10-0 Chicago lead.

But that was the end of the Bear offense as far as scoring went and the defense, though hard pressed, was adequate.

The first time the defense took charge was after the Packers had marched from their 21 to a first down on the Bears' nine. John Brockington gained two yards, a pass to Brockington gained another and a pass to Rich McGeorge put the ball on the two with fourth down.

That was when Devine made the decision he second guessed later.

"As it turned out, the decision to go for it looms as the big one," he said. "The decision was mine. Naturally I won't do it again knowing what we know now. But at that point we felt we needed seven points. We didn't know we were going to play so well in the second half."

The second big play by the Bears came just before the half when the Packers drove from their 42 to a first down on the Bears' 12 and Brockington gained seven yards on the first play. But then Jerry Tagge tried to pass to McGeorge and rookie linebacker Waymond Bryant intercepted in the end zone to kill the threat.

"That's one I sure wish I had back," Tagge said. "Bryant made a hell of a defensive play but I threw the ball too soft to attempt to reach McGeorge."

Tagge agreed that Brockington's failure to get in earlier was the most important play because "if we had scored, the momentum would have gone our way and it would have been a different ball game."

All of the Green Bay points were by Chester Marcol on field goals of 34, 33 and 36 yards.

Coach Abe Gibron of the Bears declared the result came because of "physical, aggressive football. We think we can beat anybody."

Bears defensive captain Doug Buffone, conceeding, "we got hurt a little outside," added: "When we got close in, we really tightened up. They thought they could run the ball on third down, but we stuck in there, especially on the goal line. You've got to have holes to run very hard."

ON ALL-STAR TEAM

Jackson Lone A's Selection

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Brock slid in safely on the Associated Press' 1974 Major League All-Star baseball team.

Picking up the most votes of the outfielders with 290, the St. Louis Cardinals' base-stealing wonder was among the classy group voted in yesterday by a nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters.

Brock, who broke Maury Wills' distinguished record of 104 steals with 118 this season, was joined in the outfield by Oakland's Reggie Jackson and Jeff Burroughs of Texas.

Jackson polled 218 votes while Burroughs had 194 to make the blue ribbon team ahead of such illustrious names as Jimmy Wynn of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Atlanta's Ralph Garr, the National League's batting champion.

The major battles in the voting took place at shortstop and for the right-handed pitcher's berth.

Cincinnati's Dave Concepcion won the shortstop position over Bert Campaneris of Oakland, 173 votes to 133.

Ferguson Jenkins of the Texas Rangers was named the team's right-handed pitcher, outdueling Jim Hunter 159-117.

49ers Search For Veteran Quarterback

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers have until this afternoon to trade for a quarterback — and the rumors are flying.

The San Francisco Examiner says the 49ers are trying to deal with New Orleans for Archie Manning and other names tossed about in this year of dissatisfied National Football League signal callers include Pat Sullivan of Atlanta, Bob Berry of Minnesota, and Craig Morton of Dallas, who refused to practice yesterday with the Cowboys and demanded to be traded because he is "tired of being wasted."

The Examiner yesterday said it was speculated that the 49ers have offered at least two no. 1 draft picks and two or three front-line players for Manning. Coach Dick Nolan wasn't available for comment.

The article quoted an unidentified owner of another club also interested in acquiring Manning as saying:

"We've been told by New Orleans that the Saints are seriously considering a bid made by Nolan to acquire Manning. One, by the way, that we couldn't match."

MANNING IS NOT AVAILABLE

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Archie Manning is not for sale. He'll remain a Saint.

New Orleans coach John North said today he will not trade his high-priced quarterback despite having benched Manning.

Asked if Manning would be with the team past the 3 p.m. today deadline for trades in the National Football League, North said, "Yes."

Forty-niner starter Steve Spurrier hurt his shoulder in the final pre-season game and is not expected to be in top shape the rest of the season although he might be ready to play in two weeks.

Joe Reed and Dennis Morrison have had their chances — and failed to move the team. But Tom Owen "did a good job for a rookie, but like a rookie, he missed several things" in the 37-14 loss to Los Angeles last Sunday, according to coach Dick Nolan.

He figures to start against Oakland Sunday at Candlestick Park—unless a new face is rushed into the scene.

Ironically, it was Owen who impressed 49er coaches the most during the strike and he was listed officially as No. 2 back of Spurrier.

Owens played the most during the exhibition season and moved the team well.

But once the season started, Reed and Morrison looked sharper in practice and thus got their chances first.

Marin Academy Harriers Win

Marin Academy ran its 1974 cross country record to 12-5 yesterday with victories over two Bay Counties League opponents on the Quarry Run course in San Rafael.

John Carmichael covered the three miles in 17:04 as Marin posted 24 points to 43 for Royce Academy of Oakland and 78 for Lick Wilmerding of San Francisco.

Chuck Fall was third for Marin at 17:40.

BLACK HAWKS' PRETTY OPPONENT

Former U.S. figure skating champion Janet Lynn was surrounded by Phil Russell (left) and Darcy Rota of the Black Hawks in Chicago yesterday. Miss Lynn, the star of Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies was in the Windy City practicing for her show running Nov. 5 through 17.

Alston Is Overwhelming Choice

Ozark Second In UPI Ballot For Managers

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Walter Alston, baseball's "Father Time" among modern day managers who led the Los Angeles Dodgers to their sixth pennant under his stewardship, has been overwhelmingly named UPI's National League manager of the year for 1974.

Alston, who only two days ago signed his 22nd consecutive one-year contract with the Dodgers, received 11 first place votes from the UPI baseball correspondents across the country. His nearest competitor, Danny Ozark of the Phillies, received three.

While Alston managed such Dodger greats as Jackie Robinson, Duke Snider, Roy Campanella, Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale in years past, it was probably this 1974 pennant winner that brought him his greatest satisfaction — if not his biggest challenge.

WALTER ALSTON
'Father Time'

Spiced generously with young players — many with just one or two full seasons of major league experience, Alston nonetheless goaded his club past the favored defending champion Cincinnati Reds of Johnny Bench, Pete Rose, etc. and wound up on top by four games. Only the World Series loss to the two-time world champ Oakland Athletics diminished Alston's year.

As it was, three-fourths of Alston's infield were converted from other positions. Shortstop Bill Russell (26) was formerly an outfielder as was second baseman Davey Lopes (24). First baseman Steve Garvey (25), who led the club in runs batted in with 111, played third, second and outfield before Alston found his best position.

Further, his two catchers Joe Ferguson (28) and Steve Yeager (25) were considered inexperienced by many, while the team's only real veteran starter, centerfielder Jimmy Wynn was acquired from Houston after a bad year.

A more obvious roadblock to Alston's '74 pennant hopes, however, came midway through the season when lefthander Tommy John, the ace of the Dodger pitching staff at the time with a 13-3 record, was lost for the year with an elbow injury. But the 62-year old skipper endured, making liberal use of reliever Mike Marshall, while coaxing clutch stretch performances from his other three starters, Andy Messersmith, Don Sutton and young Doug Rau.

Alston, who won world championships with the Dodgers in 1955, 1959, 1963 and 1965, is surpassed in endurance with one club as manager by only two men — Connie Mack, who managed the old Philadelphia Athletics 50 years and John McGraw, who piloted the Giants 31 straight seasons.

To The Defense Of Defense

OAKLAND (UPI) — Coach John Madden has come to the defense of his defense, which gave up 27 points in Oakland's last-second 30-27 victory over tough Cincinnati Sunday.

Cincinnati completed a 60-yard pass over All-Pro cornerback Willie Brown on its first play and produced a seven-yard scoring run from Essex Johnson on its second.

The Raiders finally had to drive 51 yards with no timeouts left in the last 1:40 to win it on Charlie Smith's two-yard run with eight seconds to go.

"Our defense wasn't that bad," Madden insists. "They surprised us on that first play. You know, you kind of expect a team to start a little slower paced—not a long pass.

"And two of their touchdowns came after our turnovers in our territory. So they didn't exactly push us around."

Although Cincinnati gained 287 yards total offense, Ken Anderson passed for 278 yards the week before against Cleveland. And it was an intercepted Anderson pass by Jack Tatum, which turned the game around.

Cincinnati led 14-6 when Tatum said, "I saw him (Anderson) look for (tight end Bob) Trumpy and I hung back. When he saw I wasn't coming, he looked a second time and threw. And I moved in."

Tatum returned the interception 40 yards and two plays later, the Raiders had their first touchdown and trailed 14-13.

The Raiders record at the Coliseum since 1966 is 46-9-3 but they don't get back there until Nov. 10. They call on San Francisco Sunday and Denver the following week.

No Luck With Bucks Or Ducks

TRUCKEE — Mary, my wife, and I opened the duck season last Saturday here at Webber Lake.

Having hunted deer the last three weeks with neither of us seeing a buck since the opening day, we expected a little action with the ducks. Earlier this week, we had toured all the likely looking ponds nearby getting a count of 12 birds, mostly mallards.

With no one else around here hunting ducks, we got up about 8 a.m. — none of this early morning freezing for us! Mary took one bunch of ponds; I took some others. We planned on getting just two birds for Sunday's dinner. I met her about noon — neither of us could raise a bird. As Mary put it, "Even the mice in the cabin have quit biting."

We tried lots of good areas for bucks, but there just doesn't seem to be any at our former hot spots. Hunting pressure is practically nil. We've seen just one buck brought in during the past two weeks. I remember opening day when Andy Rosalie of San Rafael and Mary were on a stand together. This one forked horn broke out about 25 yards away from them in the open. Being the first day, Mary yelled to Andy to take it. He yelled back, "No, you take it!" Finally both shot and got the buck. I'll bet no one around here today would be so polite. That buck may be it for the season for us.

GAME WARDEN Gil Berg of this area came by yesterday. We discussed the buck hunting. He laughed and said, "Bucks around here are almost considered in the rare and endangered species." Oh, it's not that bad. It's probably the dryness of the surrounding country. You can't move through the timber without creating lots of loud crackling brush noises. In one area that we've hunted, there's a doe with a bell attached to its neck. We have jumped her numerous times, yet we have never been close enough to actually see her. When you can't get a deer in sight with a bell continually ringing, things are tough. We know it's a doe, because she has been seen earlier this spring in the same locality. Now to see her is a challenge.

KURT KALEMBA and his son David came by for the weekend. They had hunted a couple of days near Chilcoot in Plumas County. They said they saw one buck in the 30 or so camps at that area.

This week, a coyote has been giving the local sheepherder's flock a rough time, killing two of them. Bob Jack, formerly of Novato and an old varmint hunter figured to help the herder out. I guess Bob put in a week trying to catch that coyote. He finally did.

We have been continually trying the trout fishing, but they are hard to catch too. The other morning at White Rock Lake, probably 1,000 fish were rising. There must have been 10 million bugs on the lake. The fish were gorging themselves on these and wouldn't touch a thing. In the afternoon, we caught one fish, about a 14-inch Kamloops trout, which was full of bugs. The area badly needs a rain and a cold spell, even a snow, to improve the hunting and fishing conditions.

The buck season closed on the east side of the Sierra crest last Sunday. But it stays open on the west side until Nov. 3. With Webber Lake situated just about on the crest, our hunting will be restricted to the west side this week. I suppose we'll see bucks all over the place on the east side after it's closed.

IF YOU ARE a duck hunter, you might note an illegible number problem and its answer. If you cannot read your 1974-75 California hunting license number, chances are there's nothing wrong with your eyesight. The same thing is happening to hunters all over the state.

Unless you're going to apply for a reservation to hunt on a state managed waterfowl area, you need not be concerned. Fish and Game Wardens are aware of what's going on and will give you no trouble when checking your license in the field even if the number is smudged or otherwise illegible.

But the rub comes when you're applying for a waterfowl area reservation and you need the license number for the application form.

The Department of Fish and Game says you should enter on the application as much of the number, if any, you can read. If you cannot make out the number, simply write just above the space provided for the number, "number illegible." Applications so marked will be included in the drawings.

It might be a good idea if you can still read the number to write it somewhere else on the license in case it should disappear. Meanwhile, handle the license with care. A Department of Fish and Game spokesman blamed the firm manufacturing the validation stamps for using an inferior ink.

PREP OF WEEK

Hurst Catches On Offense, Defense

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Fred Hurst was the leading receiver in last Friday night's football game between San Rafael and Drake — for both teams. He caught four passes on offense for 77 yards and a touchdown, and he intercepted three passes on defense for 46 yards and two touchdowns.

For that performance, which sparked a 45-6 San Rafael victory, Fred Hurst was named the Independent-Journal's Prep of the Week.

As a sophomore, Hurst played defense for the Bulldogs. Last year, he turned to offense. Now, at 6 feet and 190 pounds, he starts both at wide receiver and strong side safety, and he is one of the reasons why San Rafael is undefeated and challenging for the Marin County Athletic League championship.

His coach, Bob Muster, says of Hurst, "I'd hate to take him off either offense or defense. He does a good job at both phases of the game. He has a lot of desire."

Against Drake, Hurst played defense as though he had been invited to the Pirate huddles. Actually, he ran back all three interceptions for touchdowns, but a clipping penalty nullified the last return of 41 yards.

Two things set up the interceptions, which looked so easy from the sidelines. First, Hurst was free to go for the ball because he was getting help from Eric Wheeler on covering Drake receiver Kevin Peak. And at the time of the interceptions, in the late third and early fourth quarters, the Pirates were already buried so the Bulldog deep backs could take chances at interceptions.

Hurst also had an interception in San Rafael's MCAL season opener, a 7-7 tie with San Marin. "I was laying back against Drake because I knew they had to pass," he said later. "Against San Marin I was coming up because they didn't pass very much."

With his four receptions on offense, Hurst moved into the second spot among leading receivers in the league. Coincidentally, the league leader, Steve Hoog, is the man he will most likely cover Saturday night when San Rafael meets the league-leading Novato Hornets.

Hurst doesn't know much about Hoog ("I've never seen him play but I hear he's pretty good"), but he knows what to expect from Novato quarterback Mike Moroski. "I know him and I really want to play against him. He's a pretty good passer, so I think they'll be throwing."

"Our confidence is really high now since the big score against Drake," says Hurst. "We'll be really up for the game." Hurst points out that Novato has to face San Rafael, San Marin and Terra Linda on successive weeks, and he says, "I think they'll lose at least one, hopefully against us."

The Bulldogs are more interested in beating the Hornets than in stopping their eight-game shutout string, says Hurst. "I know we can score against Novato, but even if it's just 3-0 and we win, that's what counts.

"If we beat Novato, we still haven't won the championship," he adds. "The league is really well balanced, and nobody's a pushover."

Hurst pins San Rafael's hopes on the defense, especially linebackers Mike McGrath and Tim McCandless, end Mike Kinsella and deep backs Wheeler, Mark Meredith and Jeff Hooke.

It's not a big defense, he says, "but everybody likes to hit."

Hurst plans on majoring in business at college, perhaps at San Diego State where he has a 23-year-old brother, Frank.

PARIS — Chrysler France officials said today the energy crisis and mounting costs may force the automobile firm to withdraw the Matra-Simca team from next year's car racing contests.

But no decision on whether to continue or cancel the racing program, which costs more than $2 million annually, has been made yet, officials said.

They remarked that economic considerations already have forced the withdrawal of other racing teams sponsored by car firms, including Alfa Romeo. In addition, the International Racing Commission has canceled races of three liter prototypes as of 1976, they added.

Chrysler officials said the firm will continue backing on an expanded basis the Simca racing team grouping thousands of younger drivers for road rallies.

Any cancellation of the Matra-Simca contests next year would in no way affect the close cooperation between Chrysler and Matra, officials said. They said the jointly produced Bagheera sports car was selling well and production now rose to 55 cars per day.

Dallas QB Morton Won't Practice; Demands Trade

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys have until to 3 p.m. today to try and trade veteran quarterback Craig Morton, who refused to practice yesterday and demanded to be traded.

"I'm just not playing and it's obvious they're not going to play me," Morton said. "I'm not contributing anything and I can't see just standing around. The trading deadline is coming up so I wanted to see what might happen."

BACKGROUND

Morton, 31, quarterbacked the Cowboys after the retirement of Don Meredith and was the starter in Dallas' 16-13 loss to Baltimore in the 1970 Super Bowl. Roger Staubach took over the starting job in 1971 and led Dallas to a Super Bowl win over Miami.

Morton last year grew unhappy with his backup status and demanded to be traded and the Cowboy management promised to comply if it could get a player of worth in return. No trade was made and Morton signed with the World Football League Houston Texans, who subsequently moved to Shreveport, La. It is not known if Morton's WFL contract is still valid because of the franchise transfer. He was playing out his option with Dallas this season.

CRAIG MORTON
'Not playing'

"It didn't surprise me," Coach Tom Landry said of Morton's decision yesterday. "He had said before he wanted to be traded. Craig didn't tell me this but I would imagine the Houston developments had something to do with him wanting to go now rather than to wait until after the season.

HOUSTON DEAL

"If he was sure the Houston deal was waiting for him, I think he'd have gone ahead and played out the season with us. Sure I hate to see him go but if he doesn't want to play for us, he'd be better off somewhere else."

The Cowboys said they did not know what action would be taken if a trade could not be worked out.

TWO QUARTERBACKS

Morton's departure left the club with Staubach and rookie Clint Longley from Abilene Christian at quarterback.

Linebacker Rodrigo Barnes yesterday informed the Cowboys he was going to have knee surgery at the recommendation of his personal physician. Barnes, a second-year pro from Rice, left the team last week in a disagreement over salary and playing time. He was in line to take over as middle linebacker for veteran Lee Roy Jordan as early as next year. The Cowboys said they would try to trade Barnes.

8 Of 10 Teams In WFL Playoffs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Eight of the World Football League's remaining 10 teams will make the playoffs at the end of the regular season, the league's board of governors decided yesterday.

The eight clubs with the best records will qualify, a WFL spokesman reported. The draw will be released next week, he added.

Previously, six teams were supposed to be in the playoffs. Jacksonville, Fla., and Detroit folded this year.

The WFL governors also decided that the Detroit players would be selected in a special draft at the league's headquarters in Newport Beach, Calif., today. The teams' rosters will be expanded from 37 to 40 players.

The board also approved an ownership group for the league's 1976 New York franchise. It will be revealed at a news conference in New York this week, the league spokesman reported.

The New York Stars were moved to Charlotte, N.C., last month.

Kampa Is Traded

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Defensive end Bob Kampa of the Buffalo Bills was traded yesterday to the Denver Broncos for future considerations.

Clines To Mets For Duffy Dyer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets acquired outfielder Gene Clines from the Pittsburgh Pirates today in a straight trade for catcher Duffy Dyer.

Clines, with a .287 lifetime batting average, hit .225 for the Pirates last season in 107 games and stole 14 bases. Dyers, who played with the Mets part of the 1968 and 69 seasons before settling down as Jerry Grote's steady backstop replacement in 1970 hit .211 in 63 games last season.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

No-Load Investors Fund Proves Volatile

By ROGER E. SPEAR
and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. Some years ago I bought American Investors Fund at $8-$9 per share, is now about $3. I would appreciate your advice on whether to continue holding. — D.E.

A. Through 1968 (about the time you invested) this no-load was an outstanding gainer. But since then, results have been disappointing. As far as I know, the same management and investment philosophy has held sway throughout. Because of the fund's poor recent record, redemptions have been heavy, outnumbering sales 2.7-to-1. Management is optimistic at present, however, based on "broad fundamentals of money supply for purchase of investments, on the low price-earnings ratios of stocks and on prospects of future earnings growth."

The fund's portfolio is somewhat speculative and volatile. The 10 largest holdings constitute 41 per cent of assets, with industry concentrations in oil and oil drilling and savings and loans. An enduring market comeback ought to move this list up sharply as witness the 11 per cent rise in net asset value from mid-September to mid-October.

Q. A friend has suggested Burnup & Simms (OTC) as a long-term growth investment. Could you give me some background information and your appraisal of its potential? — A.R.

A. After reporting record operating results for the fiscal year ended April 30, 1974, July quarter performance was a disappointment. Revenues were flat and earnings dropped 19 per cent to 17 cents a share from 20 cents the previous year. The drop in price from the 18-19 level to 3-4, however, has more than discounted the decline in earnings. Burnup & Sims derives about ¾ of its business from installation and maintenance of facilities for telephone and utility companies, 8 per cent from CATV, 11 per cent from installation and service of electrical facilities and the remainder from graphic arts. Most of its work is confined to Florida, Texas and the Southern States.

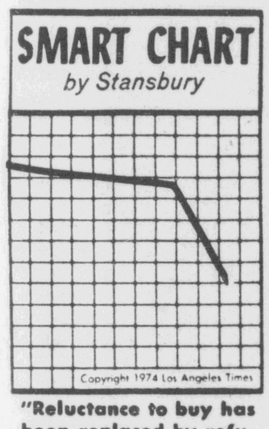
The collapse in these shares is as much a reflection of investor disinterest in the industries Burnup & Sims serves as it is the poor July quarter on the bear market in general. I would delay making a commitment until earnings comparisons turn positive.

Building Is Still Lagging

Marin County's construction activity for the month of September this year was less than one-half the amount recorded in September of last year, according to figures compiled by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

The value of building permits issued last month in Marin totalled $4,812,104, which is a drop of 56 per cent from the $10,939,128 recorded in September of 1973.

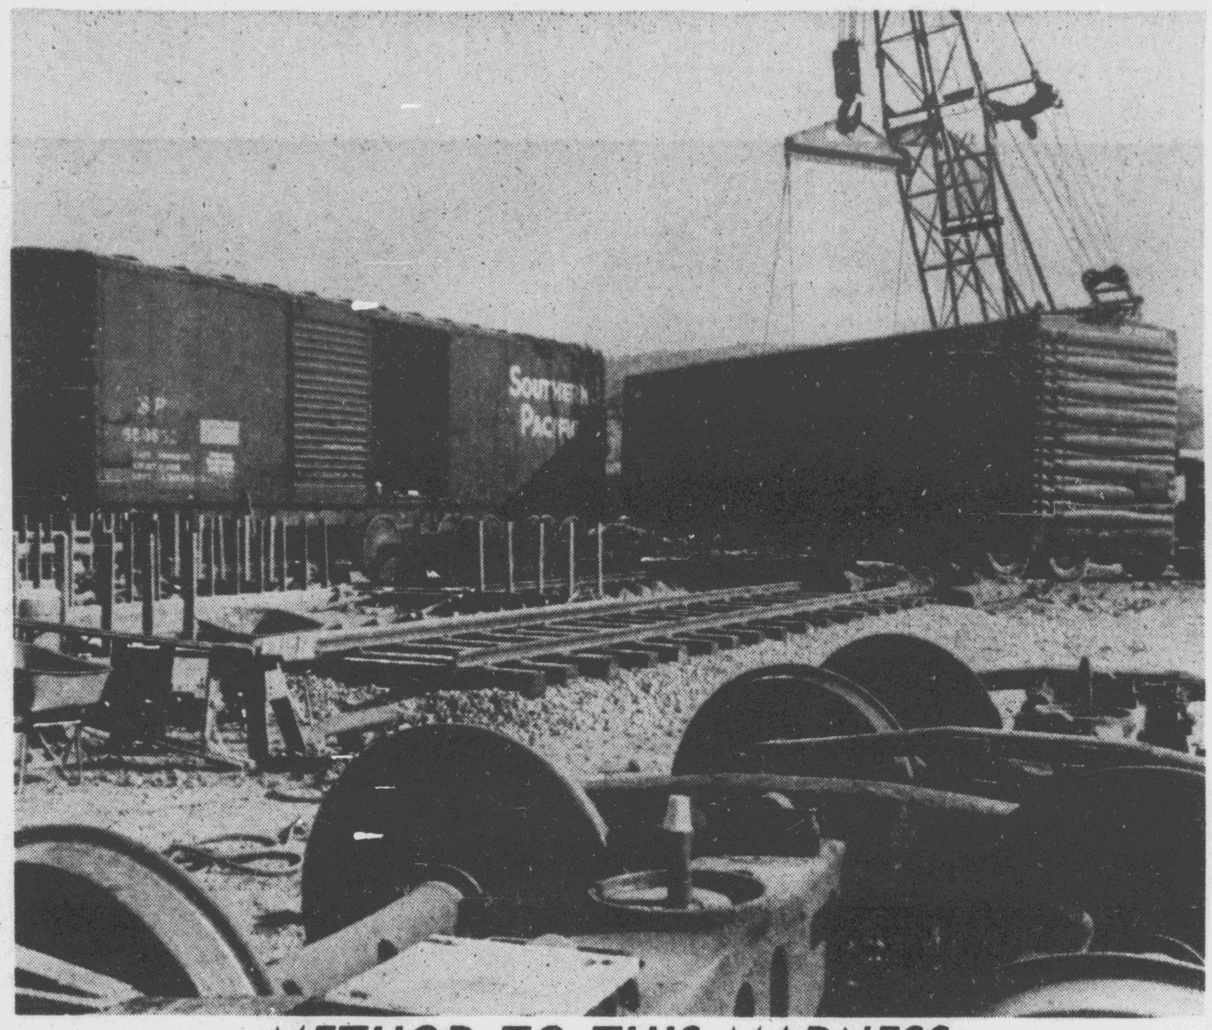
The total value of building permits for the first nine months of this year stands at $65,608,020, which is 35.5 per cent behind the $101,641,109 reported at the same time last year.



"Reluctance to buy has been replaced by refusal to pay."

Income Down

LOS ANGELES — Security Pacific Corp. has reported income before securities gains and losses of $41,745,000 for the nine months ending September 30, 1974.



METHOD TO THIS MADNESS

No, this is not a train derailment. It's a well-planned foundation for a new Victoria Station restaurant going up on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard East on the east side of Greenbrae Bridge where U-Drive Go-Karts operated until August. Four box cars and a caboose, each weighing about 30 tons, were hoisted into place last week by a giant 90-ton crane. This will be the latest in the Victoria Station chain of 30 restaurants, "purveyors of prime rib and potable spirits." Lloyd Weaver, supervisor at the construction site, said he is shooting for completion by Christmas, but it may not be ready until next January.

State To Investigate Mattress Firm Ads

Alleged misleading advertising by Ortho Mattress Co., headquartered in Compton, has been referred to the attorney general office in Los Angeles, according to the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco.

The BBB office in San Francisco reported it has been advising the Ortho Mattress Co. in San Francisco and San Rafael for many months that the company's advertising is misleading and not in compliance with California advertising laws. When revision of the ads did not take place, the case was turned over to the attorney general.

CITY OF INDUSTRY (BW) — With sales exceeding $100 million for the first time in fiscal 1974, Golden State Foods Corp., a major supplier of McDonald's restaurants, posted a 36 per cent earnings gain on a 39 per cent sales increase over fiscal 1973, W. R. Moore Jr., president, has announced.

Construction Upturn Seen In Next Year

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In 1975 contracting for new construction will total $102.1 billion, 8 per cent more than this year's anticipated level of $94.8 billion, it was announced by McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

A leading authority on the construction market, the firm is known for its Dodge Reports on construction activity and Sweet's Catalog Files of building product information.

George A. Christie, the Company's vice president and chief economist, predicted that nonresidential construction contracts would total $32.5 billion in 1975, 4 per cent below this year's level; residential building would reach $41.3 billion, a 12 per cent gain; and nonbuilding construction would come to $28.3 billion next year, 17 per cent over this year's figure.

Christie pointed out that when the next upturn in construction begins, "the place to look for earliest improvement will be in housing."

He believes this will happen at the beginning of 1975.

Sausalito Changes Transform City Hall Into Clothing Store

The present Sausalito City Hall building at 731 Bridgeway, built around 1896, will be refurbished with turn-of-the-century photographs and mementos when Topps & Trowsers takes over in December or January. (The city hall offices will move next month to Central School on Caledonia Street.)

Topps & Trowsers, specializing in young men's apparel, closed one of its shops (763 Bridgeway) last week but will keep the other store at 721 Bridgeway open until the new city hall shop is ready.

"We hope to have the city hall location open by Christmas but it may take until January," said Harold Schwartz, president of Topps & Trowsers. "We want to retain the authenticity of the old City Hall building and create a turn-of-the-century atmosphere."

The shop will have blown up photographs of Sausalito streets and scenery from the early 1900's, an old anchor from a sailing ship, and blowup pictures of the Golden Gate Bridge construction.

Topps & Trowsers, based in San Francisco, now has 52 outlets in the western United States.

BEADAZZLED, a rapidly expanding business that specializes in beads from all over the world, plus fashion jewelry, will open Nov. 5 in Sausalito at 763 Bridgeway, where one of the Tops & Trowsers shops closed.

The new Beadazzled shop in Sausalito will carry a full selection of beads from such areas as India, Germany, Hong Kong, Taiwan, and Czechoslovakia; jewelry-making supplies and macrame supplies. One-half of the store will be beads and the other half fashion jewelry. The shop will give free two-minute jewelry-making lessons to its customers.

Beadazzled, headquartered in Berkeley, is owned by partners Carl and Polly Strand, formerly of Tiburon who now live in Orinda. They already have 12 Beadazzled stores operating in the Bay Area including one in Old Brown's Store in Mill Valley, which they opened in November of last year. Pat Hunt, who now manages the Mill Valley store, will be manager of the new Sausalito shop. Her assistant, Cynthia Porter, will manage the Mill Valley outlet.

The Strands hope to have 15 shops in all by Thanksgiving. One of the new ones will be a second Sausalito store to be opened in about six weeks near the Brass Boot in the 600 block of Bridgeway.

MAGGI WALKER Realtor in Larkspur, formerly located at 1000 Magnolia Avenue, has moved its license next door to 1012 Magnolia Avenue and is in business as usual with the same telephone numbers.

"I am going to spend more time visiting old friends and clients, looking at property and generally doing My Thing," said Mrs. Walker. "People can still reach me at the same phone numbers, and if I can help sell or buy a house, I'll come runnin'."

TREND ELECTRONICS International Inc., featuring electronic calculators and other consumer and business electronic equipment, will establish its first Marin County outlet in downtown San Rafael next Tuesday (Oct. 29).

Trend Electronics will open at 1414 Fourth Street next to Poehlmann Pharmacy, in space formerly occupied by Inter Ocean Curiosity Shop. The company is headed by Gordon A. Wagner of Greenbrae, president; and his brother Stuart Wagner of San Rafael, vice president. Gordon Wagner has been in the business machines field in the Bay Area for more than 15 years.

Trend Electronics in San Rafael will feature calculators from $20 and up, office machines, television, and stereo. It will be open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Friday nights until 9. David Treaner, manager of the San Rafael shop, lives in San Francisco but plans to move to Marin.

"We will be concentrating on calculators," said Stuart Wagner. "Calculators are about the only items that have been defying inflation, going down in price instead of up."

Trend Electronics has been operating on San Francisco's Market Street since two years ago, when it was established as a successor to the former Computeronics International Inc.

THE SWISS WATCHMAKER at the Redhill Shopping Center in San Anselmo, a third generation watchmaker from Zurich, will retire at the end of this year after more than 25 years in the Bay Area, the last 16 years in Marin County.

He is Eric M. Mathias, who lives in Terra Linda with his wife Else, a native of Vienna. Mathias learned the business from his grandfather and father and practiced his trade in London before coming to San Francisco 25 years ago. After nine years of watchmaking in San Francisco, he transferred his shop to Corte Madera Center, where he operated for 11 years before opening in San Anselmo five years ago.

Mathias does all of his own repairing and handles top quality watches and jewelry.

The Mathiases will continue to live in Terra Linda after retirement. They have a son, Harry Mathias, former Independent-Journal photographer who is now a cinematographer in San Francisco.

THE ROBERT BUTLER Co. Inc., real estate and investment brokers, will move its Northgate office to the Citizens Savings building at 950 Northgate Drive in Terra Linda.

The move, from its present location at Northgate Industrial Park, is scheduled for Nov. 1. Robert Butler, who heads the firm, said the new location gives the office improved freeway identity. Pat Ripple will continue as vice president and manager of the office.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

19 mg. "tar," 1.3 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report MAR. '74.

I smoke for only one reason.

I don't smoke a brand to be like everybody else.
I smoke because I enjoy it. I smoke Winston Super King.
Super King's extra length gives me an extra smooth taste
that's real. Real taste—and real pleasure—are what smoking's all about. Winston is for real.

September Prices Fatten Inflation By 1.2 Per Cent

Normal Declines Lacking; Climb Worst Since 1947

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rising prices in everything from food and clothing to haircuts and shoeshines boosted the cost of living in September to its highest annual rate since 1947, the Labor Department reported today.

At the same time, the monthly report said, the average wage-earner had 5.2 per cent less spendable income this September than he did a year ago because of the impact of inflation and higher payroll deductions.

The September figures showed that the consumer price index — the best pocketbook yardstick of inflation — rose 1.2 per cent for the month on a seasonally-adjusted basis and 12.1 per cent for the 12-month period, an annual rate unequalled in 27 years.

The report said retail prices defied economic norms by rising even where they normally decline at this time of year and, overall, price-increases effected nearly every corner of the consumer budget.

Food prices, for example, rose 1.4 per cent in September when they are supposed to show a seasonal dip. Prices were higher for beef, pork, poultry, eggs, cereal, bakery products, processed fruits and vegetables, sugar and sweets.

Dairy products increased for the first time in four months.

The cost of restaurant meals and snacks rose 0.7 per cent over August.

Automobile prices, which usually decline in September at the end of the model year, also increased.

Higher prices were also recorded in September for mortgage interest payments, houses and home furnishings, housekeeping supplies, clothing, toilet articles, reading materials, alcoholic beverages, auto repairs, dry cleaning, shoe repairs and haircuts.

College tuitions rose again on the average and the cost of medical services increased by 1 per cent over the month.

Gasoline prices dropped slightly but the prices for utilities such as gas, electricity and telephone service increased.

The report said the average price for a gallon of regular gasoline dropped 0.7 per cent to 55 cents a gallon in September and premium declined 0.6 per cent to 58.7 cents.

While retail prices were rising generally in September, the report showed, wholesale prices showed a slight decline that was not passed on to the consumer.

The consumer price index measures inflation as it actually effects the average consumer. The index stood at 151.9 at the end of September, meaning that goods and services that cost $100 in the base year of 1967 cost $151.90 last month.

In other recent surveys, the Gross National product showed an 11.5 per cent rise and the wholesale price index a 19.7 per cent increase.

In its report on wage trends, the Labor Department said real gross average weekly earninge had risen 0.2 per cent for the month of September because of rises in average hourly earnings and average hours worked per week.

But over the year since September, 1973, the report said real average weekly earnings had declined 4.5 per cent, allowing for inflation, and 5.2 per cent after social security and federal income tax deductions.

Police Fly Shotgun Above Power Lines In Extortion Plot

Oregon Authorities Firm Against Bomber's Boast

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon state police officers began riding shotgun today with federal power inspection crews in helicopter patrols of high voltage power lines threatened in a $1 million bombing extortion plot.

An extortionist who signed his name J. Hawker has claimed responsibility for damaging or toppling 11 towers which support the power lines feeding this second largest city in the Northwest. He threatened to knock out the remaining lines, blacking out the city, unless Bonneville Power Administration pays him $1 million.

BPA said today all but one of the lines put out of service by the blasts, which occurred between late September and last Friday night, had been repaired. Because of alternate routes available on the power system there have been no power outages associated with the blasts. Repairs to lines restored capability of the system to serve the city from more than one direction, a BPA spokesman said.

Dan Schausten, assistant to the administrator of the BPA, said three helicopters along with fixed wing aircraft were being used to patrol transmission lines in a 40-mile radius of Portland. Ground crews were doubled from three to six.

He said armed troopers were needed aboard the sky craft because "there is nothing our pilots can do if they see a person planting a charge on a tower."

The BPA is the federal marketing agent for electrical power in the Pacific Northwest. It owns some 12,000 miles of high voltage lines strung throughout the hills and mountains, with each mile of power line having about five of the tall, steel towers.

The BPA refused to pay the extortion money, and countered it with a huge $100,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and prosecution of the extortionist.

BPA Administrator Don Hodel told a news conference in Seattle, Wash., yesterday: "If we ever pay even one penny of blackmail, there isn't one power system in the United States that's safe." He said security throughout the agency's system was increased, but believes the current threat applies only to the Portland area.

"As far as I know this is the first incident where an extortion demand has been connected to bombing power systems," Hodel said. "I think it indicates someone decided to go into business for himself and figured this was a quick way to make some money."

He said by holding fast and paying nothing, the extortionist should realize his effort is futile.

Emergency services, police and fire departments in Portland and surrounding communities have been put on alert in the event of a power blackout. Hospitals and other institutions have been warned to have emergency generators in good working order, even though a power outage might last only a few hours.

Dean Says Haldeman Tried To Curb His Aid To Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III testified today that H. R. Haldeman tried to stop him from going to federal prosecutors in the waning days of the Watergate cover-up by saying that "once the toothpaste is out of the tube, it's going to be very hard to get it back in."

Dean, formerly President Richard M. Nixon's counsel and now the Watergate prosecution's star witness, testified during his fifth day on the stand about events in the White House in late March and April, 1973, when the cover-up began to unravel.

Chief trial prosecutor James F. Neal was expected to complete his direct questioning of Dean early in the day, opening the way for Haldeman's lawyer, John J. Wilson, to cross-examine.

Haldeman, Nixon's former chief of staff, and four other former Nixon associates are on trial in the cover-up. William S. Frates, lawyer for former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman, told U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica that Dean's credibility "is the crucial thing in this case, as far as my client is concerned."

Much of Dean's testimony was word for word what he gave at the nationally televised Senate Watergate hearings in June, 1973.

Dean recalled that he talked to Haldeman in California on April 8, 1973, shortly before he met with the Watergate prosecutors.

"John," Dean quoted Haldeman as telling him, "I think you ought to think about that before you do it because once the toothpaste is out of the tube, it's going to be very hard to get it back in."

He said his five-hour conference with the prosecutors was interrupted by an inflight call from Air Force One in which an aide told Dean that he should meet with Ehrlichman and Haldeman once their flight set down in Washington.

Dean said he evaded the questions of Haldeman and Ehrlichman about his meeting with the prosecutors. He said Ehrlichman told him he could explain the handling of hush money by describing it as a "defense fund or humanitarianism."

"John, I couldn't look a jury in the eye and tell them that," Dean recalled he told Ehrlichman. But he said Ehrlichman replied, "I think it would sell."

Dean said he received a telephone call March 23 from Nixon, who said, "Well, John, you are right in your prediction that someone was going to break rank" — meaning that someone was going to destroy the cover-up.

He said Nixon was referring to a letter that Sirica had just received from one of the original Watergate defendants, James W. McCord Jr., saying that others were involved in Watergate.

There are growing indications that Nixon himself will be a witness. His lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, argued before another U.S. District Court judge yesterday that Nixon needed White House tapes to prepare his testimony.

San Rafael Legal Post Is Expanded

San Rafael needs a full-time city attorney, the city council decided last night. (Other San Rafael Council stories on page 17.)

Councilmen declared the part-time, elected post now held by Fred C. Robbins should be expanded to a full-time position and said they will set a salary for the job before Dec. 5, the day filing opens for Robbins' seat.

Councilmen said attorneys seeking election to the post — which is expected to carry a salary of about $26,000 annually — may not retain a private practice.

Robbins, elected to the attorney post in 1971 when he ran unopposed, has private clients while working about 60 hours monthly on city business. His current pay is $1,225 monthly.

Robbins has said privately that he would not seek reelection as city attorney if the council made the position full-time. However, he made no public comment on his plans last night.

The council acted after rejecting two other proposals for ways to improve city legal services. The administratin had suggested hiring a full-time deputy city attorney or buying additional legal time from Robbins or another lawyer on an hourly basis.

Robbins noted that hiring a full-time deputy would in effect

Purloined Leary Tapes Vanish Again

By GEORGE NEVIN

The strange case of Dr. Timothy Leary's companion and a suitcase full of items stolen from her Marin home has taken another peculiar turn.

Several tape recordings thought to have been taken from the Homestead Valley house of Joanna Harcourt-Smith in a $20,000 extortion attempt seem to have vanished, Marin investigators said today.

The tapes, part of a larger haul taken from the house, were subpoenaed by George Chula, an Orange County lawyer who has been indicted on charges of furnishing drugs to Miss Harcourt-Smith.

The disappearance of the tapes, considered vital to Chula's defense is one more strange occurence in a cast that already has more twists than a dimestore novel.

The chain of events began in June, when Miss Harcourt-Smith, who calls herself Joanna Leary, though she never married the imprisoned LSD guru, and Dennis Martino returned to the Homestead Valley home they shared and found it had been burglarized during their outing.

Shortly afterward, according to court records, they got a telephone call from Charles Dewald, 36, saying he and Robin Denise Viertel, 21, a former housekeeper for Miss Harcourt-Smith, had a suitcase of tapes and documents which they were willing to return for $20,000 in extortion money.

Arrangements were made to return the stolen goods at a San Francisco hotel. Miss Viertel and Dewald were arrested there and the suitcase recovered, apparently lacking about 10 vital tape recordings.

Subsequently, Miss Harcourt-Smith told an Orange County grand jury that it was attorney Chula that furnished drugs to her. On the strength of her testimony, Chula was indicted.

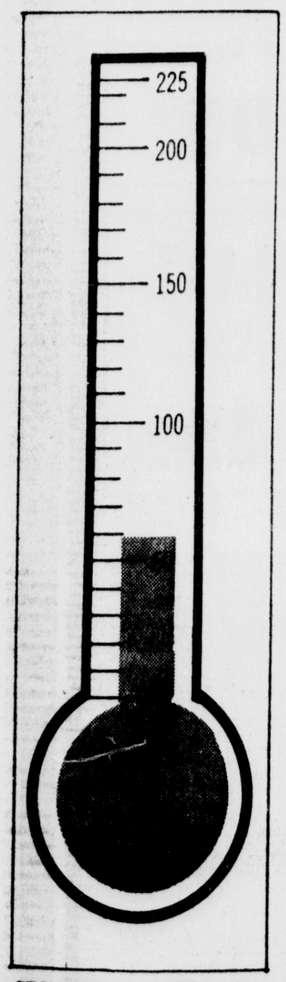
When an investigator hired by Chula went to the Marin Hall of Justice on Friday with a subpoena for tapes thought to have been recovered at the arrest, he discovered some were missing.

Court records show the Marin district attorney's office suspects the missing tapes are in the possession of Dewald's former attorney, Dennis Natali of San Francisco.

Miss Viertel and Dewald, charged with burglary and extortion, entered guilty pleas Friday in Marin Superior Court, she to a second degree burglary charge and he to attempted extortion. They are to be sentenced Nov. 21.

Probation reports on the two quote Miss Viertel as saying both Miss Harcourt-Smith and Martino are paid informers for federal drug authorities.

Other sources say Leary is attempting to secure his release from prison by providing evidence against former associates in the drug and radical movements, and that the tape recordings — both those recovered and those still missing — contain conversations between Miss Harcourt-Smith and these associates.



CRUSADE — The United Bay Area Crusade in Marin has reached the $59,038 mark toward its $225,000 goal in the county. In all five counties, it has raised $6,980,000 toward $21 million sought by Nov. 21.

Gas Rationing, Other Steps May Be Necessary-Official

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John R. Quarles Jr., deputy administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said today additional gasoline taxes or some form of rationing may still be necessary to cope with energy problems.

Quarles said Americans are already going back to buying bigger cars and driving at 70 miles an hour on the highway, an indication that reliance on voluntary cooperation by the consuming public is not enough.

If Detroit does not voluntarily start turning out more fuel efficient cars, Quarles said, "we should adopt a flat regulatory requirement that all cars produced after 1978 achieve at least a minimum standard for fuel economy, and this bottom floor requirement should be coupled with a further incentive to shift toward smaller cars in the form of a surtax on all cars weighing more than 3,000 pounds, escalated upward to as high as a $1,000 tax on big luxury cars weighing over 5,500 pounds."

"We should also continue to consider the need for additional gasoline taxes or some form of rationing to cut down on excessive automobile use," he added. "We should abolish the Highway Trust Fund, so that federal money for highway construction would go through the normal appropriations scrutiny."

Quarles made the comments in a speech prepared for delivery in Louisville, but released in advance in Washington.

Quarles said the automobile is not the only energy problem but it is "a big part of the problem in and of itself. And it is a symbol for all the rest.

"If we are unwilling to face up to the problem of the automobile and do something about it, we might as well forget about the goal of energy conservation. We are kidding ourselves if we think the job can be done without attacking the problem at its core," he said.

Bomb Explodes In Man's Hands In North Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A bomb exploded in the hands of a man rushing it from a Belfast betting shop where it was planted today, police said. The blast blew him to pieces and tore an arm off an 18-year-old youth passing by.

The man, identified as Dominic Donnelly, a Catholic in his mid-40s, had spotted a bomb concealed in a transistor radio left in the shop in Belfast's Catholic Falls Road area, police said.

Earlier, masked gunmen burst into Belfast's Catholic St. Peter's secondary school and kidnaped 28-year-old teacher Daniel Burke from a staff room. But he was released unharmed a few hours later.

Burke said he was blindfolded and questioned. He refused to say what he was questioned about.

Mozambique Race Rioting Quashed After 48 Killed

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — Loyal troops arrested dissident Portuguese Commandos today and restored order after at least 48 persons were killed in the bloodiest racial clashes since a black-majority government took power in this East African country.

Hospital authorities said 33 whites were among those who died in last night's street battles between black and white troops which set off mob violence in the capital's African shantytowns. An estimated 160 persons were injured.

Portuguese High Commissioner Rear Adm. Victor Crespo, appealing for calm on radio, said mixed black and white army patrols had restored control and arrested units of Portuguese commandos who face punishment. But most of the 240 soldiers involved were flown home to Portugal today, military sources said.

Frelimo (Mozambique Liberation Front) Premier Joaquim Chissano, installed in office last month after the front's 13-year guerrilla war against Portugal, said over national radio, "Loyal troops have neutralized dissident groups."

The Frelimo administration asked Portugal to maintain its 65,000-man army in the former colony during the transition to formal independence next June.

The renewed racial bloodshed endangered the fragile peace between Mozambique's eight million Africans and 250,000 non-blacks and could shatter Portuguese Army and Frelimo cooperation in the eight months before Portugal's complete withdrawal, military sources said.

Yesterday's clashes began in downtown areas when an off-duty Portuguese commando roughed up an African in Frelimo colors who appealed to black troops for protection. Civilians scrambled for cover as troops opened fire from opposite sides of the streets.

By late today life in the capital returned to normal. Shops and banks opened and streets filled with civilians. Small crowds gathered to discuss the rioting near blood stained pavements in the main street, Avenida da Republica.

A Roman Catholic priest, Father Joao Romano Alves, was killed by an African mob which battered him with sticks, his nephew said at Lourenco Marques hospital.

Minor Temblor Awakens South

INGLEWOOD (UPI) — A mild earthquake jolted a small part of Southern California today awakening many residents and prompting telephone calls to police but apparently causing no damage.

The Seismological Laboratory at CalTech in Pasadena said the tremor at 5:13 a.m. PDT had a preliminary intensity of 2.8 on the open end Richter Scale.

A laboratory spokesman said the quake appeared to be centered in the Inglewood area 10 miles southwest of downtown Los Angeles.

It was also felt in nearby Santa Monica.

Firefighters Quell Blazes; Danger Remains

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Although gaining control of three brush and timber blazes, the state Division of Forestry warned today that the fire hazard remained high in Northern California because of high winds.

Gusty northerly winds of up to 30 miles an hour were reported.

Contained were a 300-acre brushfire near Redding in Shasta County, a 150-acre blaze in redwoods in Big Basin State Park in Santa Cruz County and a 125-acre fire near Mount Diablo in Contra Costa County.

Still blazing is a 30-acre brush fire in steep terrain in Humboldt County.

No Concession On Oil From Mexico Field

TUBAC, Ariz. (UPI) — Mexican President Luis Echeverria told President Ford yesterday the United States will get no special benefit from the big, new oil strikes in his country, and Ford told Echeverria the U.S. attitude toward Cuba remains unchanged.

Both Presidents had to take domestic audiences and international considerations into account in their public joint appearance, and they could have been staking out positions subject to quiet negotiation later.

Echeverria told Ford that Mexico's newly discovered oil reserves will not be used to force down the international price of oil, but will be sold to all comers — for cash, at the high prices decreed by the Arab-dominated oil cartel.

"Mexico is selling oil to anyone who wants to buy at the world price," Echeverria said.

The new finds have permitted Mexico — for decades barely self-sufficient in oil — to begin exporting petroleum.

"This is very important for Mexico when we consider the prices prevailing in the world market," the Mexican president said, adding with a grin, "prices which we will respect."

On Cuba, Ford said he told Echeverria "we had not seen any change in the attitude of Mr. Castro and the people in his government. Inasmuch as there has been no change, it is not expected that our attitude would change toward Cuba."

Mexico is a leader in the growing movement to restore Cuba to the hemisphere community.

The expropriation of American-owned and other foreign oil firms by Mexico in 1938 has been treated in Mexican history books ever since as a milestone in the nation's progress.

A government that appeared to be reversing it would risk a serious political crisis.

The two presidents also set up yet another commission to study the problem of illegal immigrants who have flocked to the United States by the hundreds of thousands in search of jobs, particularly farm workers.

TACO DIPLOMACY — Rose petals flutter down as President Gerald Ford walks along the streets of Magdalena de Kino, just across the Mexican border from Arizona. Ford and Mexico's President Luis Echeverria yesterday met and conferred on both sides of the border. (UPI Telephoto)

Ford's Border Visit Cheered; Little Done

By GENE CARLSON

MAGDALENA DE KINO, Mexico (UPI) — If Mexicans voted Republican, President Ford's political worries would be over.

Venturing south of the border yesterday for a five-hour excercise in "taco diplomacy," Ford received a welcome that verged on pandemonium from the residents of two northern Mexican towns.

It contrasted sharply with the luke-warm reception that has dogged Ford in recent weeks as he criss-crossed the country drumming up votes for embattled Republican candidates in the Nov. 5 election.

In Lincoln,, Neb., and Louisville, Ky., last week, the crowds stayed away in droves.

In Nogales and Magdalena de Kino, however, the whole towns turned out with a reckless enthusiasm that clearly enchanted the Yankee visitor.

Young Mexican girls waved American flags under a brilliant desert sun and threw flower petals in Ford's path. The square face of the man from Grand Rapids, Mich., stared from thousands of posters hung across the narrow streets.

In a moment of glee, Ford strode down a cobblestone street in shirtsleeves, waving a pink carnation and grinning from ear to ear as a sea of Latin faces strained to get close.

"If only they could register GOP," Ford must have thought.

Ostensibly, the trip was a get-acquainted session between Ford and Luis Echeverria, the popular and increasingly independent Mexican president.

The two leaders met twice behind closed doors, first on the Mexican side of the frontier and then in the United States, but a wind-up news conference at the small Arizona resort of Tubac showed that little of substance was accomplished in the talks.

The public reception was a different story. Schools were let out and busineses closed in the two Sonora towns, insuring a maximum citizen turnout along the parade route.

Ford and Echeverria took advantage of the crowds, walking for more than a mile, at times virtually inundated by the spectators.

Mariachi bands tootled at intervals and hundreds of vaqueros — Mexican cowboys — lined their ponies up along the road in a mounted guard.

It was unclear whether the people came to see the visitor Ford or their own president, Echeverria. Perhaps it was the only game in town.

Transatlantic Fares May Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board has set up guidelines that could force charter airlines to raise transatlantic airfares by 35 per cent.

Fares for charter flights have always been competitive, but the suggested guidelines approved yesterday would raise seats on transatlantic flights to a minimum rate —about 35 per cent higher than charter seats last year.

The CAB actually has no authority to set fares —but it approves prices requested by the airlines. The agency said it would approve lower increases if the airlines could show economic justification.

Neighbors Discover Beggar Is Wealthy

UDINE, ITALY (UPI) — When Ermenegilda Urgano, 78, a beggar, was hospitalized, her neighbors found between $9,000 and $15,000 in her apartment.

Police said the neighbors went into her place to bring her some clothes and found bags of cash.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Inez Garcia Gets Five To Life

MONTEREY (UPI) — Inez Garcia, the 30-year-old woman who killed the companion of a man she claimed had raped her, was sentenced to five years to life in prison yesterday for second-degree murder.

Garcia

The prosecution argued that no rape had taken place and that she shot Miguel Jimenez on March 19 at nearby Soledad in a quarrel over narcotics.

But the case drew the attention of a large number of members of women's groups, and loud hissing was heard in the courtroom when the sentence was handed down.

Shouts of "Free Inez" went up from about 100 more supporters outside as the courtroom emptied.

Superior Court Judge Stanley Lawson repeatedly declared that the proceeding was "a murder trial, not a rape trial."

Jewish Emigration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., say the Soviet Union has set no exact number of Jews and other dissidents who will be allowed to emigrate.

Their statements, issued yesterday, clarified last week's agreement in which the Russians promised to liberalize emigration in return for favorable trade terms from the United States.

Fugitive Kangaroo

CHICAGO (UPI) — Officers patroled the city's northwest side yesterday in hopes of capturing a fugitive kangaroo which has eluded them for five days.

"He was hopping along Mango Avenue," Patrolman Edward Brensberger said of his Sunday night glimpse of the mysterious marsupial. "He was headed south." The animal has not been sighted since.

Moscow Murders

MOSCOW (UPI) — A growing number of Muscovites are troubled by persistent rumors in the capital about a psychopathic killer stalking women in Moscow.

The murder scare is growing by word of mouth in the absence of hard news in the official media. The Soviet press virtually ignores crime news unless used to point up a moral.

Burn Legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Over strenuous administration objections, Congress has passed a measure to expand treatment for burn victims.

The burn program is part of a $45.5 million fire control bill which will become law if President Ford signs it by midnight Oct. 29.

In the bill's preamble, Congress declared that the United States has the highest per capita rate of death and property loss from fire of any major industrial nation.

Dollar Rallies

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The U.S. dollar opened higher today on all major European foreign exchanges, continuing its recovery from a week's slide. It advanced against the Swiss franc for the first time in seven trading days.

The price of gold jumped from $157.25 to $158.50 an ounce in Zurich. At the London bullion market, it opened unchanged at $157.50.

Cyprus Fighting

NICOSIA (UPI) — Greek Cypriot and Turkish forces exchanged fire across the demarcation line separating their forces in Nicosia early today, Greek Cypriot government officials said.

A Greek Cypriot radio broadcast said Turkish troops had fired first in the incident. It said one Greek Cypriot national guardsman was wounded.

Immigration Fight

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — Randy Gellerman brought her adopted Vietnamese son to the United States without the required immigration visa. But she says she will fight to keep him.

Miss Gellerman, of Merrick, N.Y., and the child, 18-month-old Gabriel, arrived in Montreal Sunday on a flight from Tel Aviv. She said she was interviewed in Montreal by U.S. immigration officials and then allowed to fly to New York.

At a news conference here yesterday, Miss Gellerman said an immigration inspector did not specifically question her regarding Gabriel's place of birth.

Tribal Warfare

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (UPI) — Hundreds of warring tribesmen armed with bows and arrows, spears and axes fought a weeklong battle for disputed lands in the Chimbu Valley of this South Pacific island, police said today.

Police said the fighting ended today but could break out again at any moment.

Police riot squads armed with clubs, shotguns and tear gas were hopelessly outnumbered and appeared somewhat reluctant to become involved.

Contaminated Tuna

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (UPI) — Rodent hairs, moth wings and parts of insects and maggots were found in samples of canned tuna fish from 13 of 16 major distributors or canners tested, according to the Consumers Union.

The Consumers Union, a nonpartisan consumer organization and publisher of Consumer Reports, said yesterday it tested 52 brands of canned tuna for color, condition, aroma, flavor, texture, filth and bacteria.

Military Charged

ATHENS (UPI) — Greece's three-month-old civilian government has decided to move against the military men who ruled the country with an iron fist for seven years.

Prosecutor Constantine Fafoutis charged former dictator George Papadopoulos and four top junta leaders yesterday with "moral responsibility for premeditated multiple murder" in last November's student riots.

Kissinger's Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger leaves tonight for Moscow, where he will talk with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev on guidelines for the next round of U.S.-Soviet strategic arms talks.

His trip will include stops in India, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Romania, Yugoslavia, the World Food Conference in Rome, Turkey, and quite possibly major capitals in the Mddle East.

Europeans Eye Loans From Arabs

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — A year after the Middle East war ushered in the global oil crisis, the European Common Market has decided to do something about it.

Finance ministers of the nine Common Market nations voted yesterday to borrow $3 billion from the Arabs to help Western Europe pay soaring fuel bills.

The ministers decided in a five-hour meeting to guarantee payment of the loan collectively. Italy has said it wants to be the first receipient.

The loan, which would recycle some of the $20 billion which Europe will spend on oil this year, is the first joint effort by the nine nations to meet the oil crisis or its financial effects.

Despite talk about "European unity," the nine have failed in several attempts to frame a detailed oil or energy policy.

Instead, eight of them have worked out a crisis oil-sharing plan with the United States, Canada, Japan and Norway, outside the Common Market framework.

France has boycotted the plan for transatlantic cooperation, although it has indicated it may join it later.

Campaign Gifts Reported Down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Common Cause reported yesterday that overall campaign giving is suffering a post-Watergate recession, but special interest groups are still contributing heavily and incumbent members of Congress are getting most of the benefits.

"It would appear at this stage that contributions to 1974 congressional candidates are substantially lower than they were in 1972," Fred Wertheimer, legislative director of the citizens action group told a news conference.

The organization, which extensively monitors federal and state campaign finance reports, said $40 million had been raised by all congressional candidates through Sept. 1 this year. When compared to $70 million for the period April 7-Dec. 31, 1972, it appeared congressional campaign spending this year was going to be a good deal lower, Wertheimer said.

"The major exceptions to this are the special interest groups which apparently will play a much larger financial role in 1974 than they did in 1972."

Wertheimer also reported that Senate and House incumbents of both parties again were getting the lion's share of contributions: incumbents got $24 million of the total contributions reported as of Sept. 1. Candidates trying to unseat incumbents got $8 million, as did candidates in contests where no incumbent was running, according to the Common Cause figures.

Another major change in campaign finance this year was dominance of Democrats. Of the total, Democrats received 58 per cent and Republicans 42 per cent. Two years ago it was Republicans 54 per cent; Democrats 46 per cent.

Even so, Common Cause said, Republican as well as Democratic opponents did far better raising funds than challengers of either party.

In the Senate, 15 Democratic incumbents raised $6 million compared to $1.2 million raised by 10 challengers in the same races. Ten Republican incumbents raised $3.5 million compared to $1.3 million raised by 12 challengers. In the House, 220 Democratic incumbents raised $6.7 million compared to $3.9 million by 162 challengers; 163 Republican incumbents raised $7.7 million compared to $1.3 million by 163 challengers.

The Common Cause breakdown of business, professional, labor and "ideological" special interest group campaign contributions showed a total of $5.5 million in contributions by Sept. 1 and $14 million on hand for campaign giving in the final two months.

Of the money actually donated, business groups had given $1 million, agriculture groups $129,000 and health groups $963,000. Labor groups had contributed $2.8 million, the ideological share was $276,000 and a miscellaneous category had donated $281,000.

Wertheimer said he expected special interest organizations to take a much larger role in congressional campaign financing in 1976, when a new system of public and private financing for presidential campaigns will start.

Times Being Assigned For Sit-In Concert

Children who make reservations for the Marin Symphony Association sit-in concert Saturday will be assigned various times to arrive for the event at Adaline E. Kent School, Kentfield.

"Sit-in concert" appointments will be from 9:30 a.m. to about noon, according to the symphony association. An I-J story yesterday incorrectly stated that children would sit-in with orchestra members at 10 a.m.

Sunday Time Change For Garden Show

The Garden Society of Marin has changed starting time of its 28th annual fall flower show from noon to 10 a.m. this Sunday.

Sunday's show will end at 4 p.m. Saturday's times remain the same, noon to 6 p.m. Plants will be received all day Friday. The show will be held at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Money Proves Bitter Ashes

LEEDS, England (UPI) — Keith Sharp burned $38,000 in cash and buried the ashes in a rose garden because he was afraid tax men were about to discover the money.

Sharp told a court yesterday his father had taken the cash from the family's chicken farming business and kept it at home in a safe.

The father died and Sharp junior failed to report the money, even after tax authorities began looking into the company's accounts.

"It gives a new dimension to the expression money to burn," prosecutor Gerald Coles said before the judge fined Sharp $12,000.

San Rafael Teachers Granted Six-Month, 1 Per Cent Raise

The San Rafael Board of Education last night extended district teachers a carrot — in the form of an additional 1 per cent six-month salary increase — in hopes of settling a long wage dispute.

The 1 per cent across-the-board raise for teachers in both the elementary and high school districts would be effective Jan. 1, 1975, and would be in addition to the 6 per increase already offered by the board. The 6 per cent would be retroactive to last July 1. (Teachers also received 2 per cent raises last January.)

Teachers, who have threatened to strike, had asked 14 per cent pay hikes.

The whole matter was turned over to a three-member fact-finding committee, whose report was accepted last night by the board of trustees. The report reflected the opinions of two of the members, with the teacher representative Han-il Lee dissenting. Lee held out for an 8.2 per cent wage hike.

The majority of the panel, attorney Arthur B. Jacobs, of San Francisco, the arbitrator, and John Liebert of Palos Verdes Estates, the board's representative, concurred on the 6 per cent retroactive raise with the additional 1 per cent hike next January.

The proffered pay raises and other protions of a package accepted by the board now must be ratified by the teachers, who will meet Thursday.

There was no talk last night of a strike threatened earlier by teachers nor of the large number of volunteers which the district has enlisted to fill in for teachers should a strike occur.

In a sometimes heated meeting attended by some 225 persons (most of them teachers), the board agreed to accept the majority recommendations of the committee despite some reservations.

"I'm not totally satisfied about everything in this report — I don't think any board member is," trustee Francis X. Kelly told the Independent-Journal. "But the main thing I want is to get the schools moving again."

While teachers at the meeting, which ran almost three hours in the San Rafael High School auditorium, expressed dissatisfaction with the salary proposal, board members said they were not sold on other segments of the fact-finding group's recommendations.

The proposal to give elementary teachers free time to prepare for classes and the details of a grievance procedure to be used in disputes over unfavorable evaluations of teachers came under fire by trustees.

The fact-finding committee recommended that elementary school teachers have one unassigned period per week for class preparation, if this can be achieved at no cost to the district.

The report also recommended a four-step grievance procedure for teachers, including outside advisory arbitration as a last resort.

The committee also suggested adopting a goal of having no more than 25 students per teacher for junior and senior high schools and 27 pupils to each instructor in the elementary schools. (Supt. Donald E. Leisey said the overall ratios in the district are now slightly lower than these figures.)

Teachers, however, represented on the fact-finding panel by Lee, a negotiations specialist for the California Teachers Association, called for fixed maximums of class size which could not be exceeded.

Approved without dissent by the board were a myraid of other proposals by the committee, including health, dental and insurance coverage, duty-free lunch periods, selection of department chairmen, summer school contract procedures, disability leave, travel reimbursement and others.

Debate on the main issues in contention, through, drew angry responses from teachers.

Board President Herman L. Childress drew boos, hisses and a few muttered obscenities when he said, "When we granted a 2 per cent raise in January it was with the clear understanding that it was to applied against this year's salary agreement."

But Barry A. Hoglund drew thunderous applause when he said, "You increase the superintendent's salary 14.8 per cent; you increase the books and materials budget 61 per cent; you increase the building and grounds budget 175 per cent; and then you turn around and say, 'Sorry teachers, there's no more money left.' "

Board members told Hoglund, a representative of the Certificated Employees Council and others in the audience, money for larger raises just isn't available because of state limits on school spending per pupil.

Report Predicts Pollution From Offshore Drilling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department says opening 10 million offshore acres to oil and gas production could release as much as 8,500 barrels of pollutants a year into U.S. coastal waters.

The projection was made yesterday in an environmental impact statement prepared by the Bureau of Land Management in connection with the department's plan to lease the 10 million acres on the outer continental shelf.

The projection was based on experience with oil spills in the Gulf of Mexico from 1964 to 1974, according to the 1,300-page report.

In that 10-year period there were 44 oil polluting incidents of greater than 50 barrels which resulted in 320,000 barrels of spillage, the report said. Over half of the total came in 1967 when a dragging anchor broke a pipeline.

The bureau estimated that out of a 2.9 billion barrels of production in the Gulf of Mexico the spillage rate was .0017 per cent.

Projected on the 10 million acre leasing plans for the Atlantic and Pacific, an estimated 8,500 barrels per year would be spilled, the report added.

The statement said "the most severe impacts that can affect organisms in communities of marine and coastal eco systems are those that result from spilled oil."

The bureau said it expected that, because Atlantic and Pacific coastal operations would be less intensive than drilling in the Gulf of Mexico, the "effcts would be generally less than those observed in the Gulf of Mexico aside from catastrophic localized spills."

Besides accidental spillage, environmental damage results from lost debris, discharge of cuttings, sand, drilling fluids, and burial of pipelines.

The bureau noted that, because operations would be in new frontiers, there would likely be "more negative responses."

The statement will be subjected to public hearings beginning Nov. 18. The hearings will be in Los Angeles, Anchorage, and Trenton, N.J.

In addition to the environmental statement for the entire Interior Department proposal, separate statements will be prepared for each sale area in the leasing program.

The first oil and gas lease sale was 20 years ago off the Louisiana coast. In the 1954-70 period, 7.2 million areas were leased and during the last three years 1.9 million acres were leased. By 1973 production on the outer coastal shelf reached 1,081,000 barrels daily.

Plot To Kill King Hussein Said Foiled

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Moroccan police have foiled a Palestinian guerrilla plot to assassinate King Hussein of Jordan while he is attending the Arab summit conference scheduled to open Saturday in Rabat, Arab diplomatic sources said today.

Police arrested 14 guerrillas who came to Rabat to carry out the plot, the sources said.

All of the plotters were said to belong to the Fatah organization, the largest guerrilla group, led by Yasser Arafat, who doubles as chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, parent body of major guerrilla factions, the sources added.

The plot was uncovered about three weeks ago, the sources said, and all those arrested carried Latin American passports. The informants did not specify nationalities.

Neither was there any word on how the alleged plotters planned to kill Hussein.

Discovery of the plot led the Moroccan government to tighten up security measures originally planned for the summit, they said.

These measures included moving all 53 Palestinians residing in Rabat to Casablanca for the duration of the summit, they said, and putting them under strict surveillance.

After the plot was cracked, the sources said, Morocco's King Hassan informed Hussein, Arafat and Egypt's President Anwar Sadat.

The reported plot has not deflected Hussein from his intention to attend the summit where his longstanding feud with the PLO will be uppermost on the agenda, they said.

But Hussein will be coming to Rabat with a large security detail of about 120 men. Hussein, at the age of 38, already has survived at least half a dozen assassination attempts over the years.

The summit is being preceded by a meeting of Arab foreign ministers. They met today to lay the groundwork for the summit, which will endeavor to work out a joint policy toward peace talks with Israel.

Tam Trustees Postpone Fiscal Plan

The Tamalpais High School District board last night postponed action on an administration recommendation that a "planning board" be appointed to come up with a plan for easing the district's financial crunch. The board said it first wants to find out what teachers think of the plan proposed by Supt. Robert D. Torrey, according to Marion Higgins, administrative assistant to Torrey. The proposal again will be considered at a special meeting set for 8 p.m. Monday, she said.

At issue, she said, is how the district will cope with limited finances — including what staffing and programs are needed, and which can be cut.

Torrey has proposed a 12-member committee composed of teachers and administrators, a citizen and a student be created to look at the situation and "develop a method for allocating district resources based on educational priorities," she said.

"It's a big issue because it's going to determine whose programs get cut," she added.

She said that the committee "might or might not" make recommendations based on its study, and noted that teachers on the panel might be uneasy about recommending the posts of colleagues be cut.

Tamalpais High School District Board Also:

TORREY — Boosted Torrey's salary by 7 per cent to a total of $37,019 annually.

TITLE CHANGE — Referred to the affirmative action committee a proposal by Torrey that Director of Business Frank Cassou be named Asst. Supt. for Business, and that Administrative Assistant Marion Higgins be given the additional title of deputy superintendent.

SEXIST — Again said girls should be allowed to play on all sport teams. Torrey and superintendents of the Novato and San Rafael school systems will meet with the Marin County Athletic League at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow at Marin Catholic High School to discuss sport participation policy.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Oct. 28.

Computers Helping With Career Choice

By KENNETH J. RABBEN
Copley News Service

Choosing a career that matches your abilities and values from more than 22,000 U.S. occupations can be frustrating, time-consuming and costly in many ways.

At Mercer County (N.J.) Community College, computer technology is being used to help students and guidance counselors sift the mass of job descriptions, relate them to students' abilities and values and suggest careers at which students are likely to succeed.

Within 12 months, the System of Interactive Guidance and Information, SIGI, also is scheduled for use at Illinois State University and at community colleges in Pasadena, Calif.; Gainesville, Fla.; Dallas, and St. Louis.

SIGI is controlled completely by the student who works through a three-hour program at his own speed during one or more sessions, according to its developer, Educational Testing Service. ETS emphasizes that the system is the only one of its kind that is value oriented. "It gives students an appreciation of their values and their relationship to career choices," ETS says.

ETS defined 10 major values placed on occupations by students: high income, prestige, independence, helping others, security, variety, leadership, the importance of working on one's primary field, leisure and early job entry.

Students sit at a computer terminal that looks like a television screen with a typewriter keyboard. The program begins with a game requiring choices between hypothetical jobs with competing values. This leads to listing the 10 values in order of importance. New jobs and difficulties with the one selected are presented, requiring the student to revise the list.

Sixty jobs are typified by the man-made program.

When the student is satisfied that he has sifted enough possibilities and listed the best job, he reorganizes the priorities. Then he picks five values that are most important to him. Using this information, the computer lists jobs meeting those specifications.

The list may be long or short, depending on those values and a new list can be obtained by being more or less particular. Males and females with the same values get the same job list since occupations are not classified by sex.

Once occupations are selected, the computer describes their activities, working conditions and employment opportunities. This is a facet of career selection that the computer can accomplish more quickly, accurately and with more up-to-date information than guidance counselors.

The student's values and career knowledge are combined by showing him the opportunities offered by the occupations in the system to fulfill the 10 value categories. This gives the student specific information about the desirability of each job.

Another vital element in career counseling is determining chances of success in various occupations. With the college and student's help, a key course showing how well students taking it have succeeded in the entire program in a field is provided the computer. Up to 18 variables about the student, such as age and academic record, are entered.

Analyzing this information, the computer predicts the probable grade the student will get in the course based on past performance of similar students.

Then the computer helps determine the best educational program to reach the career goal depending upon the time the student wants to spend to do it. The student sees the courses required, a prediction of his ability to get through the curriculum and at what degree of success.

If he is satisfied that he has the ability, the student is shown the steps required to prepare for the field, including a community college course of study, classes available at his college, programs at higher-level institutions in his area if the career he seeks requires more than two years of college, and sources of financial aid.

Students can return to the computer to revise choices and for additional information. ETS stresses that the SIGI is open-ended.

As its use increases, providing more data and information from follow-up studies, SIGI's accuracy and value should increase.

The system costs $60,000 to $70,000 for the computer terminal and $2 to $5 an hour, depending on the number of students using it.

It could be well worth the time and cost in financial and personal terms to keep students from floundering in the sea of uncertainty surrounding career choices today.

Publicist Asks Relief From District Task

Edward J. Neumeier, publicist for the Tamalpais High School District for more than a decade, today asked to be relieved of "all public information responsibilities" aside from his adult education publicity duties.

"I feel I can no longer be public spokesman or interpreter for the Tam District," Neumeier said in a memo to Supt. Robert D. Torrey. Neumeier declined comment on the request.

Torrey said he was baffled by the request. 'Ed hasn't discussed this with me. . .I don't know fully what Ed means."

Torrey said Neumeier earns $24,975 annually and he considers Neumeier's adult education duties to be a "half-time" job.

Commuters May Support North Bay Crusade

Southern Sonomans who commute to work elsewhere still may contribute to the North Bay Unit Campaign by giving at work.

Campaign officials said yesterday that employees contributing through payroll deductions need merely to notify their employers of their desire to send the money to Sonoma.

For the past two years, the North Bay campaign had a contract with the United Bay Area Crusade under which a specified amount was given each year to the Northern group to account for northbay residents who commute to Marin or San Francisco. This year the contract expired and individual donors are to decide where their money goes, according to Arthur Lafranchi of Petaluma, president of the North Bay campaign.

"I don't have to be hit in the head more than once," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini, noting voters have rejected proposals to make the attorney an appointive position at least five times in the past.

Robbins last night drew praise from Karl E. Hoppe of 335 Hyacinth Way, a former clerk for Marin Superior Court. He called the attorney "extremely well-informed and able, and immensely fair."

The study of the city's legal needs was ordered by the council last July following a flurry of legal blunders by Robbins.

Robbins now commands a budget of $22,425. The move for a full-time elected attorney will cost about $50,000 annually, according to City Mgr. William J. Bielser's figures.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Bagley Is Qualified Controller Candidate

In the campaign for state controller, one major party candidate has raised a serious question about the financing of the other's campaign. And the other, in turn, has attempted to show his opponent guilty of conflict of interest.

The campaign spending question has been raised by Republican William T. Bagley, Marin-Sonoma assemblyman. Campaign contribution filings by his Democratic opponent, Orange County Assemblyman Kenneth Cory, show a total of $508,000 in contributions and interest-free loans from a pair of Orange County investors: Louis Cella and Richard O'Neill.

BAGLEY CLAIMS Cory already has done a favor for Cella and O'Neill by killing a bill by Assemblyman John V. Briggs, R-Fullerton, calling for a special election to fill a vacancy on the Orange County Board of Supervisors. Cella and O'Neill are hoping a Democratic governor — Edmund G. Brown Jr. — will appoint a supervisor favorable to them, Bagley charges.

As O'Neill owns 53,000 acres of developable land in Orange County, this might be worth $508,000. On the other hand, it might not. At any rate, it stretches credibility that any two men would give a half-million dollars to a candidate's campaign without expecting some return.

Cory charged Bagley with conflict of interest because the law firm of Bagley, Bianchi, Hoskins and Rosenberg had as a client Waldo Giacomini, who sold a large parcel of West Marin acreage to the state. Bagley's retort was that he had nothing to do with the matter.

ALL OF THIS serves to liven up the campaign, but it also serves to obscure the real issue: which of the two candidates, Bagley and Cory, is better qualified for the job of state controller?

The answer to that one is easy: Bagley has the qualifications.

In fact, if the controller were appointive and a search were made for the best qualified man in California to fill the job, it would probably wind up with Bill Bagley.

During his years in the legislature, Bagley has become recognized as expert on state financing and taxation. No major tax-finance bill in recent years has been put together without Bagley's assistance. He has been depended on for expertise in this field both by the Republican Reagan administration and the Democratic leadership of the legislature.

Cory, on the other hand, can point to no expertise in matters financial. His record in the Assembly includes no legislation in that line. His own party leadership does not go to Cory for advice on financing bills.

FOR THAT MATTER, it is Bagley — not Cory — who introduced a bill which reduced the oil depletion allowance in California below that allowed by the federal government, although Cory made his primary campaign as "the man the oil companies fear most."

Campaign contributions aside, Bagley has the qualifications to be state controller. Cory does not. It's as simple as that.

The Mercedes Raccoon

Raccoons are fond of shiny objcts. Tales have been told of their stealing bits of jewelry. On the night of the last full moon, the emblem that perched atop the radiator of a friend's '59 Mercedes disappeared. It must have been a lovely sight: That slender three-cornered star enclosed in a circle and literally glowing in the moonlight. Muddy raccoon tracks across the hood led up to and away from the empty emblem socket.

Somewhere in Marin today there lives a raccoon that would tell you, if raccoons could talk, that it is part owner-of a Mercedes.

Is Burton Plugging Nixon? His Mailer Makes It Appear So

It's kind of curious, but Rep. John L. Burton, D-Sixth District, plugged Richard M. Nixon in a recent mailer to his Marin and San Franciso constituents.

The mailer was a 16-page pamphlet listing consumer publications. Burton's photograph and a "dear friend" message were on the cover, including his promise that "you may be assured of my continued efforts to work for meaningful consumer legislation at the federal level."

Turn the page and there is another message, this one from the consumer's champion, former President Nixon. His inspiring thought was that such government information "should be made available to the public and to other government agencies."

WHILE WE'RE CLEANING our file of political items, we might as well add that Burton's humor ran a trifle short when his GOP challenger, Thomas O. Caylor, calimed in an Independent advertisement that Burton had refused "all opportunities to debate the issues in public view."

The ad ran on a Tuesday, one day after Burton got a letter in Washington from Caylor proposing that they debate. Burton tried that very Monday to telephone Caylor to set a date, but was unable to reach him. Burton's office, however, reached Caylor that same evening, informing him that Burton would be delighted to debate.

The ad nevertheless was run by Caylor.

A final Burton item: his San Rafael office in the Post Office's Mission Rafael Station has been remodeled again. His predecessor, William S. Mailliard, also had the former FBI quarters fixed up not long ago, but Burton found them cramped, so expanded into an adjacent office as well. Postal officials claimed they had no estimate of the cost of the work, since it is being done by Postal Service employees. It seems their work is free to the taxpayers.

ONE OF THE LEAST startling announcements of the political seadon came our way recently from John F. Musser Jr., candidate for Marin County clerk. He boldly announced he would erect "no posters or signs of any type — with the exception of headquarters or on the private property of volunteer supporters."

In other words, he set out to put signs wherever legally permissible — just like most other candidates including his opponent, Peter C. Meyer.

More startling was a press release from Evelle J. Younger, GOP nominee for reelection as attorney general. It was headlined "Massive Law Enforcement Officers Support Younger." While it's true lots of law officers are pretty massive, it still left us wondering how all the smaller cops felt about Younger.

"I'd promise you the world, but considering the shape it's in, I don't think you'd want it."

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

An expert says presidential nominees are less likely to come from the left or the right than from the center. No, he didn't say Rockefeller Center.

A candidate for governor in Oklahoma has lost 58 pounds in his campaign. Weight-watchers hail a new miracle exercise — handshaking.

American consumers expect the government to hold down prices on things they need so they can buy more of what they don't.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Supervisors 'More Equal' Than Employees

I note from an article in your paper on Oct. 18 that county employees must rightly fly coach or tourist class on county business. However, county supervisors have no such restrictions and may fly first class if they so choose. Obviously, according to County Administrator Barrows, they choose that way most all of the time. Another case of some people being "more equal than others."

Retort In Tamalpais Fire District Fracas

You recently printed a letter, "Reports on Tamalpais Fire District Disputed." The letter, from the four members of the Tamalpais Fire Protection District board being recalled, stated "errors in fact" printed in the October, 1974, Almonte Newsletter.

Since I am the source of information for this article I felt I must rebut their letter.

My information regarding the loss of volunteers because of their inability to get along with the new chief and the information that seven of our regular firemen have tested and passed exams for other fire departments came directly from the firemen and volunteer firemen in the Tamalpais district . . .

The next item the board took issue with was related to the chief's contract. They state their rules and regulations are "undergoing revisions" and that was the reason they granted Chief Bennett a contract. . .The committee to revise the rules and regulations was formed on Feb. 8, 1971, and the chairman was Art Crebassa, one of the directors being recalled. As of December, 1973, not one meeting had been held . . .

. . .At their (the board's) public meeting of Sept. 26. . .an attorney in the audience advised the board that at least one section of the chief's contract was ambiguous. The most disturbing of these sections stated "the chief will be accredited with 10 years service for retirement purposes and accumulation of benefits." If taken literally it could mean the district would have to plan an additional 10 years of retirement monies, and in the chief's case this could amount to $36,000 . . . Therefore the board was fully aware of the $36,000 issue.

Finds Annexation Best For Country Club

I was glad to see the Oct. 15 editorial spell out the facts about annexation versus CSA (County Service Area) 19, both of which will be on the Nov. 5 ballot, and how they will affect the residents of Country Club. There have been so many false rumors and so much false information it has been hard to separate truth from fiction or fantasy.

As a member of the committee studying county service areas, I feel CSA 19 is, as the editorial says, "at least a step toward better fire protection" for some of the areas involved, since they have no alternative and it is the best they can get for the money. For the Country Club area, it is totally inadequate, and that is why I could not endorse it.

I think it is imperative to understand what second response mutual aid is. Under CSA 19 (Measures A and B) a county pumper fire truck, from its location somewhere on Puerto Suello Hill, must arrive at a fire, and then ask the city for aid with adequate equipment. If annexed (Measure E), Country Club would be served by city fire stations a little over a mile on either side of us.

CSA 19 will cost 71 cents plus the 24.5 cents we pay for county library, a total of 95.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Annexation to San Rafael would cost 92 cents (city tax rate) and in addition to fire protection it would provide us with all the other city services such as police, instead of the county sheriff which we now must depend on.

CSA 19 ignores the need of the Country Club area to improve the fire fighting water system. We now have the worst water system of any of the areas involved. Experts acknowledge this is vital to proper fire protection. Annexation faces the problem squarely and provides for improvement at a reasonable cost . . .

Dam-Created Lakes Compared To Hamburger

Your editorial against Proposition 17 favors the current trend to turn California into a cement and "plastic" state. "Wild" river or not, the Stanislaus is one of very few rivers with natural beauty easily available (for recreational purposes) to the concentrated population of the Bay Area.

I, as an artist, and my husband as a fisherman, both of us nature lovers, can attest, with thousands of others, that "reservoir-type" lakes are not beautiful nor satisfying recreationally; their sterile clay banks and artificially "stocked" waters that cover deeply once beautiful trees and rock formations are like "hamburger" compared to "steak." Just as children choose hamburger because they don't know any better, residents of California will soon not even realize what was lost to them in this ever-increasing move to cover or cement over the once natural beauty of their state. I say let's call a halt to this utterly irreparable damage to nature. What brought many of us to California in the first place will soon be lost for all time if measures like Proposition 17 fail to pass. Find other solutions to flood and power problems, but save the river for us and future generationss!

Jews In Israel Know Preciousness Of Life

I was very pleased to read the article by David Einstein that appeared in a recent issue of the I-J. Too often, it seems to me, reference to the last year's war in the Middle East has focused on the plight of the Arab people — of course, including the Palestinians — and somehow give the impression that "again" it was Israel who had been the "aggressor" and the "imperialists".

Having been in Israel during the Yom Kippur war, I have some taste of the depth of the suffering in Israel when lives are threatened. In most countries of the world, a man might continue to pursue his daily tasks and, depending upon his age and circumstances, could be almost totally oblivious of a war in which his country was involved. In Israel that is not possible. Every person, whether an old jeweler (whose grandson immediately leaves to fight) or a middle-aged cab driver (who has already fought in five wars!) whose taxi and he are willingly mobilized. For just as David Einstein suffered far less anxiety and fear than his parents halfway around the world, each person in Israel, however old or young, is so deeply involved in the preciousness of life and the devout passion of his land, that he suffers far less anxiety when he is involved in it — right in it — than he would if he were to pursue his normal life . . .

Life is precious to all people. No more to one human being than to another. The Jews of Israel, having lived with tyranny for centuries and constant war since the recent rebirth of their nation, know that better than most.

Rockefeller's Gifts Pose Sticky Problem For Congress

The question of Nelson Rockefeller's money is very difficult.

It isn't a matter of the family endowment of worthy causes. This has massively benefited humanity. It is the political and personal largesse that is troublesome.

For one thing, the family money in immense amounts has largely financed Nelson Rockefeller's campaigns for the governorship of New York, and unsuccessful attempts to gain the Republican presidential nomination. Since the American political system has dictated that vast expenditures are required to run for office, it is perhaps ethically preferable that Governor Rockefeller should be indebted only to his kinfolk, rather to the other people who usually bankroll big campaigns.

And it can be argued that all that money wouldn't have brought the governorship for Mr. Rockefeller (as it didn't the presidential nomination) if he hadn't been a very able and politically attractive person.

OF COURSE, those members of Congress who may have to vote on his vice-presedential confirmation and who have received campaign contributions from him should disqualify themselves. That's simple.

The problem arises from his generosity to others. The gifts to Henry Kissinger, Judge Morehouse, and Dr. William J. Ronan have surfaces. I am privy to no secrets, but I'll guess that there were many more. For some time it has been commonly believed that the former governor would help compatible people stay in public life who found it financially impossible to do so without assistance.

It is a fact of public life, however undesirable, that some people need more money than their official jobs pay. Many have augumented their income — and I mean many — on or over the fringes of legality. A great many members of Congress who will vote on the Rockefeller confirmation have earned maney on the side.

It is quite possible that getting help from Nelson Rockefeller was more honorable than many other devices. But nobody can deny the bond of allegiance set up by the benevolence.

If Dr. Ronan's service for the Rockefeller's involved any special favors by the New York Port Authority for David Rockefeller and the Chase Manhattan Bank, this situation ought to be fully clarified and taken into account.

BUT THE REAL influence of the Rockefeller maney, and the almost feudal loyalties it created, is far more subtle. The power is very real. It cannot be denied. It may have been exercised, for the most part, in the public interest. But it was the Rockefellers who decided what was in the public interest.

Nelson Rockefeller has been a very notable governor. He has administered the second largest political entity in the nation longer than anybody else. He has employed and financed very able people. He has set up high significant studies of national and world policies.

Thus he has more administrative experience in high office and more substantive knowledge than most other men in public life. This makes him a very impressive candidate for the non-elected vice-president.

And yet . . . And yet . . . All that money has created all that power and it is difficult to measure. Difficult to evaluate, both in terms of power and of ethics.

A GENERATION AGO, no such man would have been a likely candidate for high public office in the United States. Wealth alone probalbly would have disbarred him — made him automatically suspect. But the Rockefeller maney, so to speak, has been laundered by three generations of charity, and of high public service by the Rockefeller sons. Other millionaires, and millionaires' sons, have become politically acceptable.

The Rockefeller motives may well have been entirely public spirited. The golden handshakes may have been as unsinister as Nelson's "Hiya, feller."

But the power is there. And the Senate's problem, as it ponders the ethics and the politics of confirmation, is very sticky.

Caramanlis Out To Lead Greece On The Road Back

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

On the last day of August, 1974, Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis called upon Greeks to demonstrate "maturity" in their search for the road back to democracy after seven years of military dictatorship.

For the volatile Greeks his words had special significance.

FIFTY YEARS AGO, at one of the many peaks in its history of political turbulence, Greece went through a relatively short period as a republic. The republican experiment began in 1924.

From 1936 to 1941, it lived under the dictatorship of Marshal John Metaxas. From 1944 through 1949, thousands died in a bloody civil war.

For eight years, until 1963 under the premiership of Caramanlis, it went through a golden age of great economic progress during which it joined West European institutions under the constitution of 1952.

After that came moanting political chaos, and military intervention on April 21, 1967.

ON JULY 15, 1974, the Greek military rulers made the mistake of participating in a coup against archbishop Makarios, president of Cyprus. Swift military intervention by Turkey followed, and the Greek regime, already faced with huge economic and political problems, collapsed.

The military called Caramanlis back from his self-imposed exile in Paris and on July 24, he took the oath of office as premier.

An almost legendary aura of success is associated with Caramanlis' early history as premier, and it is doubtful whether anyone else could have administered the dose of bitter medicine the Greeks had to swallow after the Cyprus affair and survived either street demonstration or new military intervention.

BEFORE HIS RESIGNATION in 1963, Caramanlis had crossed swords frequently with the Greek royal family, once telling King Paul — father of the deposed King Constantine — that it was his job to reign but not to rule. His resignation had followed another tiff with the king.

Upon his return he demonstrated again the toughness of his fiber.

This was his release of political prisoners and restoration of Greek political parties, including the Communists.

As a gesture to the political left, he withdrew Greece's military forces from NATO, but retained ties to NATO's political arm. The military withdrawal, he indicated, might not be permanent, depending upon ultimate settlement of the Cyprus problem.

American nuclear weapons, meanwhile, remain in Greece.

ALONG WITH CIVIL rights, the Caramanlis government restored the 1952 constitution which had been in effect before the 1967 coup.

The government also announced it would seek full membership in the European Common Market and closer ties with Western Europe.

On Oct. 8, the Caramanlis government resigned to clear the way for elections on Nov. 17. Forty-five days later, a plebiscite will determine the future of King Constantine, now living in exile in Britain.

Caramanlis and his new Democratic party, as might be supposed, are strong early favorites.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Oct. 22, 1964

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission approved annexation of the 208-acre Fagundes Ranch to San Rafael and agreed to hear Mill Valley's application to annex 137 acres of Alto.

French author Jean-Paul Sartre rejected the Nobel Prize for literature.

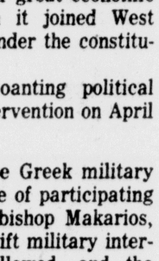
20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 22, 1954

The Army and Air Force announced the first Nike guided missiles had been placed, ready to be fired, at Forts Baker, Barry and Cronkhite.

Communist China charged that 523 waves of Nationalist Chinese planes from Formosa had bombed and strafed the mainland in a period of a little over a month.

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .



"The idea that a tax on something keeps anybody from buying it, is a lot of 'hooey.' They put it on gasoline all over the country and it hasn't kept a soul at home a single night or day. You could put a dollar a gallon on it, and still a pedestrian couldn't cross the street in safety without armor.

"You can talk lack of confidence, but the biggest handicap to a return to prosperity, is that there is an election this fall." — March 17, 1932.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By THERON NEWELL

Half-Opened Freeway Is Already Affecting Novato

Opening of the northbound lanes of the freeway bypass in Novato had an effect on the community on the first day.

Someone inquired where the Ford garage was. The person thought it was right beside the highway and didn't see any sign of it. That would be right because it is on the old highway, and the driver was about half a mile to the east.

A northbound motorist now does not even know that he is going through a city. It is all open space on both sides of the freeway.

THE OLD HIGHWAY route is a strange sight. Heavy traffic, especially during the rush hours, still crowds the southbound lanes, but the northbound lanes are practically deserted.

The state and city should immediately do something about the traffic lights. For example, there is no use in holding up southbound traffic while the left turn green light northbound is on far longer than is necessary.

With the removal of through northbound traffic, some restaurants and gas stations will see how much of their business came off the highway. When the southbound lanes are open, they will have a positive picture of the amount of traffic which the freeway generated.

But the old highway is potentially one of the most prosperous business streets in this area.

It is wide and will be beautiful with the islands in the center. With the through traffic taken off it, local residents will find it easier to get to old town. Grant Avenue eventually may have to take a back seat to the wide commercial street that is still half a highway.

One employee at the Novato City Hall made a goof. She directed people coming from the south to come to the second traffic light and turn right to reach the city hall. That will now put them in Cloverdale.

LAST WEEK, residents presented the Novato City Council with petitions with 433 signatures, asking that the location of the proposed civic center be restudied and other sites examined.

It also asked that a choice of these should be submitted to the voters.

Something happened to the petitions. At least someone got his or her hands on them and copied the names of those signing them.

A woman, who refused to identify herself called several of the signers, asking why they had signed the petition. Peggy Lehigh, city clerk, vows that it was not her nor anyone else in city hall.

That brings up the question on who would have so much interest in keeping the proposed civic center east of Highway 101 that he or she would take the names from the petition and phone them to see why they had signed.

Gambling Ring Brings Sentence

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Reputed Mafia boss Peter J. Milano, 50, and sentenced yesterday to four years in federal prison for his part in a floating gambling ring in the San Fernando Valley.

Codefendants Martin C. Calaway, 47, and Luigi Gelfuso, 48, were also sentenced to four-year prison terms by U.S. District Court Judge Jesse W. Curtis for operating what he termed a "gambling enterprise."

The operation involved rigged machines installed in a number of San Fernando Valley homes.

ART BUCHWALD

Soon-To-Be-Unemployed Columnist Needs 'Win' Button

Dear Mr. President,

I'm having a helluva time. I watched you on television the other night while waiting to see the World Series, and your message really got to me. Ever since I heard you tell us that the best way to fight inflation was not to spend money and not to waste anything, I've been trying to follow your advice with very questionable results.

For example, the next morning I went down to the supermarket and bought some soup bones. I made the mistake of telling the butcher I wasn't going to buy any steak until the price came down.

That evening I received a visit from two members of the cattleman's association, who said they had heard about what I said in the supermarket, and they wanted me to know that they were having the worst year in their history and if I didn't give a damn about the food industry in this country, they wouldn't give a damn about me. I explained to them that you had said the only way to fight inflation was to live within my budget — and you know what they did? They shot two steers in the head on my front lawn. It cost me $89.50 to have the carcasses carted away.

THE NEXT DAY I had a call from an automobile dealer who told me the new models had just arrived at the showroom and advised me to come down right away. I told him that, because of your plea in Kansas City, I decided to forego the luxury of a 1975 car until the economy was straightened out.

An hour later three officers of the United Auto Workers Union broke into my office and asked me what I thought I was doing. I told them the car I owned was perfectly satisfactory, and I really didn't need a new car. Well, you should have heard what they said, Mr. President. They accused me of creating unemployment in the most important industry in America and shouted that if everyone thought the way I did we would have the greatest depression in the history of the country. I tried to calm them down by pointing out that everyone in this country had to bite the bullet — but they were so infuriated, they threw a chair through my window, which cost me $56 to replace.

Well, I got home that night and had a visit from Richard Kaltenborn, who works in a children's clothing store. Richard had just been laid off from the store because no one was buying clothing. Ever since your message, they haven't sold two pairs of jeans. The store told Richard if people started buying again, he would be rehired. The reason he came to see me is that he was strapped for cash and asked if I could loan him $400. I had no choice but to loan him the money since we hadn't bought children's clothing ourselves, and I felt responsible for Richard's unemployment.

Just as Richard left I received a call from Mr. Rumstead, who owns the local theater. He wanted to know if I was coming down to see "The Great Gatsby" that night. I said no, we weren't, because we were fighting inflation.

"That does it," he said. "I'm closing the theater for good."

BECAUSE THE KIDS have no movie theater to go to any more, they're now hanging around the house with their friends, and it has cost me $45 for beer and pretzels alone.

Of course, we're not going to go near a store for Christmas, as that is really throwing money down the drain. Somehow the newspaper I work for found out about it, and I got a call from the advertising department. The man said if we're not going to buy anything for Christmas, they're not going to get advertising and they won't be able to pay me for the column. I'll be very frank with you, Mr. President, this could put me in a class with my friend Kaltenborn.

But this is neither here nor there. What I'm really writing to you about is, could I please have my WIN flag to fly over my house, because I want everybody to know how easy it is to fight inflation? — Economically yours, A. B.

FORMER TEAMMATE — Silas McGee, retired longshoreman and member of the high school football team captained by now President Gerald Ford, sits in the sun on a San Francisco park bench and ponders whether to ride the rails to a White House reunion for the team, set for Thanksgiving. (UPI Telephoto)

Former Ford Teammate May Ride Rails To Fete

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A retired longshoreman who played high school football with President Ford says he may have to hop a freight train to get to his team's Thanksgiving reunion at the White House.

"If they don't send me a ticket, I'm gonna grab me an armful of freight train," Silas McGee said yesterday. "That's my thing. I used to be a hobo.

"I'll ride east by way of the southern route. It's warmer. And get off in Baltimore, so I can clean up at the bus station, change my clothes, make myself presentable."

McGee, 61, the same age as the President, was the only black on the football team of South High School in Grand Rapids, Mich., in 1930. He played halfback and left end.

He remembers Ford as the star center and captain of the football team. "We called him Junie, because he was Gerald Ford, Junior — his dad had a paint factory."

The last game McGee played with the future President was on Thanksgiving Day, 1930.

"It was freezing cold, with six to eight inches of snow on the deck — the gridiron. Jeez, it was cold! The game ended in a scoreless tie.

"Junie was a sight to behold. A big shock of blond hair, and when he hollered at us, 'Come on, fellas!' it was like a — how do you say it? — a clarion call to battle. Just like the cavalry in the movies."

Court Stalls Nixon Papers Takeover

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge has ordered the government to delay any final agreement on turning over to former President Richard M. Nixon any of his White House tapes and documents.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey yesterday heard testimony from a group of historians and reporters asking for a temporary restraining order on the turnover. Nixon's attorney, J. Herbert Miller, argued the former president needed access to the material.

Richey, admitting no one would be satisfied with his ruling, said Nixon, now recuperating from phlebitis at San Clemente, can use his documents — still in Washington — "for the sole purpose" to prepare any testimony which he might give in the Watergate cover-up trial.

"He (Nixon) shall be allowed to make copies," Richey ruled.

Judge John J. Sirica has asked for a medical report in three weeks on Nixon's condition and his ability to appear in court at the Watergate cover-up trial.

The executive director of the American Historical Society said today his group "in general" had no political reasons for seeking a delay in the agreement.

"Our interest really is in the preservation of those papers to make sure that historians, political scientists and others will have access to them in the course of discharging their responsibilities as historians," said Mack Thompson on the NBC Today show.

Richey's ruling Monday: Prevented the General Services Administration, the federal agency supervising the materials, from "disclosing, transferring, disposing or otherwise making known to any person, be he-she private citizen or public official."

Stopped the GSA from putting into effect its Sept. 6 agreement with Nixon on future custody.

Nixon asked in that suit that GSA be forced to stick to the agreement that the former President owns and controls his White House documents and may take custody of them, subject to certain government restrictions, over the next five years.

A group composed of several professional associations and a number of individuals in each field, contended the GSA agreement would deny them and the American people — perhaps irrevocably — access to important historical materials that by rights belong to the public.

Brown Woos Elderly; Flournoy Hits Charge

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

FRESNO (UPI) — Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr. last night promised old people he would help them in their need for better medical care and housing.

Brown, his party's nominee for governor at the Nov. 5 election, told about 150 elderly persons he would work for a state housing authority and financial assistance to build low and middle income housing.

"We have a chance to put a new team in Sacramento," the 36-year-old secretary of state told the receptive, applauding residents of Senior Citizens Village in Fresno.

"We can take a good, hard look at Medi-Cal and see some of the abuses that have gone on in that program ... and make it deliver health care services more effectively and efficiently," he told the old people, some in wheelchairs and others cupping their ears to hear.

Meanwhile in Los Angeles, Brown's opponent, Houston I. Flournoy, has labeled as "totally irresponsible" an accusation by his gubernatorial opponent that a Flournoy supporter was involved in a political shakedown.

The Republican nominee said last night the charge by Brown had "no substance" and was "a desperate effort to save what must be a floundering campaign ... there can't be any other reason to stoop to that kind of thing."

Flournoy was referring to an accusation by Brown during their debate last weekend that John Mayfield, chairman of the Northern Regional Coastline Commission, had obtained campaign donations from timber companies which must seek permits from the commission.

The assertion caught Flournoy by surprise and he asked Brown to offer proof. Brown later acknowledged he had no direct proof.

Since the debate, Flournoy aides have traced the contributions and found they were solicited by Jim Nealis, a Flournoy backer working with the Humboldt County Chamber of Commerce. The donations did not involve Mayfield or the Coastline commission, Flournoy said.

Today, Flournoy began what one aide described as a three-day "hornstop tour of the Los Angeles urban sprawl" which will take him from a health clinic in Watts to "the magnolia covered steps of Burbank."

During campaign stops in Sacramento and Fresno, Brown hammered away at President Ford's proposed 5 per cent surtax and said his opponent Houston I. Flournoy was not against it.

"He is not against the surcharge," Brown said. "He just wants it to start a little higher. He wants to start it between $10,000 and $15,000 if you are an individual and $20,000 to $25,000 if you are married."

After telling 100 persons attending a California Cosmetology Legislative and Education Committee luncheon that the surtax was a "misguided effort toward the American people" he toured the California Almond Growers Exchange in Sacramento.

"Hello," Brown said to women workers as they sifted through almonds passing on conveyor belts. "Hello my name is Jerry Brown."

Speedy Trip By Concorde

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The British-French Concorde supersonic jetliner flew from Mexico City to San Francisco in a record time of 2 hours and 19 minutes yesterday.

The needle-nosed aircraft, which can fly at speeds of up to 1,400 miles an hour, made the 1,881-mile trip 21 minutes faster than had been estimated.

The Concorde's flight was at subsonic speeds over land with supersonic speeds limited to its path over the Pacific Ocean in accordance with Mexican and U.S. regulations.

A group of conservationists handed out protest literature at the airport, asserting that supersonic planes use twice as much fuel and add to air pollution.

But the British and French designers and builders of the Concorde said the allegations had been proven untrue.

Kent State Trial Warning Given

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Federal Judge Frank J. Battisti today warned attorneys and newsmen at the trial of eight former Ohio National Guardsmen charged in the killing of four Kent State University students and wounding of nine others that statements made outside the courtroom may be prejudicial.

Battisti told the two members of the jury that have been selected so far that they were not to concern themselves with a statement by former Guardsman James Pierce that he had lost his job on a construction project in Florida because of the amount of time the trial is expected to take.

"Statements outside the court do not concern us in the extent as they may be prejudicial in this case," Battisti said. "The reporters should know better and counsel should instruct its clients not to make statements of this kind to the news media."

The judge also had attorneys begin questioning jurors in succeession to speed up the selection process.

Battisti predicted yesterday that the trial would take about six weeks.

"The entire Ohio National Guard is not on trial here, just certain members of it," said Battisti in recessing court yesterday. "The Kent State University student body is not on trial. The legality of the Vietnam war is not on trial."

The shootings occurred May 4, 1970 during a student protest of the war.

Earlier the judge had read the indictments returned last April by a federal grand jury to the panel of prospective jurors and then cautioned them "the indictment is not any evidence whatever against the defendants."

"The government has the burden of proof —that burden never shifts to the defense," Battisti said. "Each defendant is presumed innocent until the government proves its case beyond a reasonable doubt in the mind of each juror."

Five defendants —William E. Perkins, 28, Canton, Ohio; James E. Pierce, 29, Amelia Island, Fla.; Ralph W. Zoller, 27, Mantua, Ohio; and James D. McGee, 27, and Lawrence A. Shafer, 29, both of Ravenna, Ohio —face maximum sentences of life imprisonment if convicted in the deaths of four students demonstrating against the Southeast Asia war.

Leon H. Smith, 27, Beach City, Ohio; Mathew J. McManus, 29, West Salem, Ohio; and Barry W. Morris, 29, Kent, Ohio, could be sentenced to up to one year imprisonment and fined up to $1,000 if found guilty.

GAZER'S GUIDE

Jupiter Is The Brightest Star

By DR. THOMAS D. NICHOLSON
Director, The American Museum of Natural History, New York
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Nov. 2: Mercury, which passed between the earth and sun eight days ago, is now stationary and resumes its direct (eastward) motion in the morning sky.

Nov. 3: Since early July, Jupiter has been moving to the right (westerly) among the faint stars in Aquarius. Now, after passing through opposition (opposite the sun, from earth) in early September, it resumes its direct motion (to the left, or eastward), retracing the path it has traveled since July.

It has also become, of course, a very prominent evening star, dominating the sky at dusk.

Nov. 4: The weak and undistinguished Taurid meteor shower reaches maximum. The radiant is in the western sky after midnight.

Nov. 4-5: Saturn rises with the waning gibbous moon about three hours after sunset on the night of the 4th and remains near the moon until dawn of the fifth. The moon will be nearest to the planet about 4:00 a.m., eastern daylight time, when conjunction occurs.

Nov. 6: Venus is in superior conjunction with the sun, in line with but beyond it. The planet now swings to the left of the sun and becomes an evening star, but don't expect to see much of it until January.

Nov. 7: The moon is at perigee, nearest to earth this month.

Nov. 10: Mercury is now at its greatest distance to the right (west) of the sun. This means that it rises before the sun in the morning sky. Its position relative to the sun raises Mercury well above the horizon by sunrise, so this is called a favorable elongation.

Look for the planet in the east about an hour before sunrise, but don't confuse it with the bright star Spica, in Virgo, also rising nearby. The two will be about equal in brightness and appearance, but Spica will be higher.

Nov. 17: The Leonid Meteor shower, one of the most famous in history, reaches maximum this morning, with its radiant just rising in the east about midnight. This is the shower that produced bright meteors by the thousands in 1799, 1833, 1866, and again in 1966.

During most years, as with this, you might expect to see about 15 shower meteors per hour, but often very bright ones. There will be no moon in the sky from midnight on, when viewing conditions are best.

Nov. 21: The moon is at apogee, farthest from earth.

Nov. 22: At dush tonight, you will see the moon, just past quarter, well up in the south. The bright object beneath it brighter than any star visible, is Jupiter.

Nov. 24: Mercury and Mars are in conjunction today, but the event will be of interest only to technical planet followers. Both of them are morning stars, but the eastern sky, by the time they are rising, is so bright that they cannot be seen.

Nov. 29: A total eclipse of the moon occurs today, the third eclipse of the year and the first one to be visible in North America (but only in limited areas.)

The beginning of the eclipse, when the moon enters the earth's shadow, will be visible shortly before moonset along the Pacific Coast, in western Canada, and in Alaska, but in most places (except Alaska) the moon will set while the eclipse is in progress.

The fourth eclipse of the year, a partial eclipse of the sun, will be visible generally throughout North America next month.

All month: Jupiter is the only planet visible in the evening sky this month, but it is a good one, bright and easily visible, well up in the south at dusk, setting about midnight or later. Venus is also an evening star after the 6th, but it sets too early to be seen.

Of the planets in the morning sky, only Saturn will be seen easily, rising in the east about three hours after sundown, and still well up in the southwest at dawn. Mercury may be seen as a morning star, low in the east an hour or so before sunrise from the 7th to the 12th. But Mars rises too late in the morning to be seen before the rising sun brightens the eastern sky.

Banking System Remains Sound, Burns Asserts

HONOLULU (UPI) — Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, says that "despite all the strains recently experienced in credit markets, the banking system remains strong and sound."

Burns told the American Bankers Association in a keynote address yesterday that "There is no reason to doubt the ability of our banks to meet their commitments."

Burns said "in the past year, we have had the two largest bank failures in the nation's history."

But, he said it was equally important to recognize that these failures did not cause any loss to depositors. Nor did they have serious repercussions on other banks or businesses, he said.

Wife Limited In Self Defense

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (UPI) — A wife being beaten by her husband may fight back, but has no right to kill him, the West German Supreme Court ruled yesterday.

The court confirmed a sentence of 30 months imprisonment for a woman who stabbed her husband to death while defending herself against his attack.

The woman had taken action beyond that necessary to fend off the aggressive husband, the Court said.

Witch's Broom Due In Marin Thursday

The Grand Witch, the Great Pumpkin and a television personality will arrive by helicopter in the Northgate Mall parking lot at 3 p.m. Thursday afternoon to signal the opening of Marin's 11th annual Haunted House.

Michael Douglas, son of screen star Kirk Douglas and co-star of TV's "Streets of San Francisco," will speak briefly to the crowd and make the first official tour through the Haunted House. He will be the first of an expected 25,000 visitors during the seven days the house will be open to the public.

Also on hand for the opening ceremonies will be Winnie the Pooh, Mr. Bumbleberry and the Bayou Boogie Band.

Xavier and Morton, a magic act now appearing at San Francisco's Magic Cellar, will entertain.

One young person in the crowd will be given a ride in the helicopter by its pilot, Lu Hurley, KGO traffic reporter.

The Haunted House is an annual Hallowe'en presentation of members of the Jolly Rogers chapter of the Children's Home Society, California's largest non-profit volunteer supported child welfare agency. Proceeds from the Haunted House benefit the society.

The public is welcome — and comes in droves — to visit the spookily decorated rooms of the Haunted House. Admission is 50 cents per person, with witching hours set from 3 to 9 p.m. weekdays, noon to 9 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday through Oct. 30.

Treva Kean will impersonate the Grand Witch at the opening. Mr. Bumbleberry is Berkeley Compton of Sunnyvale, owner of the Bumbleberry restaurant chain. Members of the Bayou Boogie Band, which plays frequently at the Mall, are Marinites Bill Gwynne, Steve Bergman, Rich Newman, Terry Pasquale, Tom Burke, Paul Leighton and Mark Kelley. Winnie the Pooh is supplied by Sears store.

This year for the first time in the 27 year history of UNICEF the executive board has declared a state of emergency for children in developing countries. GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Parents Can't Help Worrying About Teen-Agers In Autos

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I'm 15, and my folks won't let me in cars with guys. I know a 17-year-old boy, but when he asks me to go for a ride, it's "No!" They like him okay, and let him come to see me. But on dates, we walk!

How can I convince them cars aren't fatal to teen-age girls? — 15-YEAR-OLD BABY

P.S. He's a careful driver.

DEAR 15:

Maybe your parents would feel better if instead of "going for a ride," your boyfriend took you to a specific place — and not too far away.

"Riding around" is a scary phrase, but if they know you'll be on the road only a few minutes, they might change that "No" to "Yes." — SUE

DEAR PARENTS OF "15":

All teen-age boys don't drive like maniacs or park like sex fiends. If you like your daughter's boyfriend, trust him to get there and back. You'll have to lift that no-car rule SOMETIME, and it might as well be with a careful driver. — HELEN

RAP:

I'm going with a 19-year-old guy who is real neat and treats me fairly decent, except he has a bad temper. If he gets mad he either gives me the silent treatment or whacks me.

We were watching TV and I was cracking my gum. He told me to stop because I was acting like a little kid. I wasn't about to be bossed, so I cracked it one more time, and he spanked me, real hard.

He has spanked me for biting my nails, not being ready for a date, and on my 16th birthday he gave me 20 slaps in front of my friends. Did you ever hear of a birthday spanking, Sue? Boy, was I sore!

My friends say I should drop him as he'll become a wife-beater. Should I? —LIKES HIM BUT...

LHB:

Birthday spankings are traditional but not much fun. He must have been carried away, giving you the four extras.

Other whacks? If he insists on being your disciplinarian, I'd suggest: don't stay around for this type of unequal relationship. — SUE

DEAR L:

It appears your b.f. "gets carried away" often!

Tell him either his temper goes, or you do.

RAP:

My girlfriends all wear pants to school, but I like short skirts. The guys stand at the bottom of the stairs and make dumb remarks. Haven't they ever seen legs before? How can I stop them? — LEGGY

LEGGY:

If you really want to stop the stares, wear pants. — H AND S

DESIGN FOR PEOPLE

The Anti-Furnishing Wall And Ways To Overcome It

By EMILY MALINO
(Distributed by United Features Syndicate)

In every home there is a room without a proper furniture wall — a room, perhaps, where windows or doors make the wall itself impossible to use for furniture.

You've seen the master bedroom where there's no place for beds or the family room where the bookshelves don't fit or the children's room where only one bed fits comfortably.

Most common of all, however, is the living room without a sofa wall. Maybe the wall has been exchanged for a picture window or a dining alcove. You may have gained a lot of light or a view, you may have acquired a place to eat, but you have definitely lost a wall.

If this happens to you, as it has to me and to many folks I know, cheer up. There is no rule that requires you to place your furniture against a wall. In fact, some pieces of furniture look better free-standing, and an island grouping often provides a better traffic pattern through the space.

The problem with floating furniture is providing an anchor to hold it down.

Of course you can do this with color — by using a strong or dominant color or upholstery against a neutral background — or the exact reverse of this idea. Or you can do it with a rug that defines the area of the furniture, almost like a raft or a float in a lake or pool.

YOU CAN also do it from above. In a contemporary house I worked on, the living room had no real wall for furnishing. The fireplace and a window on either side of it took up one whole wall; a much-needed storage wall held the music equipment, books and a bar so essential for day-to-day living. The third wall was the entry and there was no fourth wall, this space leading directly into a dining area and the kitchen.

Floating furniture was a basic requirement. A spacious platform was carpeted in an off-white linen, the same fabric covering the huge, squishy cushion and pillows on top of it. This inviting seat flanks the fireplace and becomes complete with a see-through coffee table and chairs.

Above the whole island is a generous canopy, suspended by chains about 12 inches from the ceiling. This is covered in silver mylar, a reflective coated mirror-like material glued to a plywood face and sides.

Essentially a shallow, upside-down box, the canopy also contains four fluorescent light bulbs which create a handsome flow on the ceiling above it, lighting the entire room from a single source; a dimmer for the wall switch makes the glow adjustable from bright to subtle.

More than just a big light fixture, however, the canopy provides a sense of place for the furniture grouping. A pearl-grey carpet has the same mirror-like color, uniting ceiling with floor to make a three-dimensional background for a pale cluster geared for reading or socializing on its own island.

Teen Death Try Often Repetitive

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A significant majority of adolescents hospitalized for attempted suicide have tried to kill themselves before, according to a recent medical study.

Dr. Melvin Stern of Montefiore Hospital, Bronx, N.Y., said the survey showed 69 per cent of adolescent suicide attempt cases had a record of more than two prior incidents.

Stern addressed the report to the Society of Adolescent Medicine, meeting in San Francisco in conjunction with the American Academy of Pediatrics' 43rd annual convention. The five-day meeting ends tomorrow.

Suicide is one of the leading causes of adolescent death, second only to accidental death.

According to Stern, who conducted the study with Drs. I. F. Litt and M. I. Cohen of Montefiore Hospital, 71 per cent of the youths who tried to commit suicide had undergone previous psychiatric care.

"An adolescent hospitalized for a suicide attempt is clearly a risk for future attempts," he said, "but we're missing the boat."

The doctor said such cases should be an opportunity for ongoing psychiatric intervention — something of a more aggressive nature than had apparently been tried in the past.

Stern said the profile of a typical adolescent who attempted suicide was a 16-year-old female dropout who was unemployed and was living with a minimum of only one parent. Sixty-five per cent of those who tried to take their own lives used sleeping pills or other internal drugs or poisons, he said.

The Montefiore Hospital report also included a study on the possibility that adolescent accident cases showed latent self destructive behavior, but he said this proved not to be the case.

ART REVIEW

Watercolors Offer Wide Scope

By ADA GARFINKEL

"On location" painting is a favorite activity for many artists.

For one thing, landscapes, seascapes, historical sites or other scenic vistas have a special appeal. For another, variations which can be found in terrain, seasons and weather offer a wide scope for mood and tempo.

The Marin County Watercolor Society, four years old this year, has been holding a number of semi-monthly, informal "paint outs" around the Bay Area for the group's more than 100 artists.

A show of the resultant works is now at the Ross Valley Clinic in Greenbrae.

With its quick-drying properties, watercolor is a particularly suitable medium for outdoor work.

It is both a demanding and a flexible medium. It can be crisply and electrically sparkling with white highlights on heavy, dry paper.or seductively fluid — "juicy" — on a wet surface. The artist must work quickly and spontaneously to record the essense of form, light, space, and color.

Charlotte Britton's "Mendocino Coastline" is a fine example of dynamic flux at its best. Alternating opaque wedges of buff and ochre tones slightly tinted with apricot create a sunlit, dipping coastline. Overlay washes of violet blue and cool green define the water area and its reflections, while shorthand strokes of red and brown create outlines of houses, leaving the sparkling white of the paper to serve as sun-lit stucco or siding.

A. B. Echols' "American Flat" divides the format into swinging arcs with dark, thin lines. An overall neutral tint within each segment, and the addition of a greenish tone and texture in the lower left area defines sky, distant and near planes and in-and-out movement with great economy.

Blanc's "Legion of Honor," exhibits precision in architectural detail while at the same time retaining a whimsical poetry in recording children at play. An aura of delightful enchantment surrounds this artist's "Haunted House," seen as if in a dream sequence.

Washes of red and orange bleeding into each other, and a reflective pool of deep green add up to a romantic atmosphere for Barbara Polach's "Old Quarry." And Frances Barker's "Sand and Sea Grasses," in deep purple and green, is a study in curvilinear rhythms and mood.

Old St. Hilary's Church appears twice, first painted at close range by Glenna Boland with emphasis on the effect of sunlight on its exterior and surrounding wild grasses.

Gwen Sondheimer, on the other hand, portrays it looking up from a lower elevation with emphasis on its Gothic architecture.

"Old Brick" by Lisa Guthrie and "Laines' Grocery" by Russ Ralsten are two views of ghost towns. Miss Guthrie handles her subject expressionistically; Ralsten, objectively.

Margaret Slusher's "Hidden Valley," Mary McKinnon's "Richardson's Bay," and Leola Dixon's "LaPlaya," are other works of special interest.

This exhibit will continue to Nov. 12, and may be seen weekdays from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Saturdays. The Ross Valley Medical Clinic is located at 1350 South Eliseo Drive.

Drake Senior Wins In Writing Contest

By LAURE McCOURT
Drake High News Bureau

Sir Francis Drake High School senior Anne Rzepiela, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Rzepiela of San Anselmo, has been named winner of a 1974 Achievement Award in Writing by the National Council of Teachers of English.

The award is the result of a nationwide writing contest held each January.

Last spring, Miss Rzepiela was nominated by the English department to represent Drake in the competition.

After nomination, the student submitted samples of her best writing, including an autobiographical sketch, and wrote a one-hour impromptu essay. These materials were evaluated by state judging teams of college and high school English teachers directed by state coordinators.

The nation's schools participating in the program this year nominated over 6,200 juniors for the NCTE citations. Of that number only about 850 winners were chosen. They represent schools from the 50 states, the District of Columbia, and American schools abroad.

The council recommends these students, now seniors, for college scholarships in 1975, should they need such assistance. The names of these students are sent to admissions officers and English department chairmen at U.S. two-year colleges, four-year colleges, and universities.

The NCTE sends certificates of commendation to all winners and to their high school English departments, reports Jack Hayes, principal.

Mexican Dancing To Feature Contrast

The contrasting cultures of Mexico's history — from the 27,000 year old Yaqui Indian "Deer Dance" to polkas of the late 1800s — will be demonstrated by Ballet Folklorico Mexicano in a dance program Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Marin Veterans Building.

Seven colorfully-costumed dance productions, under the direction of Graciela Tapia of Los Angeles, are planned.

New York's Integration Needs Told

NEW YORK (UPI) — The City's Human Rights Commission, in a move aimed at heading off possible racial clashes at the city's public schools, yesterday released a list of recommendations to prevent confrontations and ease neighborhood fears.

The commission report detailed the case history of violence at one Brooklyn high school and urged the board of education to take action now to avoid future clashes similar to the recent racial violence in Boston.

The 57-page report, based on a study of racial disorders that led to five arrests last December at Madison High School in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn, recommended:

Establish a "technical assistance unit" in the board of education to develop guidelines to help schools improve race relations.

Stronger efforts to involve minority students in extracurricular activities.

Establishment of ethnic studies programs that focus on white ethnic groups as well as blacks and Puerto Ricans.

Faculty seminars on integration.

The report disputed the contention that the incidents at Madison were caused by "a few bad apples" or the lack of adequate security measures.

The report said "the commission finds that the unusually widespread failure to recognize the existence of problems whose content was in part racial was itself a contributory factor to these problems."

Despite its specific recommendations, the report also said: "The fact is, we know how to integrate — through redistricting, reassignment of students, busing. What we do not know is how to make integration work on a permanent basis."

Rights Group Split Over Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — The Congress on Racial Equality yesterday came out against court-ordered busing to desegregate city schools, saying it prefers black control in the black neighborhoods.

The CORE statement put the group in direct conflict with the NAACP, which filed the class action suit leading to the federal court order to bus 18,235 students. The NAACP has consistently supported the order.

Mary Dennison, acting national director of CORE, said "we feel that busing became the issue because no alternative to achieve quality education was available."

"CORE calls for desegregation through community control because the most obnoxious feature of segregation is not the fact that black and white children are not sitting next to each other," she said.

"The fact that whites control schools in the black community as well as in their own is the feature of segregation which is intolerable."

Ms. Dennison said she will request an immediate end to the busing ordered by U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity June 21. The judge now is drafting a long-range school desegregation order for next fall.

Cardinal Humberto Medeiros, Roman Catholic bishop of the Boston archdiocese, yesterday said he "appreciates the feelings of those who do not want their children bused."

However, he said, "No other means to achieve integration has been discovered and I am for integration of schools."

Metal detectors were used today to search students entering four high schools.

School officials said three knives were confiscated at Hyde Park High School as a result of the searches using a walk-through type detector, much like those used at airports for security checks.

Officials did not identify the other three schools where searches were made but said hand-held detectors were used at those locations.

Three observers from the Detroit Police Department joined Boston Police Commissioner Robert J. diGrazia, former Novato police chief, at Hyde Park to observe the use of the detector.

Racial incidents were reported in and around a number of schools yesterday, including two robbery attempts.

One robbery victim, a 14-year-old white student at Grover Cleveland School, was treated and released for a knife wound on the hand. The second victim, who was threatened with a carving fork at the Curley School, was not injured.

Officials also reported that a white girl was injured when attacked by a black boy at an annex to South Boston High School and a white girl was threatened by a black male with a knife at English High School.

Attendance citywide increased to 77.8 per cent, the highest figure since Oct. 3, when it was 80.3 per cent.

Openings Available On Tahoe Bus Outing

Some spaces are still available on the Corte Madera Recreation Department's bus trip to the Lake Tahoe area, scheduled Oct. 26-27, according to recreation director Jacqueline A. Branch.

The bus will visit Ormsby House in Carson City, Nev., then continue to the Wayside Inn at South Tahoe Saturday night. The trip costs $21.95, with a refund of $6 and four drinks at the destination.

Hayakawa To Give Speech In Petaluma

S.I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley, former president of San Francisco State University, will discuss "The Businessman As Revolutionary" at 8 p.m. today at the Veterans Memorial Building in Petaluma.

The talk is sponsored by Sonoma Republican women seeking the election of John Harmer as Lieutenant Governor and Houston I. Flournoy as Governor.

Reagan Names Novato Woman To State Board

Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday appointed Mildred Jane Yorke of Novato to a four-year term on the state Bord of Cosmetology.

She will be one of two nonprofessional members of the board which regulates health and safety standards in the beauty business.

Mrs. Yorke, a Republican, is the wife of Harvey F. Yorke, state chief of information services and a member of the governor's staff.

The couple has three children.

A nine-year resident of Novato, Mrs. Yorke has been a volunteer for fund drive campaigns in Marin.

U.S. Reduces Civilian Employees Working For Saigon Air Force

SAIGON (UPI) — The United States has cut out jobs for more than three out of four American civilian technicians assisting and training the South Vietnamese air force in a money-saving move, American sources said today.

The sources estimated the elimination of jobs for 1,272 Americans and 879 Vietnamese civilians by the end of this month will save $19 million in U.S. military aid funds during the next year.

Elimination of the jobs came at a time when South Vietnam is beset with inflation and unemployment.

Spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Saigon confirmed the cuts and said they were made reluctantly following Congressional cutbacks in American aid to South Vietnam.

Two weeks ago President Ford signed a military aid bill for $700 million a year for South Vietnam, less than half the amount requested by administration officials.

"There was considerable reluctance to cut out these jobs," said the spokesman. "They were made only because funds were unavailable."

Most of those affected have been working at major air bases, maintaining South Vietnamese aircraft and teaching Vietnamese airmen how to service the planes and helicopters.

At present 2,186 American civilians assist the South Vietnamese armed forces. All of them are paid out of military aid funds.

Officials said by the end of the month, the pool of American military technicians helping the Vietnamese will be down to only 506.

In addition, 305 civilians are paid out of economic aid funds.

U.S. sources said all jobs are currently being looked at, and that further cuts in the contracting force could come soon.

"The essential people will remain," said the spokesman. "This cutback shouldn't affect the combat capabilities of the Vietnamese air force, but it will make things more difficult."

The Viet Cong has continually protested the presence of the American contracting force since the Jan. 28, 1973, cease-fire agreement. The Communists have claimed that 25,000 military men disguised as civilians have been advising the South Vietnamese forces.

U.S. sources said it cost $45 million to maintain the force of contractors last year. The cuts made public today should cut expenditures to $26 million.

Reagan May Try To Win Presidency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan says he might run as a third party presidential candidate in 1976 if the two major parties fail to represent "the will of the American people."

Reagan also said President Ford could be challenged for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination "if things have grown worse instead of better" for his administration.

The conservative Republican made his remarks in a taped television interview last night on the Public Broadcasting Service.

Reagan has repeatedly urged Ford to chart his programs and policies in line with what he terms the "conservative mandate" won by President Nixon in his 1972 landslide re-election victory.

Asked if that mandate "is violated in your eyes, would you then lead a third party movement in 1976?" Reagan replied:

"Well, whether I would lead the movement or whether I would join in support of such a movement I think would have to depend on whether it became evident that both parties had so far failed that they no longer could represent the will of the American people."

"In other words, you're not closing the door to the possibility?" he was asked.

"I am saying," Reagan added, "that such a possibility would exist under those circumstances. I am hoping it won't be necessary."

Antifreeze Sale A Traffic Jam

FALL RIVER, Mass. (UPI) — The Zayre Department Store yesterday advertised a sale on antifreeze at $3.99 per gallon. When the store opened its doors at 9 a.m., more than 1,000 persons poured in.

In less than an hour the entire stock of more than 1,400 gallons had been sold out, the general manager of the automotive section was struck in the head with a box, and several persons were knocked to the floor and trampled by the crowd.

Traffic was backed up for several miles around the store. The going price in the area is $4.50 a gallon.

Starting October 29, we're going to change our tune.

EXCLUSIVE BUS LANES FOR MID-MARIN?

Morning commute traffic (left lanes) pours south on Highway 101 in Corte Madera in a view which shows two new traffic lanes and center barrier soon to be completed. It has been proposed that the inside southbound lane be set aside for bus use during morning commute hours and the inside northbound lane reserved for buses in the evenings. That suggestion and a recommendation to allow car pools to use the lanes is under consideration by the state Department of Transportation. A decision is expected by mid-November.

Council Favors Parking Site Buy

Mill Valley probably will buy an abandoned Miller Avenue service station for a parking lot, the city council decided last night.

But before completing the deal, the city attorney should look over the title report on the property, councilmen also agreed.

The council will hold a special meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the city manager's office to vote on the purchase if the city attorney reports all is in order.

Earlier this year, the city bought a $2,500 option on the property from owner Gary R. Shapiro of Oakland. The option expires at the end of the month.

If the council decides to buy the lot to replace some parking lost in the Miller Avenue improvement project, they will owe Shapiro another $65,000.

However, councilmen said last night that an appraisal of the property in the 300 block of Miller put its market value at $100,000.

The Miller Avenue improvement project has eliminated about two blocks of the city's middle-of-the-street parking.

Originally, Mill Valley officials had hoped to persuade property owners in the area to form an assessment district to buy the lot and provide parking meters. But the businessmen declined.

"This sort of approach bothers me philosophically," said Councilman Jean S. Barnard. "Having attempted an assessment district which failed, now we decide to have the city go ahead with it anyway."

But Mayor Robert E. Burton said that the purchase also could be justified because it will provide a new access to the Park Terrace subdivision and a creekside park lying behind it.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

OFFICES — Noted that city approval of an office-restaurant complex on Redwood Highway, proposed by Sidney Hendricks of Strawberry, does not include approval of a boat dock in the project. A planning commissioner had complained that previous city actions made it unclear as to whether the dock could be built.

PARKING ZONE — Continued to Nov. 4 a request from several merchants to remove a no parking zone along the curb between 294 and 326 Miller Avenue.

SUBDIVISION — Decided to write to the county planning department saying there are inadequacies in an environmental impact report prepared for a subdivision of six acres belonging to Ellis Lando and lying in the Fern Canyon Road area just outside the city limits.

TAXIS — Granted licenses for the Bel Aire Cab Co. to run two more taxis in the city. The company already operates eight cabs in Mill Valley.

CARNIVALS — Agreed to impose a $100 per day limit on license fees for carnivals sponsored by charitable organizations. Under a previous law, the groups could be charged more than ten times that amount.

GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE — Asked the bridge district to open the bridge to pedestrians and bikers for 24 hours a day.

RICHMOND BRIDGE — Asked state toll Bridge Authority to reserve one lane of the bridge on weekends for bicycle traffic.

PROPANE — Voted to spend $6,300 to convert 10 city vehicles to propane gas. The city engineer estimated that conversion could cut fuel costs from 5.4 cents to 3 cents per gallon.

CABLE TV — Formed a new cable television committee to prepare a series of television programs on Mill Valley themes. The city recently agreed to spend $6,000 on the programs.

OLD MILL — Held a closed session with the city attorney to discuss possible litigation against the Old Mill Bar. The tavern Saturday night violated a city law requiring use permits for playing live music at nightspots.

Mill Valley Principals Win 8 Per Cent Pay Hikes

Eleven principals and other administrators in the Mill Valley school district have won cost-of-living raises averaging about 8 per cent, according to Supt. Peter Palches.

Palches said the administrators yesterday agreed to the settlement which will cost the district $18,500 annually.

The principals and administrators received increases ranging from 8 to 8.2 per cent each. Teachers and clerical employees received an 8.2 per cent increase earlier this year.

Palches said the school board will ratify the agreement formally at its Oct. 28 meeting.

The increase does not apply to Palches' salary which will be considered separately by the board.

City Bristles At Probing By Human Rights Agency

The Marin County Human Rights Commission is "overzealous" and should keep out of municipal affairs, San Rafael City Councilmen said last night. (Another San Rafael Council story on page 1.)

The council objected to the county commission's probe into two charges of misconduct on the part of San Rafael police.

The group has investigated a Terra Linda mother's contention that her son was questioned improperly during a murder investigation and charges by Terra Linda teenagers that police used excessive force to break up a beer party.

The commission has held public hearings on a complaint by Jeannette Pomeroy that the civil rights of her 12-year-old son were violated by San Rafael police inspectors during an investigation of the slaying of Lucy Ann Gilbride and on charges by Terra Linda teens that police used unnecessary force during a raid on a party on Skyview Drive in August. (The commission on Thursday will consider a report by Police Chief Lawrence R. Kelly that the teen brutality allegations are unfounded.)

City Mgr. William J. Bielser last night reported, however, that the commission is "overstepping the bounds on which it operates" by considering municipal matters since it has no jurisdiction within city limits.

He produced a copy of a county ordinance creating the commission, which sets the agency's scope as "applying throughout the unincorporated areas of Marin County. Nothing herein shall create any rights, powers or duties in conflict with any state, federal or municipal law," the regulation adds.

City Atty. Fred C. Robbins agreed, saying the commission has no authority over any action that takes place in the city.

City councilmen criticized the rights agency for being too zealous and went on to say that the council can handle any investigations of city departments which are deemed necessary.

Chief Kelly did not attend the commission's Thursday session.

Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan expressed concern at what he called "the recurring publicity with respect to the police department" and said the council should review a report of police conduct at the teen beer party.

The San Rafael City Council Also:

CLAIMS — Denied a $90 claim by Kenneth Brewer for damage to his car resulting from a collision with a city police vehicle, and a claim for $100,000 by Robert K. Goldman, injured in a motorcycle accident in the city.

FREITAS — Denied a $492,953 claim by Carlos R. Freitas, who believes a city building ban and other actions have diminished the value of land he owns in Terra Linda.

TRIM — Approved a $14,500 contract for trimming 23 trees on Grand Avenue.

PATHS — Told the Public Works Department that development of a bicycle path plan for the city is a top priority.

ROBERT DOLLAR — Said Mission Avenue between C and E streets will be temporarily closed from 11 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Nov. 3 due to a band concert planned at the Robert Dollar Estate. The event is in support of a city tax measure to buy the estate.

BOARD — Said the City Board of Review has denied the appeal of policeman Richard C. Michaelsen, who balked at being transferred from traffic to patrol divisions.

Share Buying Spurs Ethics Code Study

The San Rafael city administration was directed to explore the possibility of developing a "code of ethics" for city employees last night by the city council.

The action was spurred by Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan, who said he was particularly concerned with acquisition of stocks by employees.

"We ought to have some policy guidelines . . . as far as acquisition of stocks," said Mulryan. The move is needed "so we don't have staff in a position of embarrassment because of poor judgement . . ."

At issue is a disclosure by Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner that he is a stockholder in Larwin Mortgate Investors, a Los Angeles-based financing firm that owns a 133-acre parcel within city limits. Hotchner made the disclosure in a statement of economic interest he filed with the county.

(As previously reported, Hotchner owns 150 shares of the firm, and said he bought the shares at about "$15 or $20" apiece last year. The stock is worth about $2.50 per share today. The firm in 1972 approached city staff with a proposal to build 1,400 apartment, townhouse and condominium units on its land, but never applied for formal review.

Hotchner has denied any conflict of interest in the situation, saying his interest in the firm is miniscule and that he has done nothing illegal.)

Mulryan's call for "guidelines" governing such situations was met with a warning by City Mgr. William J. Bielser that the issue is legally sensitive. "It's a touchy legal area when we start restricting rights of employees," Bielser said.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini also urged a cautious approach to the situation.

Hotchner, absent last night to attend a League of California Cities conference in Los Angeles, on Saturday mailed a form letter to city officials and local newspapers attacking press reports of his stockholding.

"Success in a business or profession and investments that are building blocks towards one's retirement are not signs of dishonesty," according to the Hotchner letter.

Hotchner contends report of his stockholding was made out of context and has created misimpressions that have defamed him.

Ross Board Denies Sick Leave Plan

Ross schoolteachers won't be able to share their unused sick leave with other teachers, the district board decided last night.

Trustees rejected a teachers' plan to establish a sick leave bank from which teachers with long illnesses could draw. Under the proposal, each teacher would donate one day of his sick leave to the bank, and the pool of paid days off could have been used by teachers needing more than the allotted number, according to Dist. Supt. Thomas A. Anderson.

In a related matter, the board decided that leave could be used for paid absences during maternity leave.

Ross School District trustees also:

TEACHERS — Agreed to recognize the Ross School District Teachers Association as the official organization representing teachers.

GIFTS — Accepted a variety of gifts, from a guinea pig and a planter box to library books, on behalf of the school.

COMMITTEES — Named George Schorhe to fill a vacancy on the early childhood education committee and appointed Ramona Zulch, Lori Norby and Bill Nicholson to fill three open spots on the district's citizens advisory committee.

Pathway Action Postponed By Corte Madera

The Corte Madera Town Council last night postponed any action on proposed bicycle and pedestrian paths until budget time next year.

Clifford E. Temps, director of public works, described a $5,000 paving project for the High Canal easement, which has been used for years as an informal bicycle path. The council postponed the paving plan until next summer.

The council also decided not to spend any money at this time for improving the bicycle path on San Clemente Drive or on a request from the Hidden Valley Homeowners Association for a foot path in the hilly area.

In other action, the council agreed to plant a "liberty tree" in honor of the American Revolution Bicentennial in the town park.

Smith Quits Post In Fire District

Sherman R. Smith last night resigned as secretary of the Bolinas Fire Protection district.

Smith cited "personal reasons" for his decision to step down. Directors hired as his replacement Jean Ridella of Bolinas who will be paid $60 a month.

Informational Books Available On Alcoholics

Informational books on alcohol are now available for circulation at city and county public libraries, the Alcohol Information Committee has announced.

Claude Steiner's "Games Alcoholics Play" and the cooperative committee on alcoholism's "Report to the Nation" are available.

The books are the latest of those purchased by the committee with funds from several Marin County Rotary clubs, according to a committee spokesman.

General Plan Adopted; No Debate

By NELS JOHNSON

San Rafael's new general plan — the result of more than two years of work by city leaders, citizens and consultants — was adopted by the city council last night.

The council, moving swiftly and without debate, approved the plan on a 4-0 vote. Councilman John A. Miskimen was absent.

The action followed six public hearings in which the council polished the plan forged in 27 hearings held by the city planning commission.

"I think it is the most outstanding job any commission has done," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini of the planning agency's work. Colleagues agreed the commission had logged an extraordinary performance.

The planning agency, which trimmed an inch-thick proposal submitted by Berkeley consultants Duncan and Jones last January into a 22-page plan, "made our work easy," councilmen said.

Last night's adoption of the plan came without any of the debate or controversy that marked early evolution of the document. The council last November fired Jorgen V. Lunding, former chairman of the planning commission, for attempting to influence the course of the plan, and later docked consultants Duncan and Jones $3,500 of a $79,100 fee for attempting to manipulate the plan's policies.

The emerging plan also generated controversy over proposals to place a massive transportation hub in the city's commercial core and to boost the proportion of moderate income housing in the city, among other matters. Debate died, however, as city agencies pared the document of many controversial measures.

The plan adopted by the council last night is essentially the same proposal recommended for adoption by the planning commission, although councilmen had cut several proposals, among them plans to expand the city redevelopment agency to generate funds for subsidized housing and to pave four miles of fire roads through undeveloped lands.

The new general plan rejects notions of growth quotas and proposes instead to control residential expansion by linking it with environmental "holding capacity" and availabliity of city services. Under a "residential review procedure," development proposals will be gathered and submitted to city agencies for review on a qquarterly basis.

Other major features of the 1974 San Rafael General Plan include:

1. A policy whereby the city will "attempt to maintain as a minimum" the current proportion of low and moderate income housing in the city.

2. A neighborhood planning district zone calling for precise neighborhood plans to replace existing zoning in older sections of the city. Neighborhood plans would link local growth to desires of residents, environmental factors, services, and other matters.

3. A proposal that urban development be intensified in the downtown San Rafael and Northgate shopping center areas.

4. A recommendation that the San Rafael Canal and the bayshore east of Highway 17 be converted into a water-oriented open space and recreational areas.

5. A plan for a new road to run along a railway spur from A and Second streets through East San Rafael to Bellam and Andersen drives.

The San Rafael plan also calls for greenbelt areas and citizen participation in local planning.

Sonoma Voter Registration Reaches Record

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Voter registration in Sonoma has reached a record high of 130,117, according to County Clerk Eugene D. Williams.

He said the total is an increase of 14,955 over the 123,028 who were registered to vote in the June primary. The total at the time of the 1972 general election was 108,073, William said.

Of the new total, 72,524 are Democrats; 47,392 Republicans; 1,798 Peace and Freedom; 615 American Independent; 66 classified as "miscellaneous" and 7,122 declined to state.

Architects Selected

The Novato Fire Protection District board last night selected Sausalito architects Politzer and Sontheimer to design the Ignacio fire station.

Commissioner William L. Boyle said board members will meet with the architects this week to work out a time schedule for the project.

The board also learned three ambulances which the district is buying, will be delivered Dec. 15 and be in operation by the first of the year.

Defense Chief Decries Cuts In Arms Fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said today that for seven years the nation's military forces have been suffering financially from a "wasting disease" that could result in the country becoming a second class military power.

"The appetities to further reduce the Department of Defense continue to grow as the department dwindles," Schlesinger said.

Schlesinger, who was interviewed on the CBS Morning News, said the department's total resources has dropped, in constant dollars, by about 40 per cent during that period.

"We have dropped in terms of military manpower by a million and a half men and compared to pre-war we are down by about 600,000 men," he said. "We have the lowest share of the GNP (Gross National Product) since before the Korean War. And in terms of public spending we're at the lowest point since before Pearl Harbor."

The department requested a budget of $92.6 billion for fiscal 1975, but the spending figure was slashed by more than $4 billion in Congress.

"The question is does the United States wish to maintain a military balance or does it not," Schlesinger said. "If we are going to disarm as a nation and accept second class status as a military power we should do so consciously, rather than allowing the erosion of purchasing power for the Department of Defense to drive us into that second class status."

He said the Soviet Union's military budget has been growing at the rate of 4 to 5 per cent annually in terms of real resources.

"We have been shrinking," he said. "This year we submitted a budget that prevented further shrinkage. But between the cuts that were imposed by the Congress and very substantial erosion of purchasing power because of the inflation, we will be going down still further."

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 22, the 295th day of 1974 with 70 to follow.

The moon is in its first quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1836, Gen. Sam Houston was sworn in as the first president of the Republic of Texas.

Tournaments Can Separate The Sheep From The Goats

Tournaments often separate the sheep from the goats. If you're curious which branch of the animal kingdom you belong to, test yourself on the tournament hand shown today.

PLAN YOUR PLAY

West's opening lead is the ten of diamonds. Plan your play for at least a trick or so before you read on.

When you put up dummy's jack of diamonds, East covers with the queen. You can join the goats in that crowded room on the left, for you have already lost your contract.

East is sure to win two diamond tricks. This gives him time to lead clubs and get a club trick for West. The defenders are sure to get two diamonds, one club and the ace of spades.

TWO NOBLE SHEEP

When this hand was played in a Los Angeles tournament some years ago, veteran expert Meyer Schleifer made the game contract by allowing West to win the first trick with the ten of diamonds.

West couldn't afford to lead a club, since dummy would win a trick with the queen. When West switched to trumps, South drew three trumps, cashed the ace of diamonds and gave up a diamond.

East naturally led a club, but it was too late. South won with the ace of clubs, led a diamond to dummy and discarded a club on the fifth diamond. This eliminated the club loser and assured the contract.

The correct play is chiefly a matter of resisting temptation, which has been known to separate sheep from goats in more activities than one.

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - A J 10 6 2
♥ - 6 4
♦ - 10
♣ - K 8 6 3 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades.

Your eight points and fine distribution should add up to a game in the combined hands. If partner's rebid is three NT, you will bid four clubs, looking for a game in one black suit or the other.

Ray Opens Fight For New Trial

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — James Earl Ray's bid for a new trial began today with his attorney arguing in federal court that Ray's previous lawyer, Percy Foreman, had put pressure on Ray to plead guilty to the murder of civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Ray, 46, sat staring straight ahead as Bernard Fensterwald told the court that Ray should be given a new trial because he was deprived of his constitutional right to effective counsel.

Fensterwald said Foreman, a famous Houston lawyer, pressured Ray until he finally pleaded guilty to the 1968 slaying. He said Foreman had told Ray he would be "barbecued" (put to death in the electric chair) if he risked a trial, rather than entering a guilty plea.

W. Henry Haile, the assistant Tennessee attorney general, made a brief opening statement for the state.

"As far as we are concerned," Haile said, "the things they have alleged are not true."

Ray was moved early today two blocks from the Shelby County jail to the Federal Building where he was held in a detention area to await start of the hearing which could lead to a new trial.

CLOUDS AVOID BAY AREA

The San Francisco Bay Area is clear in this National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration weather satellite photo, though cloud masses are found farther south along the California coast, as well as inland over Idaho. The photo was taken at 10 a.m. yesterday.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Myopic Baby Sees Its Mother Only When She Is Close By

A youngster who is nearsighted (myopic) clearly sees objects close at hand, but he can't see distant objects. Myopia generally begins after the child starts school, but I often wonder what babyhood would be like if it began shortly after birth.

A myopic baby sees his mother only when she is close to him. I once had a secretary with myopia who never knew what a billboard or tree looked like until she was fitted with glasses.

Children and teen-agers with visual impairments exhibit personality traits traceable to what they can and cannot see.

The shortsighted boy or girl, for example, does well academically because he is not distracted by things going on around him. Walks in the country are not for him because the landscape is too blurred to be enjoyed. Since he can't see the playing field, he isn't interested in baseball, basketball or football. Getting him a ticket to a movie or stage play is a waste of money unless you get front row seats.

Television viewing is made to order because he can sit as close as he likes. Since most of his activities are a solo proposition, he tends to be introverted and rather stiff and self-righteous.

Tests show that academically, the myope scores 5 per cent higher in reading, math and verbal skills.

Farsighted (hyperopic) children are not interested in books. In fact, they often are accused of being lazy and inattentive. A boy with this problem usually quits school and goes to work. He usually grows up to be the masculine, aggressive type who is a devil with the ladies. Farsighted girls tend to be tomboys.

Although both far- and nearsighted children can read, the latter do it better. With proper glasses, none of these problems need arise. Those with undetected myopia often learn to compensate for the visual defect by contracting the pupils when in a brightly lit room. By restricting the size of their pupiles, they lengthen their depth of perception.

Makeshift adjustment never replaces the improvement that follows proper eyeglasses or contact lenses.

IN TRACTION

Mrs. O. writes: My husband, John, is hospitalized. He's suffering from severe muscle spasms in the lower back. The nurses put him in traction every other hour. How can this possibly help his condition?

REPLY

Traction of the spine pulls the joints apart, eases pressure on the spinal nerves and relaxes the muscles. The enforced bed rest promotes healing.

HAMMER-TOES

D. R. writes: The hammertoes on both my feet are so painful I can hardly wear shoes. In fact, I can hardly stand. Do you think surgery might help?

REPLY

Yes it can.

Chavez Activity Curtailed By Back Ailment

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Cesar Chavez' personal physician says the farm labor leader will have to give up his union activity and stay in the hospital for an indefinite period because of a back problem.

Dr. Jerome Lauckner said yesterday that Chavez is suffering from "chronic overuse" of his back and that his condition is "disturbing but not critical."

Chavez also issued a statement saying that the current grape boycott by his union is costing table grape growers in California nearly $25 million.

Chavez cited U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics which he said showed there were 4,150,280 boxes of unsold grapes in cold storage as of Sept. 30.

Thaw Hinted By Castro In TV Interview

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro says he would be willing to begin talks on resuming U.S.-Cuban diplomatic relations if the United States first agrees to lift the economic embargo.

In an interview taped with CBS television to be broadcast tonight on Channels 5 and 10 at 10 o'clock, Castro declared:

"I would say that number one is the lifting of the economic blockade. When the economic blockade is ended, we shall be in a condition to speak under conditions of equality: the United States and ourselves."

In a talk with CBS correspondent Dan Rather, Castro, at 47 still sporting his famous beard, criticized President Ford for warning petroleum producers against high prices and for his public admission that the Central Intelligence Agency supported Chilean newspapers opposed to the late President Salvador Allende.

But, he said, he hoped for a change in U.S. policy toward Cuba.

President Ford "is not involved with the Cuban counter-revolutionary elements," Castro said, as opposed to former President Richard Nixon, who "was personally very much involved with them."

Castro said Cubans regard Ford "with a certain hope in the sense that he may after all adopt a different policy towards Cuba."

The premier praised Secretary of State Henry Kissinger as a "realistic politician" and also praised the late President John F. Kennedy for resisting advice to send in American troops after the failure of the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion.

Castro said the U.S. base of Guantanamo on Cuban soil would be brought up in any negotiations to resume diplomatic relations.

'The Law': Well-Done, Taut Television Movie

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Clarence Darrow, a fair defense attorney, once claimed that "the law is a bum profession. It is utterly devoid of idealism and almost poverty-stricken as to any real ideas."

"The Law," a made-for-TV movie on NBC tonight, explores that thesis with a tautly written, well-acted and very sour study of the nuts-and-bolts workings of the criminal justice system in an unnamed big city.

Filmed in Los Angeles, the 2½-hour show stars Judd Hirsch, a New York actor in his mid-30s. He plays an aggressive, overworked deputy public defender who is idealistic by nature and cynical by experience.

His world, naturally, isn't a happy one. It's a world of hard-nosed or jocular plea-bargaining, venal private barristers, prosecution-favoring, pistol-packing lady judges and low-life defendants he must counsel en masse before their arraignments because the legal staff is small, its time limited.

The over-all impression you might get from this show is that it has but two staff idealists — the public defender and one member of the opposition, a young deputy district attorney played by John Beck.

The others are neither absolute saints nor sinners. They work both sides of the fence, drifting with the winds of expediency.

At the heart of the show is Hirsch's attempt to defend a young, heroin-wasted rock musician brilliantly played by Gary Busey — who's charged with three other men in a Manson family kind of murder case.

Development Is Focus Of Town Panel

Development in the entire Lower Ross Valley will be the focus of the fifth annual Larkspur Town Meeting, scheduled Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon at the Redwood High School Little Theater.

Three Marin County leaders and the mayor and city manager of neighboring Corte Madera will join Larkspur officials at the meeting, and residents from outside Larkspur are invited, according to Sallyanne Wilson, co-chairman.

"You can't plan in a vacuum," said Mrs. Wilson. "You must take into account other developments in other areas."

The meeting will open with speeches by Larkspur City Mgr. Harlan Barry and Corte Madera Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels, explaining development in their communities. Douglas J. Maloney, county counsel, will explain the proposed county growth control ordinance.

After a coffee break, Larkspur Mayor Joan L. Sestak, Corte Madera Mayor Robert J. Flahive, and Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Gary T. Giacomini will form a panel to answer citizen questions.

Likely to be discussed are proposals for the Larkspur ferry terminal, the Larkspur Landing development planned by Lincoln Properties for the San Quentin Peninsula, the Rouse and Company Bon Air development, and the Ernest W. Hahn shopping center in Corte Madera.

Last year's format of small discussion groups has been dropped.

Any political advertisement that is not clearly the personal appeal of the elective candidate or candidates involved must show the name of the sponsoring group together with the name or names of one or more persons officiating for such group and their address.

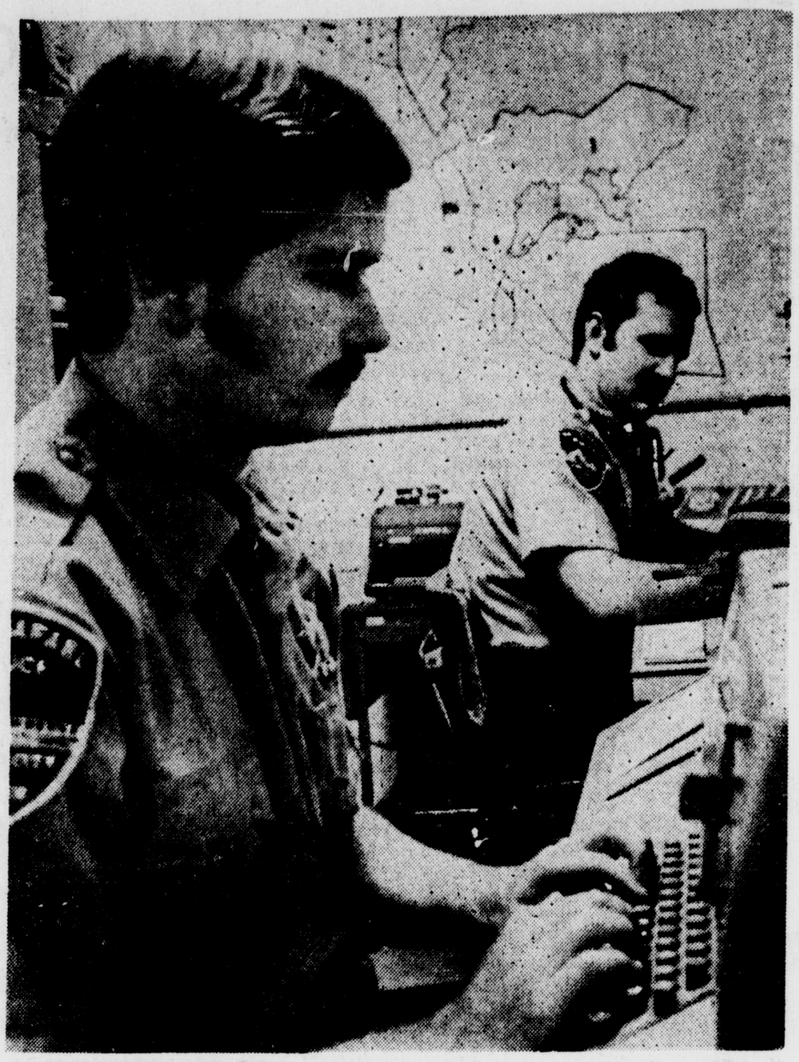
All political advertisements are payable in advance. Charges are figured at the prevailing flat rate.

Advertising deadlines are 4 p.m., two working days preceding publication. Tuesday advertisements must be in Friday by 4 p.m., Monday advertisements must be in the preceding Friday morning by 11:00 a.m. Any intervening holiday advances the deadline by a day.

No responsibility to show printer's proof is assumed under the above schedule.

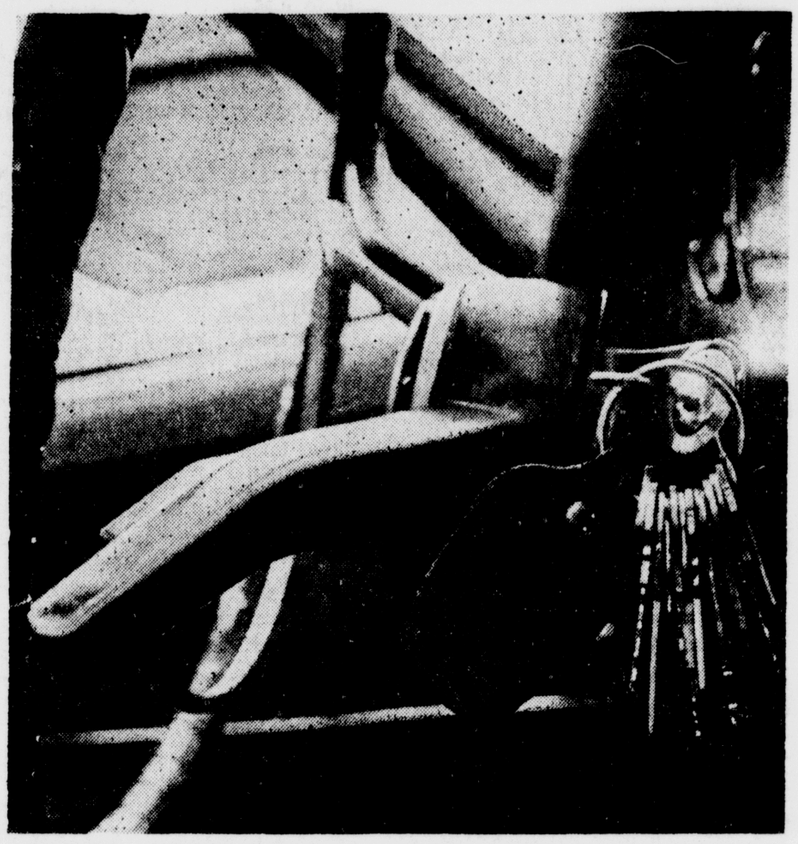
If a proof is desired, advertisement must be submitted substantially in advance. Corrections, if any, must be ordered by 4 p.m., two working days preceding publication. Any changes from original copy will be charged for on basis of printing work involved.

TARGETS — About one in every 100 cars will be stolen in the coming year, and, according to statistics, most will be taken from a place like this: A large, unattended parking lot. Recent statistics on car theft are alarming — more than 107,000 were stolen in California last year, and in just the first eight months of this year, more than 150 in San Rafael alone. More reassuring is the fact that more than 80 per cent of stolen cars will be recovered thanks to police efforts. (Photos by Alfred M. Arn)



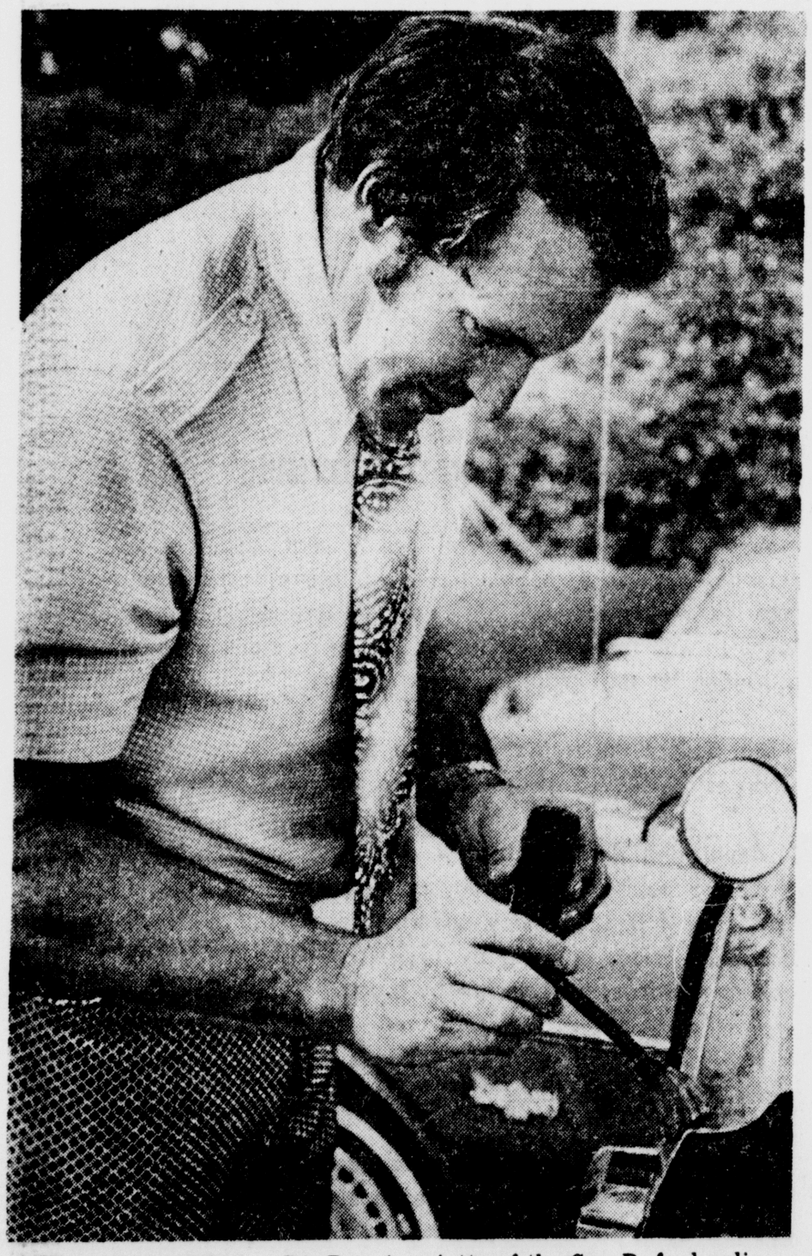
COMPUTER CHASE — Upon receiving a report of a stolen car, police run the registration and license numbers through the computer to provide officers in other departments with bulletins to check. Here, San Rafael Police Cadet Gilbert MacQuarrie enters car theft information from his terminal, while cadet Gene Fahy takes information from officers on patrol.

TOWED AND STORED — Upon finding a stolen car, the vehicle is towed to a nearby garage and stored there until the owner comes to claim it. The car owner, usually delighted that his car was found, often is disappointed to find that the car isn't in the same condition as it was when stolen — more than half of the stolen cars are found dented or stripped of parts.

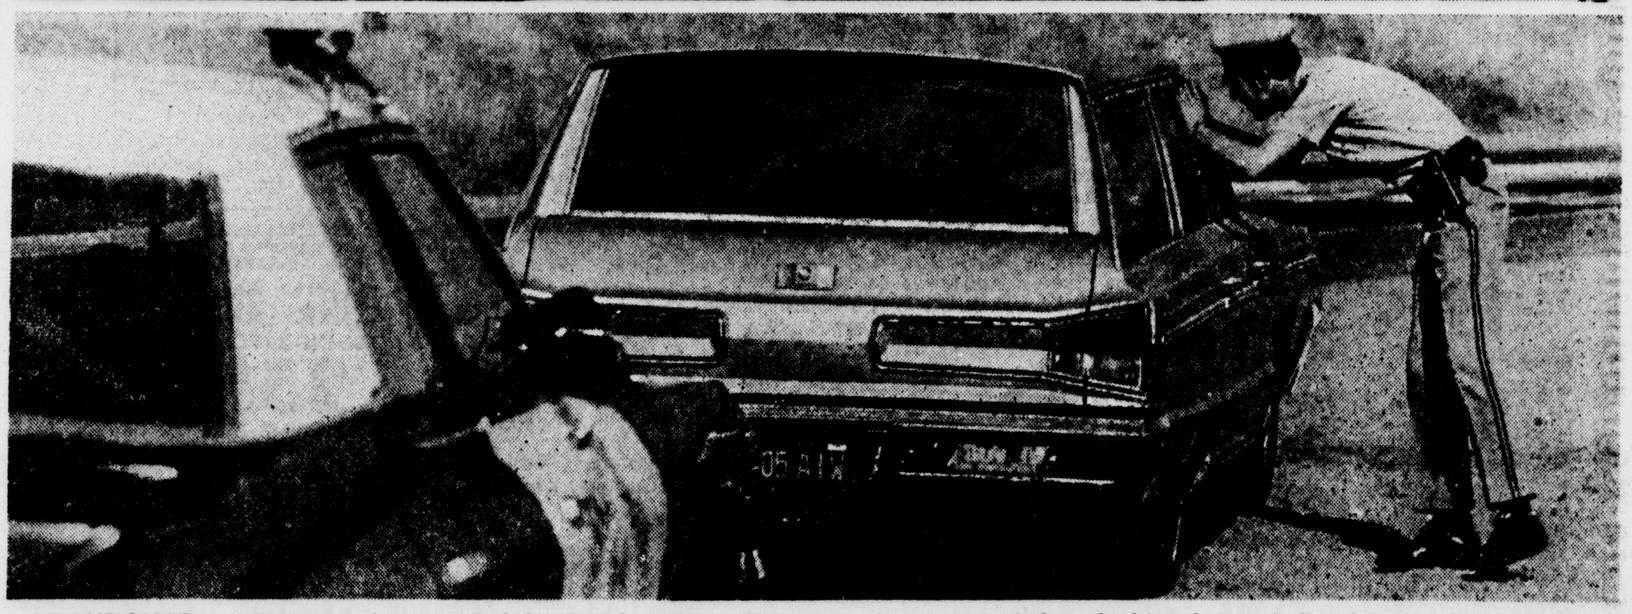


EASY THEFT — Although a car thief needs only a minute to wire a car's ignition without a key, the majority of stolen cars are those left with keys in the ignition. Most popular marks for car thieves, according to police, are Volkswagens, because they are said to be easy to break into, and easy to strip parts for resale.

The Ins And Outs Of Auto Theft



INVESTIGATION — Dt. Ron Averiette of the San Rafael police dusts a stolen car for fingerprints that might lead to apprehending the thief, but this search is usually fruitless, police said. However, when they do manage to nab a thief, they can usually link him to others that were previously unsolved.



ABANDONED — Encountering a car left abandoned on the freeway shoulder, Officer James Baker of the California Highway Patrol calls in to his dispatcher to run a check on the car's license number (above) and then examines the car at close range (below) looking for an indication that it might have been stolen — a broken window, wired ignition, or other markings. This particular car wasn't stolen, so Baker merely left a warning note for the owner to remove it.

Great Fishing On S.F. Bay

Ah, the salt air and the waves of the open sea.

Well, not really the open sea. It was actually in San Francisco Bay, about as close to Alcatraz as I ever wanted to be. It was close enough to see the broken windows and decaying outer walls. I never really wanted to see the inner walls.

It was a fishing trip with the Lord of the Sea. The Lord is Keith Fraser who got his nickname because of his success in bringing back limits of Striped Bass. Keith is part owner of the Loch Lomond Live Bait and Tackle shop and the resident bass expert.

HE REPORTED the other day that striper fishing around Alcatraz Island was red-hot, "everybody catching limits." When I appeared to be somewhat skeptical, he invited me to come out on a trip with him and see for myself.

It was the day after the final game of the World Series and a perfect time to test the fishing . . . and talk baseball. Fraser is also a junior high school teacher and is head baseball coach at Terra Linda High. It was a fivesome on Fraser's boat. We were joined by I-J baseball columnist Gary Hughes, San Marin baseball coach Ron Butori, and Roy Partee of Terra Linda, a scout for the New York Mets who played for Boston and St. Louis of the American League in the 40s.

It was a beautiful day, shirtsleeve weather on the bay. We rigged up for trolling, using a spreader to allow for the use of two lures, a spoon and a jet-tailed jig. If one of those lures didn't work, the other would, we were promised.

ONLY SECONDS after we let out our lines, Hughes was excitedly calling that he had a fish on. After reeling in his line we found that he had what the veteran anglers call a "double header," a fish on each of his two lures.

We kept the biggest of the two, about a four-pounder, and tossed the smaller one back, although it was of legal size. What the heck, we said, if fishing is going to be this good we'll just keep them one at a time.

Well, Fraser was right. The fishing last Friday, as he reported it had been all week, was red-hot. We caught about 30 stripers, throwing the smaller ones back unharmed, and kept our limit of 15 (three each). They were good-sized fish, the largest one weighing out at 16½ pounds.

THAT 16½-POUNDER was the first fish I caught that day, after Hughes had given me such a bad time because he was catching fish and I wasn't. Actually, I was just waiting for the bigger ones.

That was the biggest striper I have ever caught and it put up a good fight before being decked. I felt very proud of that fish until I was humbled by the sight of that salmon whose picture is next door to this space. That's quite a beauty, that 54-pounder caught by Leonard Gettle of Mill Valley.

IT WAS a great time Friday. We all caught fish and had a very relaxful time aboard Fraser's boat. After that World Series week, relaxing was just what this tired body needed.

And when Fraser reports the fishing is "red-hot," I won't doubt his word. He proved his point.

A BIGGIE FOR MARINITE

Leonard Gettle of Mill Valley hoists his catch for all to see. Gettle, a body and fender repairman, caught this 54-pound (51 pounds when cleaned) salmon Saturday outside the Golden Gate during a party fishing trip. He was aboard the Blue Fin out of Sausalito Boat and Tackle and spent 35 minutes battling the fish before landing it. It's the biggest this year and puts Gettle in the lead in the Bay Area salmon derby.

Murcer To Giants For Bobby Bonds

NEW YORK (UPI) — Outfielder Bobby Bonds, acclaimed "the best player in baseball "by at least two managers only a year ago, was traded to the New York Yankees today by the San Francisco Giants for outfielder Bobby Murcer in a straight player deal.

Bonds had a subpar year with the Giants this past season, finishing with a .256 batting average, 71 runs batted in and 21 homers.

Likewise, Murcer, who originally had been groomed to take Mickey Mantle's place in centerfield for the Yankees, but never really did, also tailed off from the year before when he batted .304, drove in 95 runs and hit 22 homers. This year, he was moved from centerfield to rightfield by Manager Bill Virdon to make room for Elliott Maddox, and wound up with a .274 average, 10 homers and 88 rbi's.

Only two of Murcer's homers were hit at home in Shea Stadium, both coming in September in a series against Celeveland.

The Giants went for the 28-year-old Murcer specifically because they needed a lefthanded hitter badly.

Murcer, a native of Oklahoma City, Okla., broke in with the Yankees as a shortstop in 1965, but did not win a regular berth with them until he came back from military service in 1969.

His best year for the Yankees was 1971 when he batted .331 and had 94 rbi's and 24 homers.

The deal was the first interleague swap following the World Series. The interleague trading period officially opened today.

Bonds was off someplace fishing when the deal was finalized between the two clubs.

Gene Mauch, the blunt speaking manager of the Montreal Expos said at one point in 1973: "Bonds is the best player in baseball today."

Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson, who guided the National League All-Stars that year, agreed after Bonds sparked the National Leaguers to victory over the American League.

Bonds did it all for the Giants in 1973 with 96 rbi's, 39 homers, 130 runs scored, 34 doubles, four triples, 43 stolen bases and a .283 batting average.

In so doing, he became only the second player in major league history to repeat the accomplishment of hitting 30 homers and stealing 30 bases in the same season.

Willie Mays, Bonds' idol, managed the same feat in both 1956 and 1957. Only three other players ever have achieved that 30-30 distinction even once.

TOUCHDOWN — Bears' wide receiver Charley Wade sprinted between Green Bay Packers' defensive backs Jim Hill (39) and Al Matthews en route to a 57-yard touchdown. Quarterback Gary Huff threw a first-quarter pass over the middle to Wade who then outran the Packers' secondary to the goal line. The National Football League game last night took place in Chicago. Defense Makes Big Plays For Chicago

Packers' Devine Can Only Second-Guess

CHICAGO (UPI) — The defense made the big plays for the Chicago Bears on national television last night and left Green Bay Packer Coach Dan Devine second guessing himself after a 10-9 defeat.

The win for the Bears left both teams with a 3-3 record, tied for second place in the National Football League's Central Division, two games behind the front-running Minnesota Vikings.

The Bears started out like gangbusters. Mirro Roder kicked a 23-yard field goal to wind up a march from the Bears' 47 the first time Chicago had the ball.

Then less than five minutes later, Gary Huff hit wide receiver Charley Wade in the middle of the Packer secondary and Wade outran the defense for a 57-yard touchdown play and a 10-0 Chicago lead.

But that was the end of the Bear offense as far as scoring went and the defense, though hard pressed, was adequate.

The first time the defense took charge was after the Packers had marched from their 21 to a first down on the Bears' nine. John Brockington gained two yards, a pass to Brockington gained another and a pass to Rich McGeorge put the ball on the two with fourth down.

That was when Devine made the decision he second guessed later.

"As it turned out, the decision to go for it looms as the big one," he said. "The decision was mine. Naturally I won't do it again knowing what we know now. But at that point we felt we needed seven points. We didn't know we were going to play so well in the second half."

The second big play by the Bears came just before the half when the Packers drove from their 42 to a first down on the Bears' 12 and Brockington gained seven yards on the first play. But then Jerry Tagge tried to pass to McGeorge and rookie linebacker Waymond Bryant intercepted in the end zone to kill the threat.

"That's one I sure wish I had back," Tagge said. "Bryant made a hell of a defensive play but I threw the ball too soft to attempt to reach McGeorge."

Tagge agreed that Brockington's failure to get in earlier was the most important play because "if we had scored, the momentum would have gone our way and it would have been a different ball game."

All of the Green Bay points were by Chester Marcol on field goals of 34, 33 and 36 yards.

Coach Abe Gibron of the Bears declared the result came because of "physical, aggressive football. We think we can beat anybody."

Bears defensive captain Doug Buffone, conceeding, "we got hurt a little outside," added: "When we got close in, we really tightened up. They thought they could run the ball on third down, but we stuck in there, especially on the goal line. You've got to have holes to run very hard."

ON ALL-STAR TEAM

Jackson Lone A's Selection

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Brock slid in safely on the Associated Press' 1974 Major League All-Star baseball team.

Picking up the most votes of the outfielders with 290, the St. Louis Cardinals' base-stealing wonder was among the classy group voted in yesterday by a nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters.

Brock, who broke Maury Wills' distinguished record of 104 steals with 118 this season, was joined in the outfield by Oakland's Reggie Jackson and Jeff Burroughs of Texas.

Jackson polled 218 votes while Burroughs had 194 to make the blue ribbon team ahead of such illustrious names as Jimmy Wynn of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Atlanta's Ralph Garr, the National League's batting champion.

The major battles in the voting took place at shortstop and for the right-handed pitcher's berth.

Cincinnati's Dave Concepcion won the shortstop position over Bert Campaneris of Oakland, 173 votes to 133.

Ferguson Jenkins of the Texas Rangers was named the team's right-handed pitcher, outdueling Jim Hunter 159-117.

49ers Search For Veteran Quarterback

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers have until this afternoon to trade for a quarterback — and the rumors are flying.

The San Francisco Examiner says the 49ers are trying to deal with New Orleans for Archie Manning and other names tossed about in this year of dissatisfied National Football League signal callers include Pat Sullivan of Atlanta, Bob Berry of Minnesota, and Craig Morton of Dallas, who refused to practice yesterday with the Cowboys and demanded to be traded because he is "tired of being wasted."

The Examiner yesterday said it was speculated that the 49ers have offered at least two no. 1 draft picks and two or three front-line players for Manning. Coach Dick Nolan wasn't available for comment.

The article quoted an unidentified owner of another club also interested in acquiring Manning as saying:

"We've been told by New Orleans that the Saints are seriously considering a bid made by Nolan to acquire Manning. One, by the way, that we couldn't match."

MANNING IS NOT AVAILABLE

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Archie Manning is not for sale. He'll remain a Saint.

New Orleans coach John North said today he will not trade his high-priced quarterback despite having benched Manning.

Asked if Manning would be with the team past the 3 p.m. today deadline for trades in the National Football League, North said, "Yes."

Forty-niner starter Steve Spurrier hurt his shoulder in the final pre-season game and is not expected to be in top shape the rest of the season although he might be ready to play in two weeks.

Joe Reed and Dennis Morrison have had their chances — and failed to move the team. But Tom Owen "did a good job for a rookie, but like a rookie, he missed several things" in the 37-14 loss to Los Angeles last Sunday, according to coach Dick Nolan.

He figures to start against Oakland Sunday at Candlestick Park—unless a new face is rushed into the scene.

Ironically, it was Owen who impressed 49er coaches the most during the strike and he was listed officially as No. 2 back of Spurrier.

Owens played the most during the exhibition season and moved the team well.

But once the season started, Reed and Morrison looked sharper in practice and thus got their chances first.

Marin Academy Harriers Win

Marin Academy ran its 1974 cross country record to 12-5 yesterday with victories over two Bay Counties League opponents on the Quarry Run course in San Rafael.

John Carmichael covered the three miles in 17:04 as Marin posted 24 points to 43 for Royce Academy of Oakland and 78 for Lick Wilmerding of San Francisco.

Chuck Fall was third for Marin at 17:40.

Alston Is Overwhelming Choice

Ozark Second In UPI Ballot For Managers

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Walter Alston, baseball's "Father Time" among modern day managers who led the Los Angeles Dodgers to their sixth pennant under his stewardship, has been overwhelmingly named UPI's National League manager of the year for 1974.

Alston, who only two days ago signed his 22nd consecutive one-year contract with the Dodgers, received 11 first place votes from the UPI baseball correspondents across the country. His nearest competitor, Danny Ozark of the Phillies, received three.

While Alston managed such Dodger greats as Jackie Robinson, Duke Snider, Roy Campanella, Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale in years past, it was probably this 1974 pennant winner that brought him his greatest satisfaction — if not his biggest challenge.

WALTER ALSTON
'Father Time'

Spiced generously with young players — many with just one or two full seasons of major league experience, Alston nonetheless goaded his club past the favored defending champion Cincinnati Reds of Johnny Bench, Pete Rose, etc. and wound up on top by four games. Only the World Series loss to the two-time world champ Oakland Athletics diminished Alston's year.

As it was, three-fourths of Alston's infield were converted from other positions. Shortstop Bill Russell (26) was formerly an outfielder as was second baseman Davey Lopes (24). First baseman Steve Garvey (25), who led the club in runs batted in with 111, played third, second and outfield before Alston found his best position.

Further, his two catchers Joe Ferguson (28) and Steve Yeager (25) were considered inexperienced by many, while the team's only real veteran starter, centerfielder Jimmy Wynn was acquired from Houston after a bad year.

A more obvious roadblock to Alston's '74 pennant hopes, however, came midway through the season when lefthander Tommy John, the ace of the Dodger pitching staff at the time with a 13-3 record, was lost for the year with an elbow injury. But the 62-year old skipper endured, making liberal use of reliever Mike Marshall, while coaxing clutch stretch performances from his other three starters, Andy Messersmith, Don Sutton and young Doug Rau.

Alston, who won world championships with the Dodgers in 1955, 1959, 1963 and 1965, is surpassed in endurance with one club as manager by only two men — Connie Mack, who managed the old Philadelphia Athletics 50 years and John McGraw, who piloted the Giants 31 straight seasons.

To The Defense Of Defense

OAKLAND (UPI) — Coach John Madden has come to the defense of his defense, which gave up 27 points in Oakland's last-second 30-27 victory over tough Cincinnati Sunday.

Cincinnati completed a 60-yard pass over All-Pro cornerback Willie Brown on its first play and produced a seven-yard scoring run from Essex Johnson on its second.

The Raiders finally had to drive 51 yards with no timeouts left in the last 1:40 to win it on Charlie Smith's two-yard run with eight seconds to go.

"Our defense wasn't that bad," Madden insists. "They surprised us on that first play. You know, you kind of expect a team to start a little slower paced--not a long pass.

"And two of their touchdowns came after our turnovers in our territory. So they didn't exactly push us around."

Although Cincinnati gained 287 yards total offense, Ken Anderson passed for 278 yards the week before against Cleveland. And it was an intercepted Anderson pass by Jack Tatum, which turned the game around.

Cincinnati led 14-6 when Tatum said, "I saw him (Anderson) look for (tight end Bob) Trumpy and I hung back. When he saw I wasn't coming, he looked a second time and threw. And I moved in."

Tatum returned the interception 40 yards and two plays later, the Raiders had their first touchdown and trailed 14-13.

The Raiders record at the Coliseum since 1966 is 46-9-3 but they don't get back there until Nov. 10. They call on San Francisco Sunday and Denver the following week.

No Luck With Bucks Or Ducks

TRUCKEE — Mary, my wife, and I opened the duck season last Saturday here at Webber Lake.

Having hunted deer the last three weeks with neither of us seeing a buck since the opening day, we expected a little action with the ducks. Earlier this week, we had toured all the likely looking ponds nearby getting a count of 12 birds, mostly mallards.

With no one else around here hunting ducks, we got up about 8 a.m. — none of this early morning freezing for us! Mary took one bunch of ponds; I took some others. We planned on getting just two birds for Sunday's dinner. I met her about noon — neither of us could raise a bird. As Mary put it, "Even the mice in the cabin have quit biting."

We tried lots of good areas for bucks, but there just doesn't seem to be any at our former hot spots. Hunting pressure is practically nil. We've seen just one buck brought in during the past two weeks. I remember opening day when Andy Rosalie of San Rafael and Mary were on a stand together. This one forked horn broke out about 25 yards away from them in the open. Being the first day, Mary yelled to Andy to take it. He yelled back, "No, you take it!" Finally both shot and got the buck. I'll bet no one around here today would be so polite. That buck may be it for the season for us.

GAME WARDEN Gil Berg of this area came by yesterday. We discussed the buck hunting. He laughed and said, "Bucks around here are almost considered in the rare and endangered species." Oh, it's not that bad. It's probably the dryness of the surrounding country. You can't move through the timber without creating lots of loud crackling brush noises. In one area that we've hunted, there's a doe with a bell attached to its neck. We have jumped her numerous times, yet we have never been close enough to actually see her. When you can't get a deer in sight with a bell continually ringing, things are tough. We know it's a doe, because she has been seen earlier this spring in the same locality. Now to see her is a challenge.

KURT KALEMBA and his son David came by for the weekend. They had hunted a couple of days near Chilcoot in Plumas County. They said they saw one buck in the 30 or so camps at that area.

This week, a coyote has been giving the local sheepherder's flock a rough time, killing two of them. Bob Jack, formerly of Novato and an old varmint hunter figured to help the herder out. I guess Bob put in a week trying to catch that coyote. He finally did.

We have been continually trying the trout fishing, but they are hard to catch too. The other morning at White Rock Lake, probably 1,000 fish were rising. There must have been 10 million bugs on the lake. The fish were gorging themselves on these and wouldn't touch a thing. In the afternoon, we caught one fish, about a 14-inch Kamloops trout, which was full of bugs. The area badly needs a rain and a cold spell, even a snow, to improve the hunting and fishing conditions.

The buck season closed on the east side of the Sierra crest last Sunday. But it stays open on the west side until Nov. 3. With Webber Lake situated just about on the crest, our hunting will be restricted to the west side this week. I suppose we'll see bucks all over the place on the east side after it's closed.

IF YOU ARE a duck hunter, you might note an illegible number problem and its answer. If you cannot read your 1974-75 California hunting license number, chances are there's nothing wrong with your eyesight. The same thing is happening to hunters all over the state.

Unless you're going to apply for a reservation to hunt on a state managed waterfowl area, you need not be concerned. Fish and Game Wardens are aware of what's going on and will give you no trouble when checking your license in the field even if the number is smudged or otherwise illegible.

But the rub comes when you're applying for a waterfowl area reservation and you need the license number for the application form.

The Department of Fish and Game says you should enter on the application as much of the number, if any, you can read. If you cannot make out the number, simply write just above the space provided for the number, "number illegible." Applications so marked will be included in the drawings.

It might be a good idea if you can still read the number to write it somewhere else on the license in case it should disappear. Meanwhile, handle the license with care. A Department of Fish and Game spokesman blamed the firm manufacturing the validation stamps for using an inferior ink.

PREP OF WEEK

Hurst Catches On Offense, Defense

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Fred Hurst was the leading receiver in last Friday night's football game between San Rafael and Drake — for both teams. He caught four passes on offense for 77 yards and a touchdown, and he intercepted three passes on defense for 46 yards and two touchdowns.

For that performance, which sparked a 45-6 San Rafael victory, Fred Hurst was named the Independent-Journal's Prep of the Week.

As a sophomore, Hurst played defense for the Bulldogs. Last year, he turned to offense. Now, at 6 feet and 190 pounds, he starts both at wide receiver and strong side safety, and he is one of the reasons why San Rafael is undefeated and challenging for the Marin County Athletic League championship.

His coach, Bob Muster, says of Hurst, "I'd hate to take him off either offense or defense. He does a good job at both phases of the game. He has a lot of desire."

Against Drake, Hurst played defense as though he had been invited to the Pirate huddles. Actually, he ran back all three interceptions for touchdowns, but a clipping penalty nullified the last return of 41 yards.

Two things set up the interceptions, which looked so easy from the sidelines. First, Hurst was free to go for the ball because he was getting help from Eric Wheeler on covering Drake receiver Kevin Peak. And at the time of the interceptions, in the late third and early fourth quarters, the Pirates were already buried so the Bulldog deep backs could take chances at interceptions.

Hurst also had an interception in San Rafael's MCAL season opener, a 7-7 tie with San Marin. "I was laying back against Drake because I knew they had to pass," he said later. "Against San Marin I was coming up because they didn't pass very much."

With his four receptions on offense, Hurst moved into the second spot among leading receivers in the league. Coincidentally, the league leader, Steve Hoog, is the man he will most likely cover Saturday night when San Rafael meets the league-leading Novato Hornets.

Hurst doesn't know much about Hoog ("I've never seen him play but I hear he's pretty good"), but he knows what to expect from Novato quarterback Mike Moroski. "I know him and I really want to play against him. He's a pretty good passer, so I think they'll be throwing."

"Our confidence is really high now since the big score against Drake," says Hurst. "We'll be really up for the game." Hurst points out that Novato has to face San Rafael, San Marin and Terra Linda on successive weeks, and he says, "I think they'll lose at least one, hopefully against us."

The Bulldogs are more interested in beating the Hornets than in stopping their eight-game shutout string, says Hurst. "I know we can score against Novato, but even if it's just 3-0 and we win, that's what counts.

"If we beat Novato, we still haven't won the championship," he adds. "The league is really well balanced, and nobody's a pushover."

Hurst pins San Rafael's hopes on the defense, especially linebackers Mike McGrath and Tim McCandless, end Mike Kinsella and deep backs Wheeler, Mark Meredith and Jeff Hooke.

It's not a big defense, he says, "but everybody likes to hit."

Hurst plans on majoring in business at college, perhaps at San Diego State where he has a 23-year-old brother, Frank.

PARIS — Chrysler France officials said today the energy crisis and mounting costs may force the automobile firm to withdraw the Matra-Simca team from next year's car racing contests.

But no decision on whether to continue or cancel the racing program, which costs more than $2 million annually, has been made yet, officials said.

They remarked that economic considerations already have forced the withdrawal of other racing teams sponsored by car firms, including Alfa Romeo. In addition, the International Racing Commission has canceled races of three liter prototypes as of 1976, they added.

Chrysler officials said the firm will continue backing on an expanded basis the Simca racing team grouping thousands of younger drivers for road rallies.

Any cancellation of the Matra-Simca contests next year would in no way affect the close cooperation between Chrysler and Matra, officials said. They said the jointly produced Bagheera sports car was selling well and production now rose to 55 cars per day.

Riley, 24, from Idaho, played three pre-season contests for the 49ers before he was cut. Officers said the 5-11, 190-pounder will be returned to Sacramento to stand trial.

Dallas QB Morton Won't Practice; Demands Trade

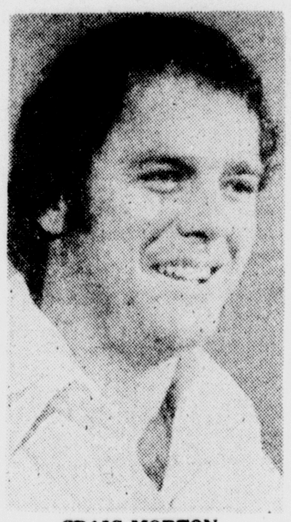
DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys have until to 3 p.m. today to try and trade veteran quarterback Craig Morton, who refused to practice yesterday and demanded to be traded.

"I'm just not playing and it's obvious they're not going to play me," Morton said. "I'm not contributing anything and I can't see just standing around. The trading deadline is coming up so I wanted to see what might happen."

BACKGROUND

Morton, 31, quarterbacked the Cowboys after the retirement of Don Meredith and was the starter in Dallas' 16-13 loss to Baltimore in the 1970 Super Bowl. Roger Staubach took over the starting job in 1971 and led Dallas to a Super Bowl win over Miami.

Morton last year grew unhappy with his backup status and demanded to be traded and the Cowboy management promised to comply if it could get a player of worth in return. No trade was made and Morton signed with the World Football League Houston Texans, who subsequently moved to Shreveport, La. It is not known if Morton's WFL contract is still valid because of the franchise transfer. He was playing out his option with Dallas this season.



CRAIG MORTON
'Not playing'

"It didn't surprise me," Coach Tom Landry said of Morton's decision yesterday. "He had said before he wanted to be traded. Craig didn't tell me this but I would imagine the Houston developments had something to do with him wanting to go now rather than to wait until after the season.

HOUSTON DEAL

"If he was sure the Houston deal was waiting for him, I think he'd have gone ahead and played out the season with us. Sure I hate to see him go but if he doesn't want to play for us, he'd be better off somewhere else."

The Cowboys said they did not know what action would be taken if a trade could not be worked out.

TWO QUARTERBACKS

Morton's departure left the club with Staubach and rookie Clint Longley from Abilene Christian at quarterback.

Linebacker Rodrigo Barnes yesterday informed the Cowboys he was going to have knee surgery at the recommendation of his personal physician. Barnes, a second-year pro from Rice, left the team last week in a disagreement over salary and playing time. He was in line to take over as middle linebacker for veteran Lee Roy Jordan as early as next year. The Cowboys said they would try to trade Barnes.

8 Of 10 Teams In WFL Playoffs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Eight of the World Football League's remaining 10 teams will make the playoffs at the end of the regular season, the league's board of governors decided yesterday.

The eight clubs with the best records will qualify, a WFL spokesman reported. The draw will be released next week, he added.

Previously, six teams were supposed to be in the playoffs. Jacksonville, Fla., and Detroit folded this year.

The WFL governors also decided that the Detroit players would be selected in a special draft at the league's headquarters in Newport Beach, Calif., today. The teams' rosters will be expanded from 37 to 40 players.

The board also approved an ownership group for the league's 1976 New York franchise. It will be revealed at a news conference in New York this week, the league spokesman reported.

The New York Stars were moved to Charlotte, N.C., last month.

Kampa Is Traded

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Defensive end Bob Kampa of the Buffalo Bills was traded yesterday to the Denver Broncos for future considerations.

Clines To Mets For Duffy Dyer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets acquired outfielder Gene Clines from the Pittsburgh Pirates today in a straight trade for catcher Duffy Dyer.

Clines, with a .287 lifetime batting average, hit .225 for the Pirates last season in 107 games and stole 14 bases. Dyers, who played with the Mets part of the 1968 and 69 seasons before settling down as Jerry Grote's steady backstop replacement in 1970 hit .211 in 63 games last season.

Drake Harriers Beat St. Helena, 22-39

ST. HELENA — Drake High School defeated St. Helena, 22-39, in a non-league cross country meet yesterday. Mike Raynes, Tony Gough and Tom Bertotti placed second, third and fourth for Drake. Drake ran its season record to 5-4.

Drake also took the girls' event, 15-50, paced by Susie Locke's first-place finish.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

No-Load Investors Fund Proves Volatile

By ROGER E. SPEAR and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. Some years ago I bought American Investors Fund at $8-$9 per share, is now about $3. I would appreciate your advice on whether to continue holding. — D.E.

A. Through 1968 (about the time you invested) this no-load was an outstanding gainer. But since then, results have been disappointing. As far as I know, the same management and investment philosophy has held sway throughout. Because of the fund's poor recent record, redemptions have been heavy, outnumbering sales 2.7-to-1. Management is optimistic at present, however, based on "broad fundamentals of money supply for purchase of investments, on the low price-earnings ratios of stocks and on prospects of future earnings growth."

The fund's portfolio is somewhat speculative and volatile. The 10 largest holdings constitute 41 per cent of assets, with industry concentrations in oil and oil drilling and savings and loans. An enduring market comeback ought to move this list up sharply as witness the 11 per cent rise in net asset value from mid-September to mid-October.

Q. A friend has suggested Burnup & Simms (OTC) as a long-term growth investment. Could you give me some background information and your appraisal of its potential? — A.R.

A. After reporting record operating results for the fiscal year ended April 30, 1974, July quarter performance was a disappointment. Revenues were flat and earnings dropped 19 per cent to 17 cents a share from 20 cents the previous year. The drop in price from the 18-19 level to 3-4, however, has more than discounted the decline in earnings. Burnup & Sims derives about ¾ of its business from installation and maintenance of facilities for telephone and utility companies, 8 per cent from CATV, 11 per cent from installation and service of electrical facilities and the remainder from graphic arts. Most of its work is confined to Florida, Texas and the Southern States.

The collapse in these shares is as much a reflection of investor disinterest in the industries Burnup & Sims serves as it is the poor July quarter on the bear market in general. I would delay making a commitment until earnings comparisons turn positive.

Building Is Still Lagging

Marin County's construction activity for the month of September this year was less than one-half the amount recorded in September of last year, according to figures compiled by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

The value of building permits issued last month in Marin totalled $4,812,104, which is a drop of 56 per cent from the $10,939,128 recorded in September of 1973.

The total value of building permits for the first nine months of this year stands at $65,608,020, which is 35.5 per cent behind the $101,641,109 reported at the same time last year.

METHOD TO THIS MADNESS

No, this is not a train derailment. It's a well-planned foundation for a new Victoria Station restaurant going up on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard East on the east side of Greenbrae Bridge where U-Drive Go-Karts operated until August. Four box cars and a caboose, each weighing about 30 tons, were hoisted into place last week by a giant 90-ton crane. This will be the latest in the Victoria Station chain of 30 restaurants, "purveyors of prime rib and potable spirits." Lloyd Weaver, supervisor at the construction site, said he is shooting for completion by Christmas, but it may not be ready until next January.

State To Investigate Mattress Firm Ads

Alleged misleading advertising by Ortho Mattress Co., headquartered in Compton, has been referred to the attorney general office in Los Angeles, according to the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco.

The BBB office in San Francisco reported it has been advising the Ortho Mattress Co. in San Francisco and San Rafael for many months that the company's advertising is misleading and not in compliance with California advertising laws. When revision of the ads did not take place, the case was turned over to the attorney general.

Construction Upturn Seen In Next Year

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In 1975 contracting for new construction will total $102.1 billion, 8 per cent more than this year's anticipated level of $94.8 billion, it was announced by McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

A leading authority on the construction market, the firm is known for its Dodge Reports on construction activity and Sweet's Catalog Files of building product information.

George A. Christie, the Company's vice president and chief economist, predicted that nonresidential construction contracts would total $32.5 billion in 1975, 4 per cent below this year's level; residential building would reach $41.3 billion, a 12 per cent gain; and nonbuilding construction would come to $28.3 billion next year, 17 per cent over this year's figure.

Christie pointed out that when the next upturn in construction begins, "the place to look for earliest improvement will be in housing."

He believes this will happen at the beginning of 1975.

I don't smoke a brand to be like everybody else.
I smoke because I enjoy it. I smoke Winston Super King.
